BULGARIANS OCCUPY NISH; KITCHENER OFF TO BALKANS

SERBS' WAR CAPITAL IN ENEMIES' HANDS

THROUGH ROUTE OPENED FOR CENTRAL POWERS TO SOFIA AND CONSTANTINOPLE—ALLIES DEFEAT BULGARIANS AT IAVOR ON VARDAR RIVER.

By the Associated Press.

London, Nov. 6.—The Bulgarians have occupied Nish, the Serbian war capital which gives them complete control of the railway from Prahovo, o nthe Danube and thus opens a through route for the central powers to Sofia and Constantinople. In addition the Bulgarian and German main armies have effected a junction at Krivivir, so that the campaign which has been somewhat slower than expected probably will move at a faster pace. In fact, except for the southern part of Serbia the invasion already is gathering more headway and despite Serbian resistance the invading armies have all made considerable progress.

In the south, however, the allied forces appear to be too strong for the Bulgarians who admit that they are faced by superior numbers. It is reported through the Serbian legislation at Athens that the British, the French and Serbians have inflicted a severe defeat on the Bulgarians at Isvor, ten miles west of the Vardar river.

More allied troops are being sent from Saloniki to the scene of the fighting in the hope that they will be able by the capture of Veles to compel the Bulgarians who advanced west of Uskup to retire and clear the Saloniki-Mitrovitza railway so assistance can be sent to the Serbian northern army.

All assistance that reached the Serbians apparently must be sent by the British and French.

Despite the defeat of the Zaimis government and triumph of Venizelos in the Greek chamber there is no evidence that Greece intends to change her policy. It was reported today that M. Zaimis had undertaken to form a new cabinet but this lacks confirmation as dispatches from Athens are being much delayed.

There also is lack of news concerning the Russian expedition which was reported early in the week on the Rumanian frontier, while Rumania like Greece, is maintaining her neutrality in the face of agitations in the country for intervention. Russia, however, is preventing the Austro-Germans from dispatching any additional troops from her front to the Balkans. The Russian armies have successfully countered Field Marshal von Hindenburg's efforts to reach Riga from the west and are attacking both west and south of Dvinsk and on the Styr and the Stripa rivers.

In the Dvinsk sector the Russians are advancing a little westward but on the two southern rivers there is no change in the positions, the armies of neither side seemingly being able to make any progress although they are launching heavy attacks.

In the western zone the Germans continue their attacks against the new French positions in Champagne but here, likewise, little ground is being gained.

Renewed activity in Gallipoli makes the impression prevail that another big attempt will be made to open the straits.

Protest Against Carothers' Presence.

By the Associated Press.

Douglas, Ariz., Nov. 6.—Gen. Alvaro Obregon, the Mexican military chief, who arrived at Agua Prieta to put under way a campaign against Francisco Villa, took opportunity in a conference with Gen. Frederick Funston of the United States army today to protest against the presence in Mexico of George Carothers, an agent of the state department, who is regarded by Mexicans as an active agent of General Villa.

LORD KITCHENER OFF TO VISIT BALKANS

BRITISH AUTHORITIES SEIZE PLANT OF LONDON GLOBE, WHICH HAD BEEN BITTER IN ATTACKS ON ADMINISTRATION METHODS.

By the Associated Press.

London, Nov. 6.—"Lord Kitchener, at the request of his colleagues, has left England for a short visit to the eastern theatre of war."

This announcement, made this evening after a cabinet council, an unusual meeting for Saturday and a long audience which Premier Asquith had with the king, set at rest the rumors current as to the war secretary's present intentions.

Later an additional official statement was issued as follows:

"The statement that Earl Kitchener has resigned his post as secretary of state for war already has been authoritatively denied. It is equally untrue to suggest that Earl Kitchener has tendered his resignation or that his visit to the king had any relation to any subject or that his visit to the eastern theatre of war in any way betokens that such resignation is contemplated.

"On the contrary, this visit is undertaken by him in discharge of his duty as secretary of state for war, which duty he has no intention of abandoning."

Almost simultaneously with the announcement of Lord Kitchener's proposed visit to the east the authorities seized the printing plant of the London Globe, together with the issues of yesterday and today. This is the first action of the kind taken by the authorities since the outbreak of the war against a daily paper in the United Kingdom. Some weekly papers, both in England and in Ireland, including the Labor Leader, were similarly treated some time ago, but the Labor Leader, after a secret trial of the case, was allowed to resume publication.

The Globe, while one of the oldest papers published in the country and long considered a staid and conservative organ, has latterly lost that character and has been chiefly noted for its violent attacks on public men during the administration of the liberal government. It has been one of the government's bitterest opponents and has since the war attacked virtually all of the members of the government. On Friday it bitterly attacked Sir Frederick E. Smith, the new attorney general, whom it had heretofore supported and who the evening before had defended Premier Asquith against what he described as "discreditable personal attacks."

The Globe also published a report of the resignation of Lord Kitchener, this being based chiefly on the fact that the war secretary had been received in audience by the king Thursday night and a brief announcement in a morning paper that a change of the utmost importance was about to take place in the conduct of the war.

The Globe is edited by Charles Palmer, for many years its parliamentary reporter.

The announcement that Lord Kitchener is to visit the east did not come as a surprise. It was generally believed when it became known that he was about to undertake a mission that the Balkans would be his destination, for there is no man in the British empire better equipped with a knowledge of near eastern affairs, military or political ,than he.

It is thought that his activities will not be confined to this theatre of war, however, but that he will visit Egypt to inspect the defenses of the Suez canal against a possible German or Turkish attack; Mesoptamia, where the British expedition is doing bigger things than was expected of it and is now nearing Bagdad, and the Dardanelles, where steps are being taken to push the operations to a conclusion.

Besides this, it is understood that his duties will include efforts to coordinate the work of the general staffs of the allied armies.

SUMMARY OF WAR

Field Marshal Earl Kitchener, secretary of state for war and the leading military figure in Great Britain, is on his way today to the scene of the fighting in the near East, where it is expected he will delve deeply into conditions and adopt measures by which it is hoped in the entente capitals the situation may be worked out of the tangle in which it appears to be involved at present.

Following yesterday's statement that Earl Kitchener would be absent for some time from the war office there came today after the British capital had indulged in much speculation as to what the news meant, an official announcement that the field marshal had left for a "short visit" to the eastern theatre of war "at the request of his colleagues." It was definitely stated in a previous announcement that the secretary of war has not resigned nor even tendered his resignation.

London newspaper opinion seems to run quite generally to the belief that Earl Kitchener's chief activities from now on will be in the field or at least close to the scene of actual hostilities and there is even the positively expressed opinion in some quarters that he will not again return to the war office, acting possibly as chief or as a leading figure of a general staff for the allied forces.

The Balkan campaign is apparently nearing a climax. Nish, the fortified city, so long the Serbian temporary capital, has fallen before the Bulgarian thrust from the east at the bravely battling but constantly retreating Serbians, while from the north the Austro-German forces are pressing down upon King Peter's forces. Krallevo on the western Morava has been taken. Varavin was captured and with it more than 3000 Serbians, while at Krivivir the Bulgarians and the Teutonic forces have formed a new junction. The Greek cabinet situation, which has a close bearing on the course of the events in the Balkans still is unsolved and the latest advices indicate that possibly M. Zaimis will continue to head the Greek ministry at King Constantine's urgent request.

On the Russian front the Germans are again on the defensive near Dvinsk, but claim to have scattered all the Russian attempts to break through their lines. Further gains in the Southern section, notably along the Stripa, in Galicia, are claimed by Berlin.

Hard fighting continues in the Champagne district in France, a trench or a section of one here and there occasionally changing hands, but without notable gains of ground by either the French or the Germans.

An official communication issued by the Russian war office claims the capture by the Russians of 8500 prisoners as the result of a surprise attack near Sienikowce, on the Stripa river in Galicia. The Austrians essert that in the fighting at Sienikowce they captured 6000 men and 50 officers. Vienna also says that two strong attacks by the Russians against the Stripa front of the Austrians collapsed, the Russians sustaining heavy losses.

A news dispatch says that an official statement issued by the Serbian legation at Athens under date of November 5, estimates the Bulgarian losses in killed and wounded up to the present at 100,000.

MUSICAL PROGRAM—CAVALLO'S 40-PIECE BAND AND FOUR SOLOISTS—Sunday, November 7, 3 to 5 p. m.

1—March—Texas Cotton Palace Trumpeters.....P. A. Cavallo
2—Overture—Il Guarany .....A Carlos Gomez
3—Echoes from the Metropolitan Opera House Air .....Tobani

Note—The arranger has collected here a series of incidents from various operas, those in the repertory of the Metropolitan Opera House, and has cleverly strung them together so as to make an effective whole. The collection begins with "La Reine de Saba," followed by "Tannhauser," "Evening Star," "Nibelungen," "Paglaccia, "Invitation a la Valse," "Cavaleria Rusticana" and the "Second Hungarian Rhapsody."

4—Greetings to Spring .....Strauss
"Texas" (written especially for the Texas Cotton Palace and dedicated to the people of Texas) .....Irving Berlin
(Cavallo's Quartet)

Intermission—Ten Minutes.

5—Grand Selection from Verdi's Opera .....Luisa Miller

This opera was first produced in Naples, Italy, in 1849, and owing to its beautiful melodies, was an instantaneous success.

6—Music from Friml's Musical Farce "High Jinks".....
"Intro," "Chi_Chi," "Love's Own Kiss," "Not Now, but Later," "When Sammy Sang the Marseillaise," "Tingle-ingleing," "I'm Through with Roaming Romeos," "The Bubble," "The Dixiana," "The Rise" and finale, "Love's Own Kiss."
7—Soprano Solo—"Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark".....Pishop
Miss Edna Bradford. Flute Obligato, Sig. Madonna.
8—Excerpts from Victor Herbert's "Fortune Teller," (Xylophone)...
.....Mr. Venuto

Sunday, November 7, 8 to 10 p m.

1—March—"Stars and Stripes" .....Sousa
2—Overture—"Tannhauser" .....Richard Wagner

Richard Wagner, born May 22, 1813, at Leipsic; died February 13, 1883, at Venice. The "Tannhauser" overture is too well known to need any extended resume, but a brief recital of the principal theme, as shown in the present transcription, may be acceptable. It opens with the sedate, Gothic-like Pilgrims' chorus, which serves as an introduction. This is at first given out in subdued, chant-like manner, and afterward expanded into a majestic anthem, with the melody in the brasses and singularly wierd, shimmering counter_figure in the clarinets. The second theme is the sweeping song of love which Tannhauser's sings at the contest in the Wartburg castle. The melody is in the clarinets, with an accompaniment scored for full band. After an intense development, which halts for a moment to make way for Venus' enticing song, a return is made to the Pilgrims' chorus, swelling into the mighty paeon which brings the overture to a close.

3—Contralto Solo—"My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice".....Miss Allen
4—Grand Pot Pourri d'el Opera "Carmen"—Terminating with the death scene of Act IV.

The opera has a rather mournful history in that Bizet, the composer, never heard it performed. He tried in vain to have it accepted at the Paris Grand Opera, but the work was rejected as being unmusical in its orchestra score. What the orchestralists of today play with facility those of the day of Alexander Bizet could hardly comprehend. Paris, some time after the composer's death, took up the work, and it met with tremendous favor. Indeed, it is related that the populace on the day after the first performance went to the tone poet's grave in such numbers that the flowers they brought completely hid the tomb from view. Alexander Bizet was born October 25, 1838, died June 3, 1875.

Intermission—Ten Minutes.

5—Reminiscences of Verdi .....
.....Solos by Messrs. Rinaldi, Rao Margadonna and Decimo
6—"The Death of Custer"...Descriptive American and Indian Fantasy

Synopsis: 1—Sioux Indian War Dance, night before the battle. 2—Bugle calls in Custer's camp before forming the line of march. 3—Custer's cavalry on march to Sioux's camp, the sound of horses' hoofs in the distance. 4—Approach of cavalry with band playing "national airs," the Indians responding with their customary war music. 5—Battle of "Little Big Horn," June 25, 1876, in which our great general lost his life. 6—Indians, rejoicing over the victory with scalp dance. 7—Arrival of reinforcements, General Bentine and cavalry. 8—Custer's burial, volley of shots, muffled drums and bugle sounding the last call over our great general's grave. Finale—"Nearer My God to Thee."

7—Spinning Chorus from the Opera "Martha".....Cavallo's Quartet
8—"King Dodo" .....Luders

Introducing "A Jolly Old Potentate," "Look in the Pook and See," "For Love I Live Alone," "The Cats' Quartet," "The Gems I Prize," "Serenade" anl "The Tale of a Bumblebee."

Historical Pageant Is Newest and Greatest of Cotton Palace Features

Waco's past was rescued from Father Time and joined hand in hand with the living present in order to amuse and instruct the thousands at the Cotton Palace yesterday afternoon. From the time before Waco was born and even before the Huaco Indians roamed the picturesque wilderness, when the fairies and elfs consorted with the foster spirits of Waco-to-be, the history of the city's past was portrayed by 600 characters, on a gigantic scale, with a wealth of detail and with an elaborateness that was only matched by the realism of the whole pageant.

The visitors crowded the new 5,000-capacity grandstand and flowed by the hundreds around the racetrack, where the historical revue was staged. True to the realistic spirit of the pageant, it was held on the grounds where formerly stood the Ross home of days agone, famous in local historical lore.

Seldom, if ever, have better outdoor scenic effects been arrived at in the Southwest. Just across the racetrack a huge sheet of canvas was unrolled as a dancing floor. To one side Lovers' Leap could be seen, rugged rocks rearing their heads aloft. A short distance from Lovers' Leap, Huaco spring was placed, trees and shrubbery being used around it very effectively. Music was furnished by Alessandro's band, which was ensconsced behind a barrier of shrubbery, set in front of Lovers' Leap.

The young people did well. Effects of earnest rehearsing were shown by the smoothness in which each episode passed off. Much of the credit for the successful performance must be given to Mrs. J. W. Hale, specially in charge; Mrs. W. O. Wilkes, general chairman for the woman's department; Mrs. A. W. Koch, secretary of the woman's department, and the loyal Waco women, who, simply because they wanted the pageant to succeed, worked hard in drilling the children and young people for the various episodes.

It was an auspicious opening for the new Cotton Palace grandstand, bringing, as it did, the largest crowd that has ever been seen in the afternoon of any opening day in the history of the exposition.

First Episode.

Over the sparkling waters of Huaco spring, the autumn sun was slowly setting. All was quiet, for the foot of man had never yet trod the forest glade. Soft strains of music floated out on the balmy air and the spirit of autumn, portrayed by a beautiful little girl, dressed in autumnal browns and yellows, came dancing out scattering the sere and withered leaves that she brought with her. From the spring, a huge green frog came jumping, very realistically.

Only witches and Brownies played around the limpid waters and stood under the shadows of Lovers' Leap. The witches walked slowly and mournfully around, while the little Brownies tumbled and leaped about in an abandon of joy. Soon, however, the Brownies played less enthusiastically, for Winter appeared in the shape of an exquisite little maiden all in pure white, with white furs, who scattered snow, just a small amount of it, for the sunny Southern climate did not allow of too much cold. And with Winter's advent, lumbering black bears appeared on the scene, their grotesque movements adding another realistic touch.

And then came Spring, and rose in hand, scattered the rosy petals in abundance. She had garlands of red roses hung about her and in her hair. Swarms of little butterflies fluttered in, each butterfly a charming tiny maiden, dressed in some bright color, with her wings glistening in the bright sunlight. Other little ones appeared as grasshoppers, the group blending into a wonderful kaledioscopic picture, embodying all the colors of the rainbow. Graceful fairies danced into the picture, and, following them, the fairy queen was drawn in her magic chariot by a number of gaily garbed attendants.

Leaning on a staff, his long white beard streaming down over his manly bosom, Old Father Time appeared as the spirit of prophecy, the part being taken by Tom M. Hamilton. In eloquent language, he told of the days when only the woodland elves haunted beautiful Huaco Springs, and drew a picture of the life to come, the In-

CAPACITY OF COLISEUM TAXED WHEN GOVERNOR FERGUSON, MAYOR RIGGINS AND PRESIDENT SANGER INAUGURATE WACO'S GREAT ANNUAL EVENT

QUESTIONS OF DAY ARE DISCUSSED BY GOVERNOR

Makes Clear That He Stands With President Wilson in His Policy of National Preparedness—Dr. E. E. Ingram Delivers Invocation—Ball Follows Opening.

With Governor James E. Ferguson, Mayor J. W. Riggins and President Asher Sanger of the Cotton Palace as the line-up of speakers and the great coliseum crowded with eager auditors, the sixth opening of "the south's most unique exposition" was formally celebrated last night.

The governor, as the honor guest, first paid a high tribute to the exposition as one of the great institutions not only of this section but of the whole state as well, and then launched into some of the pressing questions of the day. In the latter vein, Mr. Ferguson took occasion to say that he with President Wilson on his plan for national preparedness with reservation, saying that he did not want war but safety if war should come, and scored W. J. Bryan as being traitorous in his fight against the president's defense policies. The governor made himself clear on his attitude toward the administration's preparedness plan without compromise or qualification.

President Sanger was enthusiastic in his outlook for the Cotton Palace this year and paid tribute to the people and the city who had made its great success possible.

King Cotton, as a monarch who thrives by the arts of peace and not by the devastation of conquest, received an eloquent tribute from Mayor Riggins. He reviewed briefly the progress that this state has made and predicted steady commercial and agricultural progress in the years to come.

Dr. E. E. Ingram, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, delivered the invocation which opened the formalities of the evening. He offered thanks to the diety for the bounteous blessings which were typified by the exposition and which the people of the state enjoy.

Governor Ferguson was introduced by Mayor Riggins and made the concluding address of the formal opening exercises.

He spoke as follows:

"Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:—As governor of the greatest state in this American union, standing in the presence as the mayor has said, of some of the best people in the world, as the incumbent of a state office, it is my great pleasure and pride to be present at the sixth opening of

SIXTH COTTON PALACE OPENS WITH ATTENDANCE OF 15,022, DOUBLING ANY PREVIOUS YEAR

Gov. James E. Ferguson Formally Launches Sixteen Days of Pleasure and Profit With Laudatory Speech—Added Features and Facilities Have Augmented Appeal of Show.

EXPOSITION FACES ITS GREATEST SEASON

Addition of Racing and Football Mark Opening of a New Era for the South's Most Unique Exposition—War Path Is Better This Year Than Ever—Two Parades Feature Opening Day.

OFFICIAL PAID ATTENDANCE OPENING DAY 15,022

With an attendance on opening day that refused to take any previous records as a criterion, practically doubling the highest number reached in the past, yesterday ushered in the sixth annual Texas Cotton Palace—heralded by the 15,000 who saw—the peer of all predecessors. With a third more ground, many new outstanding features, the exposition was definitely planned to be the greatest in its history and opening day attested to the success of the plans.

Waco was in Cotton Palace mood yesterday. The streets were in gay trimmings and a sea of joyful people flowed toward the towers of the exposition throughout the day. Unlike the previous opening days, the great historical pageant drew 7,000 people in the afternoon before the Palace was formally opened, and even in the early morning the mammoth cotton parade attracted its hundreds. Six hundred costumed characters participated in the open-air revue of Waco's progress from the wilds to its present growth. As one of the greatest pageants of its kind ever attempted in Texas, it proved a wonderful drawing attraction for opening day crowds.

Gov. James E. Ferguson with his personal staff, Mayor J. W. Riggins and President Asher Sanger of the Cotton Palace were the leading figures in the formal opening of the exposition in the coliseum last night. Each speaker struck the note of the greatness of the Palace this year.

Myriads of frosted lights, countless like the stars of heaven, shone out from the graceful curves of the Palace buildings last night and suggested the veritable fairyland of joy and gladness that the realm of King Cotton was on opening night. Happy, contented, prosperous, the crowds wove back and forth through the Warpath and the devious windings of Funland byways and then into the main building and coliseum. Old people were young and free-hearted again and Joy was rampant in the hearts of the young. Cotton Palace time had rolled around again.

After the formal opening addresses, the spirit of Terpsichore took supreme command and an informal dance was the order of the evening. A finely waxed floor, a wealth of leafy decorations, and the dreamy waltz strains from a large orchestra left nothing to be desired for the dancers.

More than 15,000 persons passed through the gates at the Cotton Palace grounds. This number was nearly double the then record-breaking attendance of 8,763 last year. The wonderful increase of the attendance on opening day is taken by the Cotton Palace directors as an augur of the success that is in store for the whole 1915 season.

Good times and the hopeful attitude of the people of Central Texas, with their optimism bolstered by good prices tor cotton and record grain crops, are assigned as the principal reasons for the remarkable attendance for the opening day this year. The fact that in the publicity campaign of this year the opening day has been featured, and the further fact that the historical pageant inaugurated this year without doubt drew a great portion of the extra crowds, are given due credit as contributing causes.

The exposition was spick and span for the reception of the first visitors when the gates were swung open at 8 o'clock. By working all night Friday the work of installing the exhibits had been finished, and the litter of packing cases cleared up. The Cotton Palace grounds, always a charming park, seemed even more beautiful in the hazy morning air, with an air of delightful expectation evident to every visitor.

Thousands of visitors visited the Warpath, with its new attractions, and this heart of the Cotton Palace was pronounced satisfactory.

Probably 20,000 persons who thronged the downtown streets for the two parades yesterday in addition to glimpsing the more elaborating decorating scheme for the city's thoroughfares were treated to some of this year's innovations which from the start have stamped the 1915 exposition as truly bigger and better.

The whole city is in gala attire. Decorations of store fronts this year are particularly elaborate. Typical of the extra effort that has been expended by the citizens of the city in preparing for the carnival season is the magnificent illumination scheme of the city hall, which evoked many expressions of admiration from the thousands on the streets.

President Sanger Pleased.

"It is useless to say that I am more than pleased with the opening day," said President Asher Sanger last night. "It is going to be the greatest Cotton Palace of them all. The entire directory of the Cotton Palace is entnusiastic over the prospects for the season.

"Much of the great success is due to the rehabilitated opening day program. Heretofore there was nothing doing during the day on opening day. Exhibitors and concessionists took the morning to finish their establishments. The historical pageant in the afternoon of the opening day is the greatest thing that could have been done for the Cotton Palace.

"I am thoroughly convinced that the Racing and Football Days will see new and astonishingly high records set."

Big Verdict Rendered.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, Nov. 6.—The financial difficulties of the San Antonio, Uvalde and Gulf railroad were in part responsible for the failure of the Bankers' Trust company, according to the testimony today of John E. Franklin, former president of the latter. The Bankers' Trust company owned stock in small-town banks in Missouri and Arkansas. It now is in the hands of a receiver. Mr. Franklin testified in the suit of Harry C. Morrow to recover $99,000 which he invested in the company.

A jury tonight returned a verdict in favor of Morrow for $103,388 against Franklin, Charles S. Marsh, Lester S. Parker and Joseph P. Graham, all officers of the trust company. The verdict includes the amount sued for with interest.

Mayor Proclaims Municipal Holiday Waco Day Tuesday

The following proclamation, setting aside next Tuesday as a holiday in honor of Waco Day at the Texas Cotton Palace, has been issued by Mayor J. W. Riggins:

"As a prophetic finger-board, the sixth sentence ever written about the Texas Cotton Palace was the following:

"'When this Cotton Palace is opened, tens of thousands of people will be present to see King Cotton on his throne in the appropriate palace.'

"This thought was born, as it were, by inspiration, and is propagated by the wide-awake citizens of Waco. We thus unfurl a banner to the world with this inscription upon its folds: 'Cotton Palace, the Throne of King Cotton, Located in Waco, Texas.—The Admiration of the World.'

"The above sentence was a part of the description in the first article concerning the Cotton Palace in 1894, therefore, it becomes us as the citizens perpetuating the memory, the grandeur of King Cotton to pay a suitable tribute and homage to the commercial ruler of Texas; therefore, this Proclamation to the Citizens of Waco.

"That you close your stores, places of business, offices, factories and workshops and cease from all labor and do homage in the perpetuation and proper celebration of the event of the annual celebration of King Cotton. All eyes of the enlightened citizenship of Texas turn to watch your loyalty and patriotism and celebration of Waco Day in honor of King Cotton.

"We proclaim a holiday of all the employes of the city of Waco and that you report to the head of your departments that you may take such position in the celebration of this great event.

"The hearts and the hands and the voices of Waco should proclaim in one happy accord this joyous event and cease from all toil and suitably celebrate this occasion, it being the 9th day of November, 1915, joining with not only your voices but your presence at the Cotton Palace.

"Let us show to the world that we have two homes, one where we live with our families and the other our town in which we live, and we show by this celebration our loyalty to our home, our town and each other.

"This proclamation is issued in the spirit of good will, prosperity, peace and happiness.

"Signed in the office of mayor of Waco this, the 6th day of November, 1915.

"J. W. RIGGINS, Mayor.

"Attest—JOHN C. DAVIS,
"City Secretary."

the Texas Cotton Palace, another state institution of equal dignity and force. (Applause.)

Palace State Institution.

"There was a time, perhaps, in the early stages of the development of this organization when it might have been urged that yours was a local institution, but ere you had been two years' old your activities and your usefulness, and your influence in developing the industrial and commercial advantages of your metropolis made you at once an institution of statewide importance and statewide dignity and you are now so recognized all over the broad state of Texas. (Applause.)

"I am sure that those of you who this afternoon witnessed the grand historical pageant, wherein were shown the history and the stages of your development vividly upon the field of action, I am sure it must have been a great source of pride to the people of this city to see how you have started with so little, and how you have at last amounted to so much. (Applause.)

Compliments Pageant.

"I want to say in my opinion that the historical pageant which was portrayed this afternoon is something that you ought to repeat again and again. Not only is it important to the people of Waco, but it represents by a vivid and natural object lesson the growth of the civilization of Texas, and the trials and troubles under which that progress has been made by our great people.

"The question of a Cotton Palace, the idea of a fair, is not a new idea. Its idea is as old as the hills. It has been ever found essential in the upbuilding and the advancement of any country which laid claim to the name of a higher civilization. If every manufacturer stayed in his factory; if every merchant stayed in his store; if every farmer stayed upon his farm, the world would long grope in darkness before man would realize and appreciate his own capacity and ability. And hence away back yonder, so far back that the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, it was found essential that men should have some way, some manner and some plan whereby they could measure by the achievements and accomplishments of the other how they stood as compared with the other in that occupation.

"And so the fair idea of the Palace has been recognized in all ages as necessary to the development of a higher civilization. Many times in Texas people thought they could do without a state fair, but just as often as they began to disregard and forget the idea of county fairs and state fairs, just so often did the people begin to recede and fail to make that progress which this country is capable of being the foundation of. And so the Cotton Palace of Waco, now a state institution, is but the perpetuation and the recognition of an old idea essential in all ages for the upbuilding of the country.

"My friends, we have got a great country. Perhaps some of us do not realize sometimes just what the possibilities of this country are. Perhaps we live within ourselves sometimes so much that we do not look around us and learn what the country is capable of doing.

"I made this statement once before, and I make it again, because it is an important truth. I say that you might get on a train at Waco and ride down through Southern Texas, across to New Orleans, and up the Atlantic coast to New York City; you could then take the New York Central and go across the continent to Buffalo and to Chicago; you could then ride down through the central states of Iowa, Nebraska, Oklahoma and back to Waco; on every fifty miles of that journey you could take your notebook and make full and copious notes of the occupation an dthe vocation of the different people who lived along that entire circular journey; and when you got back home you would find, to your great astonishment, that everything that everybody else did in that thousands miles' journey was done by the people of Texas, and done better than anybody along the line. (Applause.)

Texas Wonderfully Rich.

"And in addition to all the other vocations of the different people, you have King Cotton to crown this great achievement lord of all, to make us yet the great hosts of commercial warriars to lead the world in intellectual, educational and financial advancement. (Applause.)

"The Central Texas farmers produce and sell $150 per capita for every man, woman and child that lives in the confines of Central Texas. In other words, every year that rolls over our heads the farmers of Central Texas, the producers of cotton, produce about four times the circulated medium of the people. No other country in the United States can lay claim to such an achievement. And so the question is that we at once must admit that we have mighty possibilities in the world, so placed by nature that it shall require only the ambition of a great people and the plastic hand of man to make us the most prosperous people upon the top side of God's green earth. (Applause.)

"We can do it. We have just begun to learn what we can do along this line. We have just begun to realize the mistakes that we have made in the past, and we will not repeat them in the future. You have seen much here at this Cotton Palace to demonstrate what I am saying to you. The home products department proves to the most skeptical that Texas needs only to realize that we can feed and support ourselves, and we can do it by simply making up our minds that we are going to do it.

"We have not done it in the past. In my county, Bell county, where I was raised, farmers of that county have been buying $600,000 worth of bacon a year up to a few years ago. Farmers of McLennan county have been doing the same thing. But we have begun to realize that we ought not to do it, and the time is soon coming when we have the finest and the greatest hog and lard producing section in the world. And in other departments we will meet the situation, and feed ourselves, and have King Cotton as a surplus as a money crop. (Applause.)

Story with a Moral.

"I want to tell you a story. Perhaps there are people in this audience who have heard me tell it before. But it is an old, old story, and it is so pertinent to the proposition that I am talking about that I am going to take the liberty to tell it again, to illustrate the fact that the people of Texas have not availed themselves of the opportunity to capitalize their own resources, but have made the mistake of going into other countries to buy something that they ought to have raised in Texas.

"It is the story of a politician talking to the farmers of Arkansas. He says: 'The trouble with you farmers in Arkansas is that you don't live at home. You are continually buying something, and you never sell anything. He says: 'Now, for instance, you awake in the morning to the alarm of a Connecticut clock; you get up and button your Chicago suspenders to your Detroit overalls; you go out and wash your face in Cincinnati soap in a Pennsylvania wash pan; you sit down to a table made in Grand Rapids, Michigan, and for breakfast you eat Chicago meat, cooked with Kansas City lard, and Tennessee flour, cooked upon a St. Louis stove; you go out and put a New York bridle on a Kentucky mule, fed on Iowa corn; you go out and plow a farm all day covered with a Massachusetts mortgage, with a Chattanooga plow; and when you return to your home before you go to bed read a Bible printed in Boston, and read a prayer written in Jerusalem; and you crawl under a blanket made in New Jersey, to be kept awake all night by a damned dog, the only home product on the farm.' (Applause.)

"Now, my friends, the home department, manufacturing department, of the Cotton Palace proves that we need not make those mistakes about which I have told you, and it only takes a determination upon the part of the people of Texas to realize and utilize their own natural resources to make us the most prosperous and happy people in the world.

Problems Before the State.

"We are beginning to meet problems that confront us. Today I know you wre inspired by the progress that has been made in educational lines in Texas. We are just beginning to realize the necessity of popular education. The people have realized that regardless of the price the masses ought to be educated, and that it is the province and the duty of the government to meet that issue, and to see that every child in Texas shall receive a free education, not as a matter of charity, if you please, but as a matter of duty which the citizens owe to the individual to educate the masses. I shall be glad to see the day in Texas when every child shall be guaranteed an education, and the right to study a free school book, furnished by the people of Texas, manufactured and printed in Texas. (Applause.)

"With these high ideals and these high ambitions prompting us, we are going to have the greatest government in the world. (Applause.)

"Perhaps at this time it would not be out of place, and to be entirely frank with you, I think it is entirely in place, for me to talk to you about some of the important matters that are now confronting the people of the American union.

"I take it for granted that every man and woman within the sound of my voice wants to see this great prosperity of our people and the great institutions of education perpetuated and maintained in Texas. I take it for granted that the love of your country prompts each and every one of you to hope that a land of liberty and democratic ideals and democratic institutions shall be a heritage which you shall be allowed to hand down to your children and your children's children. And so the question of the protection of this republic and the high ideals upon which it was founded is at all times a pertinent question for discussing where freemen meet to discuss those things which pertain to the happiness of our home and fireside.

"So I say we ought to discuss these questions. Perhaps this nation has never stood before in just such a condition as confronts it now. I see before me today thousands of people who this morning left their homes, knowing that at evening-tide, or perhaps in a day or two, that you would return to your home, and to enjoy the happiness which you have at this institution, and the pleasure in returning to your home to follow the vocation which every one of you are engaged in.

"Not so, my friends, if you please, across the water. While we have met today, while perhaps this Cotton Palace has had thousands of people cross its gate, yet you will be astonished when I tell you that perhaps equally as many people were swept into eternity across the water as the result of people not obeying the ambition to win victories of peace, and making the mistake of trying to win victories of war.

"And so I say a grave condition confronts this people at this time. And so it is the duty of every public servant to speak out boldly and plainly upon these great questions, momentous in degree, which confront your happiness and mine. The public servant who fails and who has not the courage to speak his sentiments upon a great question when a great crisis presents itself is not worthy of your confidence, and his judgment will not be safe for you to follow at any time.

"And so when I make the statement that I am going to make tonight, I realize that I may pay the penalty as the consequence of my utterance, that I may incur the displeasure of some well thinking people, but I think it is the duty of every public servant to speak plainly and boldly upon great public questions.

Hits Bryan Hard.

"So I want to say to you this: That at this time, when a great crisis presents itself to this country; when I see to the right of us is war; when I see to the left of us is war; when I see daily ultimatums and defies sent to the head of our government at Washington; when at a time the mere scratch of a match might throw this country into war; I say at this time, when this crisis presents itself to this people, that the man, whether he be high or low; whether he occupy a great place in politics; whether he be a great statesman; whether he holds a big office or not; I say that a man at this time who seeks to bring discredit upon the national government is a red flagger just the same as the man down on the border. (Applause).

"I want he world to know that I am with Woodrow Wilson for national preparedness. (Applause).

"Next year we might talk about politics and plans, but when the time comes when it looks like it is this government against some other government, I think every man ought to be loyal enough to be with his country, and uphold the powers that be, and help them to solve the great problems that come before the people at his time. (Applause).

"Oh, but you say that he matchless boy orator of the Platt, the great commoner, Billy Bryan, is against you on this proposition, and you ought not to say that. All I have got to say about Billy Bryan is that he reminds me of the fellow whose judgment always runs away with him in time of peace, and whose mule always runs away with him in time of war. (Applause).

"The very time that above all others that a great commoner, three times the nominee of the democratic party of the United States; the very time that here arises the obligation to uphold the arm of his government, he fights and runs away, and leaves the president of the United States to fight his battles alone. (Applause). I say that is treason, and if anybody don't like it they can make the most of it. (Applause). It is a time when this country has great issues, and men should stand up and tell which side they are going to be on in this great contest. (Applause).

Preparedness Vital Problem.

"Oh, but you say, what has that got to do with raising cotton? In all sincerity and candor, the people should realize that he ability of the government o protect hem and guarantee them the right to pursue their occupation of raising cotton is involved in this question, an dtherefore I think it is pertinent at this time.

"O but you say that we don't war. Well, that is true. We don't want war, no. But it is not so much a question, my friends, of war or conquest, but it is a question that while we do not want to bring about or attempt the conquest of any other country, still we do not want any other country to attenipt or be in a position to make a conquest of us, and that is the issue raised here. (Applause.)

"O but you say we are safe; that we do not need anybody prepared to protect us. My friends, don't make that mistake. The whole army of Japan is today closer to the United States than was Grant's army to the Southern Confederacy fifty years ago. It would take less time to bring 500,000 Japanese and land them on the coast of Mexico than it took John Sherman to march from the North to the South. On the north of us 500,000 men could march across the Canadian border; and in my opinion it would not take over 200,000 men in the present state of preparedness of this nation, for 200,000 soldiers to land on the Canadian border and march clear across this country to the Cotton Palace unmolested.

"I mention these matters not to scare you. I know we will meet the issue, and we will solve the question. But I mention them for you to begin to think about, and see which side you are going to get on on this great question that has come before the people.

At Home in Waco.

"My friends, it has been a great pleasure to me to be in Waco today. I do not feel like I have been among strangers. In fact, I always feel like I am at home in the city of Waco. (Applause.) I was born and raised in the adjoining county, and your history and the history of the achievement of your people is well known to me; and I have always admired the pluck and the energy and the patriotism of the people of McLennan county and their ability to take care of themselves under all circumstances.

"Some months ago, by the kindness of the people of Texas, I was honored with the office of chief executive of the great state of Texas. While in the discharge of the duties of that office I have found many things that had to be decided upon the spur of the moment, and I have had to use what little powers of discernment and discretion which the Lord gave me sometimes to decide those questions; yet upon the whole I have recognized that this was not a one-man government; that this was a democratic government, of the people, for the people, and by the people. It is a wise provision of Providence that we do not have a one-man power in this country. And it is only in the co-operation of all the people of Texas, impelled by a patriotic purpose for the advancement and the achievement of a general design that great things can be accomplished in this country.

So I want to thank the people of McLennan county for the co-operation that you have extended to me in the exercise of the duties of that office, and I want to secure your closer confidence and your help. If you have something with the government come down to Austin and let's talk about it. If you can't come, write me. Remember, my friends, I am filling your office, not my office. I am one of your public servants; and if the time should ever come that I might think myself above the people, then at that minute, I would disqualify myself to serve the people. (Applause.)

"Therefore, I invite the co-operation of all the people of Texas. And when all the people of Texas to unite upon one common design for the upbuilding of the country we are bound to succeed, and we will make this one of the greatest countries over which the sun shines by day and the stars by night. I thank you. (Applause.)

President Sanger spoke on the aims and progress of the exposition, as follows:

"Ladies and Gentlemen, Fellow Directors, Governor Ferguson and Staff:

"It is with a great deal of pleasure that we formally throw open tonight the gates of the Texas Cotton Palace, the South's most unique exposition.

"This is our sixth birthday, and you all know our motto is 'A Bigger and a Better Show.' And every director has kept that motto before him; and they have worked unceasingly day and night to make this a bigger and a better show. How far they have succeeded, I will let you be the judges.

Any organization or body, to succeed, must be one in which all members are interested and all are workers, and attend its meetings with regularity. Just as it is in principle of natural law that one stick of wood will not make a fire, so it is a fact of social law that one individual, even though he is president, cannot make a fair or Cotton Palace. Neither can a half dozen members of an organization succeed in making it successful and entertaining without a miracle. But when the members turn out and everybody turns out in full force and they carry their enthusiasm with them, taking part in its business, adding the wisdom of their suggestions, and aiding its affairs with might and main, then any organization will be eminently prosperous and successful.

Women Helped Greatly.

"This has been the story of the Cotton Palace. It started off well the first year and each administration has kept pace with the preceding one. Our good wives and sisters and the ladies in general have done so much, if not more than the men, and they deserve a great deal of the credit for what has been achieved. The directors thank each and all for their hearty co-operation and valuable help. One who has not been on the ground cannot begin to imagine the vast amount of energy, ingenuity and thought that has been expended in every nook and corner of our beautiful grounds and buildings. To each and all we express our heartiest thanks, and again especially to the women, who have done so nobly.

"The Cotton Palace has cemented our people into a united community. It has brought us all closer together; and now, that it is finished, it stands like the tent described in the Good Book, with its doors open toward all directions, north, east, south and west, and we bid you all a hearty welcome.

"We are indeed proud to have with us our good governor, and we trust that he and all our guests will have a pleasant stay in our midst. The key to our city hangs at the city hall emblazoned in light, and a big sign states to one and all, 'It is yours.'

Palace Is Educational.

"This year, as in the past, we have striven to give you an educational exposition, as well as one of fun and frolic. We also have added a race track and an athletic field, and a handsome and commodious grandstand. Our race meet will be the greatest held in Texas this year, if not in the entire south; and some of the best football games of the South will be played here during the exposition.

"We will also have a regular track meet during the exposition.

"The first directors of the Cotton Palace six years ago, some of whom are still on the board, knew well what they were doing when they named our exposition The Texas Cotton Palace. They knew, or felt, perhaps, that for the first year or two we would only have a local show, but they laid a foundation for a state exposition, and today we are not only recognized as a great state exposition, but we also are recognized as one of the greatest expositions of the South.

"I said on an occasion several months ago that the Cotton Palace was Waco's greatest asset; and today it is not only Waco's greatest asset, but is fast becoming one of the great assets of Texas, and one that all Texas may be proud of.

"We have with us the governor and his staff, and I wish to thank them for the courtesy they have extended to the Texas Cotton Palace in attending our exposition.

"We also have with us the first citizen of Waco, who will now introduce to you the first citizen of Texas. Mayor Riggins needs no introduction to this audience. I thank you." (Applause).

Mayor Riggins Speaks.

Mayor Riggins then paid his tribute to the Cotton Palace as typifying Texas' progress in an address as follows:

"Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen: For thousands of years the civilized world has drawn its information from four sources: (1) The family, (2) the school room, (3) the press, (4) the platform.

"A fifth source of information is now offered the public—expositions.

"The first spectacular exposition in this country was in New York in 1854. These expositions under various names have been a kindergarten and at them have been assembled the most advanced thought and inventions in all departments to impress upon the great public mind important lessons.

"The Texas Cotton Palace came into existence in 1894. I think it not improper to quote a few sentences from the first article written about the subject of the Texas Cotton Palace:

"'We have all said and heard time and again that cotton was King, yet few people appreciate what this means to our grand state. We have often proclaimed "Cotton is King!" and in writing the matter now we are astonished that the inspiration has never before come to any city in Texas to have a grand cotton jubilee, upon which occasion King Cotton shall be crowned king, and enthroned in an appropriate palace.

"'Careful and authorized statistics tell us that 70 per cent of the cotton produced in the United States is consumed by foreign countries. And when we follow along this thread of thought and find that Texas produces one-third of this wonderful, money producing staple, we are still more astonished that some monumental reminder has not ilfted itself far above the ordinary products.

"'It seems to have been left for the plucky citizens of Waco to lead Texas, as if by inspiration, onward and upward in the march of progress.

"'This Cotton Palace in its grandeur, in its scope, its object lessons, educational, artistic, industrial, mechanical, agricultural, scientific and commercial features; in its immigration bringing, advertising feature, capital inducing, public spirit begetting tendencies, will by no means be confined to the city of Waco, but in its management and its influence will be coextensive with the state. And the whole state will receive benefits therefrom, and it therefore appeals alike to the patriotic pride of every true and loyal citizen of our grand state.'

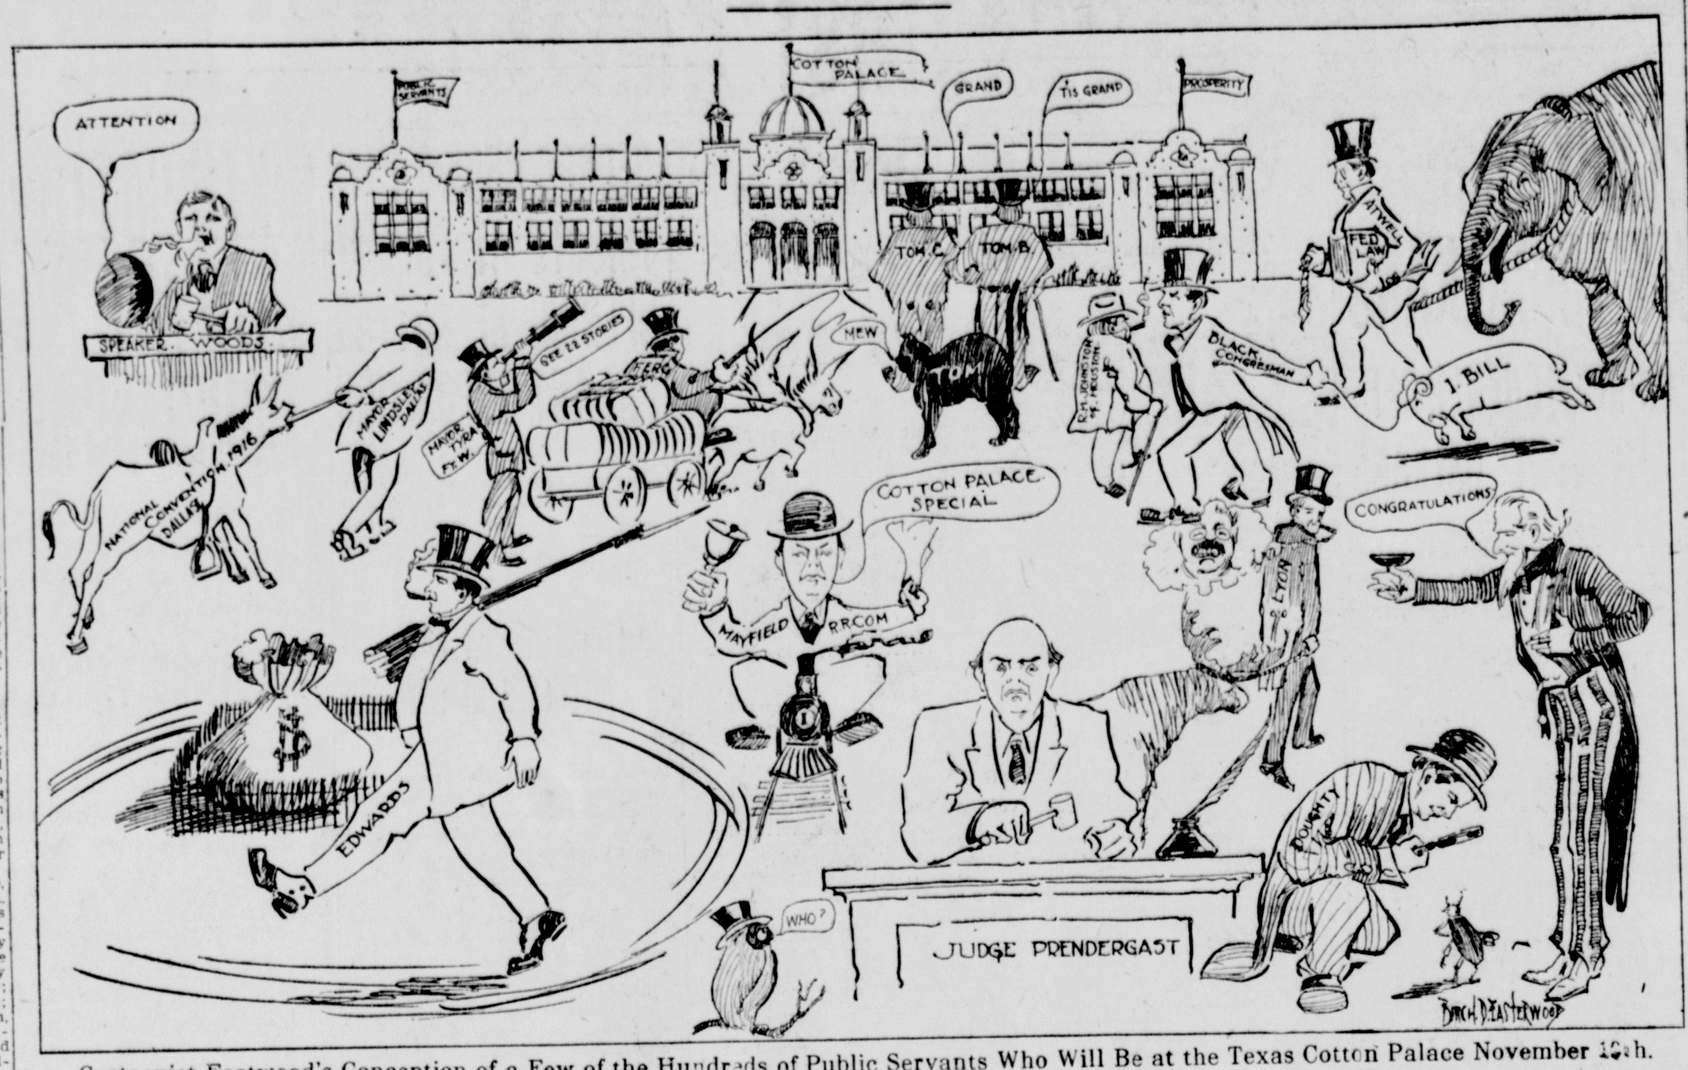

"These sentences in the first article written about the Texas Cotton Palace foreshadow the Texas Cotton Palace spirit. While the Cotton Palace itself was dormant for several years the spirit which gave it birth has grown with each succeeding year.

"Tonight the great Texas Cotton Palace opens in a great blaze of glory.

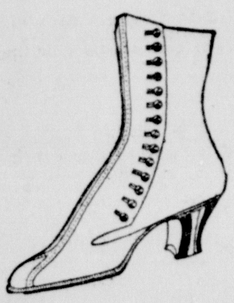

"It has never been the intention of Waco to confine its great benefits to Waco, but its wonderful stories and

NEW FEATURES MAKE COTTON PARADE ONE OF WACO'S GREATEST

The cotton parade yesterday morning which was the first public affair of the 1915 Cotton Palace, developed rather unexpectedly into an event that may prove one of the greatest features of the exposition. More than 200 farm wagons from all parts of Waco's immediate trade territory loaded with from one to six bales of cotton each, made a line two miles long which formed on the city hall square, passed up Austin avenue to Twelfth street, then down Franklin to the square again, where it disbanded. Five hundred and eighty-one bales of the premier Texas product were in the parade, and the estimated value of the cotton, with the vehicles and livestock was placed at more than $250,000. The parade started promptly at 10 o'clock under the direction of Sheriff S. S. Fleming, chief marshal.

Governor James E. Ferguson, with the hands that guide the ship of state, grasping the reins of a team of four chesty mules, drawing a wagon on which were piled eight bales of the product that has contributed much to the wealth and fame of Texas, and which gave the name to the south's most unique exposition, was greeted with applause all along the line of march by the thousands who lined the sidewalks and streets. Congressman R. L. Henry rode on one of the bales behind the governor.

The spectacular feature of the parade was the eight yoke of oxen, depicting traveling and freighting facilities of Waco twenty years ago.

Members of the governor's official staff in uniform rode perched on the cotton bales which were drawn by seven yoke of oxen. The seven-yoke team of oxen, which were handled by their owner, W. D. Dunn, a farmer who lives near Bryan, attracted much attention from the crowds, both while the parade was forming on the square and along the line of march. Seated on the bales of cotton on the wagon drawn by the oxen were Adjutant General Henry Hutchings of Austin; Colonel F. A. Chapa of San Antonio; Colonel N. H. Coombs, Houston; Colonel A. M. Ousley, Denton; Colonel John W. Durst, Tyler; Colonel Geo. S. McGhee and Colonel Richard Jurney, of Waco, all members of the governor's staff.

Mayor J. W. Riggins seated in an old fashioned and much worn Victoria, to which was hitched a pair of handsome black oxen, led the parade. Seated with Mayor Riggins was J. D. Jackson of Alpine, Texas, president of the Texas Cattle Raisers' Association, who was present by special invitation. Mayor Riggins handled his team with great success, demonstrating his claim that he had formerly "freighted" with an ox team in the good old days in Missouri.

The picturesque feature added to the parade by the old-fashioned conveyances was arranged through the untiring efforts of W. J. Neale, Cotton Palace director in charge of the parade. Mr. Neale scoured the state to find some place where oxen were still used, and some man from whom the animals could be obtained for the Cotton Palace.

W. D. Dunn, who owns the oxen used yesterday, and who handled the seven-yoke team according to all the traditions of the ox-driver, lives on his farm near Bryan, Texas. Mr. Dunn stated that he has on his farm twenty-four yoke of oxen broken to work. He uses them for plowing, claiming that they are stronger and in a day will cover as much ground as a team of mules.

Governor Drives Mule Team.

The team of mules driven by Governor Ferguson was owned by C. M. Underwood. The governor's expert handling of the reins over these unquestionably farm animals proved his right to the title "Farmer Jim" Ferguson. The governor's wagon was decorated with American and Texas flags. Signs on each side bore the legend "Our Governor—Farmer Jim." The continued applause which ran through the crowds that lined the streets as the governor passed testified to his personal popularity in Waco.

The contrast of Waco today and twenty years ago was furnished by a large motor truck carrying fifteen bales of cotton which followed immediately behind the wagon pulled by the oxen. President Asher Sanger and a number of the directors of the Cotton Palace association were passengers on some of the cotton wagons.

Alessandro's band furnished the music for the parade, as well as for an hour of impromptu concert on the streets preceding the start. Sheriff S. S. Fleming was chief marshal and was capably assisted by Chief of Police Guy McNamara, Assistant Chief Charles James and Constable Leslie Stegall. A squad of mounted police was detailed for the parade by Chief McNamara.

Preceding the parade, Governor Ferguson with his staff, Congressman R. L. Henry and others, were posed in front of the city hall while two moving picture camera men took their pictures. Moving pictures were also taken of the parade.

Farmers in Parade.

Following is a list of the farmers who participated in the parade yesterday morning, with their addresses and the number of bales of cotton entered by each:

NOCTURNAL PARADE MARKS BEGINNING OF OPENING CEREMONIES

Big, huge, mammoth, Bedlamy-noisy and thrillingly spectacular.

Those are the chief and absolutely accurate descriptives of the automobile parade last night. Fully a half thousand cars loaded with state, county and city officials and citizens were in procession.

Aside from its bigness, the noise was the first characteristic. Two bands—the Boy Scouts and Alessandro's—led with real and patriotic music. A block or two in the rear five fire engines literally tied back the whistle strings and let fire alarm screeches perforate the atmosphere for miles. Added to this, automobile drivers kept up a continuous honk-honk. All of which seemingly was echoed from 20,000 throats, vocal adjuncts of that number of people who lined the streets through which the parade passed.

The great nocturnal and steadily moving event formed in front of the New State House hotel, Franklin and Fifth street, under direction of Sheriff S. S. Fleming, assisted by W. H. Smith, B. R. Goldburg, Leslie Stegall, Tom De Cordova and A. Tobias, marshals. They performed their tasks splendidly—even magnificently for there was not the slightest halt or confusion in the entire proceedings. Sheriff Fleming had removed all complications by thorough arrangement and preparation.

From the New State House, the line kept moving eastward with a detachment of mounted police leading the van and followed by the Boy Scouts' band and a small regiment of Boy Scouts in charge of C. W. Parker, bandmaster, and Nat Hays, Scout commissioner. Alessandro's band came next. From Franklin it went north to Austin, thence out Austin to the grounds.

Governor James E. Ferguson, honor guest of the opening day of the Cotton Palace and the executive who in an address later in the evening at the Cotton Palace gave official cognizance, so far as the governor's office is concerned to the country's most unique exposition, was in the first automobile. With the governor were President Asher Sanger of the Cotton Palace, Adjutant General Henry Hutchings and Colonel George F. McGhee, of the governor's staff, and W. V. Crawford.

In the second car were G. H. Pape, Colonel Richard Jurney, Colonel Alvin Owsley and J. D. Jackson, president of the Cattle Raisers' Association of Texas. In Ralph McLendon's car third, were Colonel John Durst, Colonel F. A. Chapa and W. J. Neale. In the fourth car, the last of the governor's division of the parade, were Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Herrick, Colonel E. H. Coombs and C. H. Cox.

Other cars contained Cotton Palace directors including John F. Wright, W. T. Abernathy, W. T. Herrick, C. H. Cox, E. F. Drake, L. Migel, Clint Padgitt, W. W. Pryor, W. H. Hoffmann and F. E. Goodman.

The city was represented by Mayor J. W. Riggins and Commissioners Ben Richards, John Dollins, W. H. Cockcroft and W. J. Dunkon.

The county was represented by Judge George N. Denton, County Attorney John B. McNamara and Commissioners Charles N. Smith, R. F. Mosley, F. N. Wollenborg and Joe Boyd. President Harry M. Baine and Secretary E. F. Drake were present in behalf of the Chamber of Commerce; President B. C. Nettles and Secretary H. M. Cox, for the Rotary club; and President C. B. Harman and Secretary A. J. Eberhardt for the Ad club.

Probably of first interest after Governor Ferguson and his staff, occupying four automobiles, was the showing of the Waco fire department. The long line of fire fighters, apportioned aboard their separate equipment, was led by Fire Chief Ed Bauerle. In the chief's car also were Assistant Chief John Fuchs, Second Assistant Chief C. E. Peterson and Fire Marshal J. A. Carlisle. Waco's reputation for having the most thoroughly organized and abundantly equipped fire department in Texas was tangibly sustained by the showing made during the parade.

Bringing up the rear for numerous blocks were scores of private automobiles. The greater number were decorated, all were noisy and the occupants from first to last carried blazing fire brands.

More Ladies Wanted With Mounts for Waco Day Parade Tuesday

Sheriff S. S. Fleming, most desterous and scientific of parade directors, is making especial efforts and is laudably ambitious to make the Waco Day procession historic in the annals of the festival marches in the Southwest.

"I am particularly anxious that the mounted division make a good showing," said Sheriff Fleming. "For that reason I want to urge every lady in Waco who can secure a horse to do so and join in the great procession. It's Waco Day and the natural pride of city with which we all are endowed dictates that we give our best efforts and most industrious co-operation to making it the one great, big event of the carnival period. I would like to insist that every lady go to the especial trouble of securing a mount."

The parade is programmed to start at 10:30 sharp and is advertised to have every organization from the city hall down to newsboys in line. Sheriff Fleming has not definitely decided upon the point of formation, but thinks it probably will be at Second and Franklin streets. Definite announcement will be made Monday morning.

Notice to Subscribers.

Delivery routes in the City of Waco are in the hands of independent carriers, who buy their papers at wholesale prices. Subscription accounts are due them, not the Waco Morning News. They are under heavy bond, not only to give the best delivery service, but to pay for their papers each month. Their remuneration is the difference between the wholesale price and the retail price which they receive from subscribers. This margin of profit is such that they cannot afford to extend credit, except month by month. They are not required, and they are advised against, delivering the paper to anyone who does not pay in accordance with the above subscription terms. These carriers are all earnest, hard working men and they will appreciate any courtesy shown them.

The Morning News should be delivered throughout the city of Waco by 6:30 a. m., and subscribers failing to receive the paper at that time will confer a favor by phoning the Circulation Department, both phones 1132, and a copy will be sent by special messenger.

Any erroneous reflection upon the character, standing or reputation of any person, firm or corporation which may appear in the columns of the Morning News will be gladly corrected upon its being brought to the attention of the management.

FOR NATIONAL BUDGET SYSTEM.

Many times in the past this paper has raised its voice in behalf of a national budget for the regulation of the expenditures by the national congress and we are persuaded that we will obtain no material reduction in the expenditures of the federal government until that system is adopted. New commissions, new offices, new undertakings of various kinds, pensions, "pork barrel" appropriations and various other things have combined to bring about such an increase in our expenditures that the administration faces a serious problem in raising all the funds that will be necessary to meet its bills.

Discussing this vedy important question the Washington Post says:

"One of the principal causes of waste in the administration of the government's affairs is the reckless appropriation of money for all sorts of commissions. There are now too many government commissions. The reports that are made by these commissions are gathering dust in the storage rooms of congress. No one pays the slightest attention to the reports after they are made. The net result usually is merely the expenditure of a large sum of money, employment for a few deserving politicians, and the filing away of tedious reports.

"Estimates for the next session of congress indicate that $1,250,000 will be needed for the next. This isn't too much if the people of the country are to obtain 1,250,000 worth of real service.

"But unfortunately they are not. They are not receiving any benefit from the countless inquiries ordered by congress, which cost thousands of dollars and produce no useful results. They are not receiving any benefit from the countless commissions designed to supplement, but which really duplicate the work of the attorney general.

"The remedy is a budget system, such as is recommended by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and is in operation in most civilized and orderly countries."

And the same arguments employed in behalf of a national budget apply with equal force when urged in behalf of a state budget, though our state government has not as yet become quite so extravagant as the federal government. But we should correct our method of appropriating public funds in the state before extravagance gets such a hold upon us.

Flattery is the salt we sprinkle on the tail of vanity, declares the New York Times.

Politics produces kicking as well as strange bed-fellows, observes the New York American.

That was a fine start the Cotton Palace made yesterday and a good beginning augurs well for that which is to follow.

The value of this year's Cotton Palace over that of last year is in proportion to the value of cotton this season over that of 1914.

Nothing does more than the alarm clock to remind us that life is not an empty dream, observes the humorist of the New Orleans States.

Now that nearly every town in East Texas is getting a commercial secretary, we presume the hot air that is dispensed in that section will be of sufficient volume to ward off the chills.

THE COLLEGE AND THE COMMUNITY.

Says the Denton Record and Chronicle:

"The sacred concerts inaugurated by the C. I. A. Sunday afternoon and to be made a regular feature of the winter season are another contribution from the colleges to the welfare and the advancement of Denton. The colleges have contributed much already to the raising of the standard, musically and otherwise, as well as educationally, in Denton, and fill an important part in the civic life of Denton that is not confined strictly to the college undergraduate work. Their officers and faculties are citizens of Denton as much as they are officers and teachers, and there has been no good move in Denton in which the officers and faculty members have not taken an active part for the town's betterment. That is as it ought to be. There may have been times when the colleges considered themselves as things apart from the town. But if that spirit ever existed, it is good to know that it no longer exists, and there is a feeling mutually existent between college and town that what is good for one is good for the other, and the contrary."

Colleges, along with individuals, have come to recognize their social obligations to the communities in which they are located, and to the state and nation as well, and in many instances they are contributing everything possible to the promotion of the educational, social, civic, moral and economic welfare of the people and the communities with whom they come in contact. Through their extension services, the delivery of free lectures on interesting and important subjects, the opening of their libraries to the public, the giving of musical concerts and dramatic entertainments, and the service of their faculties and students in civic matters affecting the welfare of the communities in which the colleges are located, our higher institutions of learning are demonstrating the fact that their social contribution to their towns is greater than the economic consideration represented in the expenditures of the faculty and students.

In Waco, Baylor university is trying to serve this community just as C. I. A. is trying to do at Denton and any college community is sleeping on its rights which fails to avail itself of every public service which the college offers.

SAFETY FIRST IN WACO.

Memebers of the city administration are to be congratulated upon their action in deciding to close up a local picture show house that has failed, according to the statement of the various officers who have investigated the establishment, to comply with the local and state laws which seek to guarantee the safety of all persons who visit public places of amusement. One human life is worth more than all the play houses in the city and any house which refuses to comply with reasonable rules for safety has no claim upon the patronage of the people as long as it persists in that course and should be closed up until such time as the defects are remedied.

It is easy enough for the public to become so aroused as to demand that unsafe places be made to render themselves safe, following horrible holol causts and other tragedies, but if we are sensible as to the value of human life and prudent in the discharge of our duty we are not going to await a catastrophe to be driven to our duty. We marvel that the city authorities have not demanded greater safety in our amusement houses before now and they may rest assured that even though their action be somewhat tardy they will have the cordial support of the great mass of people who like to be entertained but who do not care to run any hazard in so doing.

Lorena had a big trade's day a few days ago in which an automobile, given away through a drawing contest, was awarded to a negro.

How uncertain a thing is fame. Here comes the Tyler Courier-Times referring to the famous paragrapher of the Houston Post as George Riley.

Comanche county farmers are selling peanuts at 60 cents per bushel. This will doubtless atone for the small cotton yield this year.

From the tenor of Mr. Bryan's remarks on the president's Manhattan Club speech, Mr. Wilson may have some domestic problems to contend with before the end of December.

Says the Lott Tribune: "Somehow a change has been wrought. We find the esteemed Waco News speaking in a humorous vein of the intrepid Cyclone Davis. We thought Cyclone was the patron saint of The News." The Morning News agrees largely with Congressman Davis on his prohibition views, but this paper has never regarded him or anyone else as a patron saint, nor does it intend to set up any human gods in the immediate future.

THE BRETHREN ARE COMING.

Having come to realize more largely than before the merits of the Cotton Palace and the pleasure of visiting Waco, the editors of Texas are coming for the Press Day exercises next Thursday, November 11, in larger numbers than on any previous year. Brother Hawkins of Stephenville is going to press a day or so early and bring his better half along; Brother Straley of Hico advises that he is almost persuaded to come, even though Mrs. Straley is out of town and can't come with him; Brother Yantis of Athens says you could not keep him away if you tried; Brother Ford of Lott declares he will come not as a substitute for the famous manufacturer but for himself, though he will accept any favors the committee might have intended for his more famous namesake; Brother Gay of Crawford avows that he has been planning the trip here for a year; Brother Fischer of Riesel is already on the way, and Brother Phillips of Milford says now that he has been advised of that good dinner at the State House he just can't afford not to be here.

And then there're Tom Lusk up of Italy, Andy McBeach of Temple, J. L. Spencer of Mart, Lee Rountree of Georgetown, and numerous others who have advised that they would be in a poor attitude for observing Thanksgiving this month if they should be denied the pleasure of mingling with their fellows of the Fourth Estate on Press Day at the Cotton Palace.

Numerous other editors are going to be here, too, some of whom have been so busy getting things ready at home so they can get off that they haven't advised us yet, but they'll be none the less welcome for all that. We have made arrangements to take care of all who come and nothing will be left undone to see that the best friends the Cotton Palace has are properly taken care of while they are with us.

THE SONS OF THE WEALTHY.

Philip D. Armour, third, began last week his work in the hog pens of the Chicago stock yards, reminds the Daily Panhandle. There his family's fortune got its start. He receives no favors, and works like any Swede or Hungarian. He is learning the business from the ground up.

Not every son of wealth thus goes through the mill. After college he may get several years of leisure and luxurious travel. Then he will be put to work at some nominal office position in the business. His heart is not in big ledgers or monthly reports, but on the golf links or steam yacht. Why should he work, with no need of earning money? And if he feels this way, what becomes of moral fiber?

The son of wealth who is willing to take hold in the hog pen must have good stuff in him. The possession and spending of money can not wholly satisfy him. Probably he wants the thrill of doing something himself, rather than merely taking what others hand out to him.

The young Croesus in the mill has one advantage that is denied the poor boy. He gets the chance to learn every department. The poor boy must do some one task over and over again. Only by luck can he get any broad conception of the industry. This blocks most men's path to success.

Much labor friction could disappear if every son of wealth were put to work beside the men. His father has felt the weariness of hard labor. He has seen at close range what life's struggle really means. To the boy who simply handles checks and reports and credits, the mechanic is a remote and alien creature. He is a mere business fact, raw material to be bought and sold like iron and leather. He can't get his point of view. Phil Armour and those like him will not merely get a better preparation for business success. They will also see and hear things concerning the working world that they ought to know about.

North Texas farmers are planting grain more heavily this fall than last. Those of this section of the state should do likewise.

Now that it has been explained by some of our coptemporaries that complaining that some one is doing you is to advertise yourself as an easy mark, we presume that fewer persons will admit that they have been duped.

Russia is the chief source of supply for the best bristles, of which it furnishes 2,700 to 3,400 short tons annually to the world's market, or about 55 per cent of the total supply. The exportation of such considerable quantities of bristles is the more remarkable since the number of swine in Russia in 1913 was only 14,200,000, while the United States had 54,000,000.

Serbia acquired as a result of the Balkan war, territory to the extent of 14,638 square miles with a population of 1,481,614. The total area of the country today is, therefore, 33,812 square miles, with a total population of 4,393,315. The new territory has been divided into twelve administrative districts, making a total of thirty administrative districts in the whole country.

Running a Modern Town

Henry J. Allen in Collier's, Tells How City Manager Has Brought Dayton Out of the Kinks in Short Time.

(Reproduced by special permission of Collier's.)

I went to Dayton to see a new thing—an American city run by a business manager under a board of citizen directors.

My curiosity to see the general manager of a city was deep. I wondered what sort of a man this pioneer in the new American profession—general manager of cities—would be. How closely had Dayton's board hewn to the purpose? Had they got a manager or had they hired a politician? Would I be greeted by the good-fellow type, with a fine breast for badges and a taste for postprandial achievement, or would he be thinking about business? He occupied a position new in American life; a man who could sit in a city hall in an ambitious city and say to a policeman "Go!" and know that he went; who could fire a sewer inspector without even asking what ward he had been selected from; who could discharge the chief of police, the superintendent of waterworks, the engineer, the treasurer; who was, in fact, the head of the government, as free to act as though he had been managing a railroad or an automobile factory; who did not have to answer to any ward organization or any political party.

When I entered the door bearing the black letters "City Manager," I found an outer room full of clerical activity. No one was loafing. A young man left his desk and came briskly to ask what I wanted. He moved rapidly, like one whose work is cut out for the day. He had the courtesy of one trained in civilized business manners. After suitable cross-examination he said I could see the city manager for a very brief period in about twenty minutes. Then he went back to work. It was a businesslike atmosphere. There were no loafers, no hangers-on, no cuspidors with indifferent marksmen making a record all over the place. The atmosphere was not tainted by the reckless use of disinfectant, that last refuge of the lazy, unregulated janitor whose job depends upon his cunning at the polls.

In twenty minutes I was talking to a lean, sharp-eyed man, City Manager H. M. Waite. I had seen his type before. I had seen men like him looking over blue prints of steel engineers in construction camps or, dressed in khaki, lugging engineers' links across desert lands, or directing the construction of bridges across mountain chasms or straightening a railroad or opening a mine. But it was the first time I had run across that type bossing a job which is usually held by a politician. Manager Waite has none of the political savior-faire. He isn't a "mixer." He didn't wring my hand or massage my elbow, and he showed the well-restrained but consuming anxiety of a busy man to get rid of me.

When he began talking about his work he warmed up. It is his second political job. He is about forty years old and has been, among other things, a civil engineer and a railroad division superintendent. One of his recent positions was as managing expert of a great mine in Virginia. Then a friend of his was elected to a responsible position in Cincinnati. He wanted some one to help straighten out the engineering difficulties of that city and Mr. Waite accepted the task. In a few months he discovered that he wasn't going to be free to work out the things that he desired, because he could not control the personnel of his organization. He could not hire his own assistants—politics had to be considered.

Dayton Is Making Good.

Mr. Waite was getting ready to go back to work for a corporation when the Dayton opportunity arrived. He already had seen far enough into public work to realize what a wonderful chance for improvement belonged to the man who could go to work for a city and be allowed a free hand to apply to public work the standard demanded by business life. He was so attracted by the idea of pioneering this effort that he sold his services to Dayton for $12,500 a year, although he might have had $15,000 in private life. And thus he started upon the uncharted sea of municipal managership. After eighteen months of it he believes that a city government planned by efficiency experts and conducted along modern business lines will endure, and Dayton's business men agree that this fact has been abundantly established.

And the big thing is not in the fact that within the first eighteen months of the new system Dayton decreased her debt $71,045 and increased her assets $407,324, without increasing her taxation; it is in the fact that she has in addition to these financial advances doubled her public service, without increasing her budget over that in vogue under the purchasing system. She has done this doubling the purchasing of dollars expended by the city government.

Before the devastating Ohio river flood came to Dayton in 1913 there had been some movement in the direction of the city-manager plan, but sentiment was not aroused. The effort was in its propagative stage when the flood arrived and disclosed the fact that Dayton's city government was largely "without form and void." Its archaic system had pursued its expensive way to the complete satisfaction of the political officeholders, experts in gaining election but proficient in nothing else.

Dayton's was the usual type of American city government where men who had no particular qualification in any line, and whom no business corporation would have employed on a basis of merit, were elected by the political-ward system to run the intricate affairs of the city.

When the flood came the so-called government broke down at every point of strain. The fierce problems of the hour found no administrative capacity at the city hall. The head of department of public safety was helpless. These officeholders knew how to manage a political campaign, how to build out of public patronage apparently an unbreakable machine for the perpetuation in office of practical politicians, but they could not manage a flood.

When the situation was at a crisis Mr. Patterson, the head of a great Dayton factory, volunteered to take charge of the relief work. He turned loose upon the situation a force trained in efficiency methods. The practical politician stepped back. It wasn't his game. The men trained to get big results without faste by use of brains and energy organized the work, brought order out of chaos, saved human life, protected the sick and injured in hospitals which were hastily but efficiently established, brought salvage to property, and, under the dire spur of the hour's need, accomplished results that were regarded as miraculous.

Then the people said: "Why can't we have this sort of efficiency in our city government every day?"

It was an hour that shook the Dayton citizen out of the ordinary inertia that had made municipal government such a picnic for the practical politicians. The demand for businesslike methods, accentuated by the calamity, sidetracked the politician. The plan to go into the market of the world's capable men and employ a manager for Dayton, just as Dayton's biggest corporations do for themselves, was stated boldly. The politician who raised his hitherto compelling voice to yell: "What? Go out of town to get some one to run us? What are we here for?" received no attention. His prestige was gone—buried with other wreckage of the flood.

So Dayton sent a committee abroad to study municipal government. In a few months she had adopted a report and was writing a charter which provided for "a competent, experienced, trained, and capable person, selected on account of his peculiar fitness and ability to handle the affairs of the city."

This man was to be chosen by a board of five citizens elected at large by the people. Then this grim thing was tossed as a challenge to the politicians who had been wont to regard Dayton as their personal snap: "Party politics are eliminated; no party designations will appear on the ballot."

To correct any accidents of popular will the charter commission provided that a recall election might be held on any or all members of the commission or on the city manager, upon a petition of 25 per cent of the registered voters.

There it was. Just as simple and clean-cut as a modern business proposition.

The commission was not to be limited in the amount it should pay the city manager. The members were told to get the right man and pay the price, and turn over to him the job of managing Dayton. Their powers over him were to be similar to those of the ordinary board of directors over a general manager. They were to give whatever time should be necessary to receive his reports, canvass the situation with him, and adopt needed ordinances.

As a matter of fact, they spend about half a day each week looking after the duties of their trusteeship as commissioners of the city of Dayton. They are all high-class men, who could not have been secured to give their full time to Dayton's business., but who are willing to give sufficient time to serve on the board and to shoulder the responsibility of government.

The city gets the benefit of high-class business judgment at a nominal salary of $1200 for each commissioner, except the one who receives the largest vote. By virtue of this he is called the mayor and has the ornamental duties of that formal title and an addition of $300 to his salary.

The whole city, shocked out of the usual mass indifference to community welfare by a common calamity, adopted the new charter without delay. To all the frantic and specious pleading that such a proceeding was "un-American" and "undemocratic," the real expert students who had written the charter replied with careful logic that since the source of power still rested with the electorate, there was no given credit for good intentions and were entitled to no especial credit for being honest.

It was as a new generation speaking—a generation accustomed to scientific method. They were hampered by no political complications and do not talk as crusaders. They are not seeking to do showy things. Manager Waite creates the impression that no temporary reaction of public sentiment will drive him to cover. He will go straight on managing the affairs of Dayton with business proficiency and with the courage of inconspicuous effort so long as he is kept on the job.

Not only Mr. Waite but the five commissioners believe that the city-manager plan has passed the experimental stage in Dayton. While effort will be made—in fact, some effort already has been made—to go back to the old system, so long as he can keep the community interested in the experiment the community will indorse the new system.

If the voters of the community lose interest in their government to the extent that they are willing to allow practical politicians again to run the city, the splendid efficiency of the present hour will greatly decrease, because no system of government, however capable of good results, can work itself. * * *

The commission is the legislative body, but it has no authority to employ any member of the city government except the city manager.

The five departments of government under the plan are called the Departments of Law, Public Service, Public Welfare, Public Safety and Finance. A director for each department is chosen by the city manager. He is not limited, as under most of the old city administration provisions, to select these officials from Dayton. He may go anywhere he wishes for his directors. Many positions in Dayton's government which require technical efficiency have been filled by trained men selected from other cities. The city government of Dayton is managed like the great factories of that city—upon a business basis, uncolored by politics.

The commission established $4,000 per annum as the price which should be paid to the directors of the various departments. Every director has been chosen because of some special fitness for the work he has to do. For the department of safety, Manager Waite had difficulty in finding the man he wanted, therefore he let the position remain vacant and until lately was not ready to fill it. He let a $4,000 job stand open for sixteen months and took care of its duties himself and saved the $4,000! It was a revolutionary thing to do. No job with a salary attached to it, big or little, was ever vacant before in the city of Dayton.

Making a Business of It.

The system has a businesslike elasticity. After a few months it was discovered that the budget estimated for one of the departments was $25,000 higher than necessary. Under the old system, had such a miracle happened, arrangements would have been made to spend the money. At the next meeting of the commissioners the budget was reduced.

On practically the same income in 1914 the city spent nearly a quarter of a million dollars for services not given under the old system in 1913.

In some of the departments double the service has been given the city under the new plan for much less money than the old government expended. As an example, in 1914 Manager Waite spent $35,300 for the removal of ashes and rubbish. This was an added expenditure. Dayton had no service of that kind in 1912. In 1914 Dayton paid over $23,000 for street repairs out of her regular income. The old method was to issue bonds for the rebuilding of streets.

The new government added $1000 per month to the street-cleaning department; put on seven additional policewomen and policemen to look after juvenile delinquents; spent $20,000 to establish a municipal agency which saved the first year $33,000 in the purchase price of supplies without sacrificing quality. It established a welfare department, doubled the number of parks and public playgrounds; laid out a bathing beach for 40,000 persons; established a perpetual adult; built several miles of sewers, much new paving; spent large sums for restoring flood damage; doubled the cost of the health department; and, despite the enormous expenditures made necessary by these added features of government, paid $50,000 on a deficit of $125,000 inherited from the old system. This they have done on practically the same income as the old government received. They have accomplished this remarkable result by increasing the purchasing power of the city's dollars.

They have guessed at nothing. Each department has been required to establish a unit-cost system and efficiency is maintained by the deadly parallel. A continuous adult is carried on.

The waterworks system had fallen to such a low state under political management that the supply was inadequate. The political control of the city waterworks showed all the characteristic faults. Now the plant has been reorganized and placed on a business basis. They are pumping greatly increased quantities of water with 200 tons of coal a month less than the old system used.

In the Bureau of Street Cleaning, Asphalt Repair, Sanitary and Storm Sewer Construction, the employment of trained engineers as inspectors, with the constant supervision of a service director, has resulted in a greater return to the city of every dollar expended than was possible under the old system where political laymen were appointed inspectors.

In the Bureau of Brick Street Repair, brick streets have been put down at an average cost of 90 cents per square yard. In the Bureau of Asphalt Repair last month 2925 yards of asphalt were laid at $0.575 per square yard, including all labor, material and supplies.

The new government has given the same recognition to the economic value of well-directed welfare work that model factories are giving. Dr. Garland, the head of the Welfare department, has shown not only broad intelligence but rare administrative capacity. Under the practical ministry of his department the death rate of babies under one year has been reduced 40 per cent. One general clinic and two tuberculosis clinics have been established. The death rate from typhoid fever has been reduced 85 per cent.

One of the wholesome departures from the ordinary vision of a city government can be observed by any visitor who walks about Dayton these days. As I passed through the more unpretentious residential sections of Dayton one day in June it seemed to me that everybody came out in the evening and worked a while in the garden. They were cultivating the waste places. The neatly kept rows of vegetables challenged my eye everywhere, and along the edge of most of these gardens was a row of flowers next to the street. The city mechanic who had moved from New York to work in the cash-register factory and the country-bred German who drove a brewery wagon were holding friendly contest over cabbages, radishes and lettuce, and the entire neighborhood was catching interest and wholesome enjoyment out of the rivalry.

I observed it as an unusual manifestation of rural taste and bucolic sentiment peculiar to Dayton people. This was before I learned that the interest in gardening emanates from the attitude of the new government. Dayton contained the usual number of vacant lots. The problem as to how these might be cleaned of their flood wreckage and kept from becoming a public nuisance was considered, and finally the city manager announced that any family or neighborhood willing to clean up vacant lots, make a limited amount of garden, and plant a row of flowers along the street side would receive city aid. If the family would promise to do the gardening, the city employed the lots. Last year 400 lots were prepared for gardens by the city. This spring 600 vacant plots of ground were plowed for families who had no means of getting ready their ground, but wanted to work the soil; six hundred unsightly disease-breeding places were turned into gardens which furnished interest and sometimes vegetables for six hundred families. Prizes were given for children's gardens, and they took hold of the movement so vigorously that the manager prepared to set apart a public market curb for the children to sell their vegetabies, a place not to be invaded by adult dealers.

Politics Unknown Quantity.

"I cannot tell you the political faith of a single director or employee," said Manager Waite. "The men were selected as heads of departments for their ability. Wherever possible I secured men trained for the particular functions which they direct. There were no political debts to be paid. Careful, expert investigations have preceded all plans. Expert engineers have worked out intelligent plans for improvements in the waterworks that look to the future harmonious development of the plant. Expert engineers are advising us in the plans for the development of a comprehensive sewer system. In a similar way we have investigated crime and social conditions, police and fire departments, parks and playgrounds, city planning, and grade elimination. In our finance department our new accounting system is the same as would be found in any large business. Our budget is scientific. Every month the head of each department receives a complete financial statement, which shows the original allowance, expenditures and balance in each account, and we keep our expenditures within our allowances."

"Will it endure?" I asked the city manager. "That will depend upon whether we can keep the masses interested," he replied.

The Dayton politicians are just beginning to recover, and while I found the business community satisfied and even elated at the success of the new government plan, many of them are beginning to take it as a matter of course, and the politician has begun to work up a feeling that it is not necessary to go out of Dayton and hire a nabob at $12,500 a year to run the town when there is a lot of local talent that would be glad to have the job at a fourth of the salary. They have begun this appeal to superficial prejudices among the laboring classes, and in June a combination was formed between the socialists and some of the union labor men to amend the charter of government. Their plan was to elect a city manager, to fix his salary at about half the present salary, and otherwise to "restore government to the people." No complaint was made against the efficiency or economy of the present city government. The whole appeal was directed to prejudice against the employment of an expensive manager from out of town who was not answerable directly to the voters. A fortunate indication in the result of the petition was that an insufficient number of names was secured, even though the effort was an organized one, to initiate a vote.

The Best Bet Yet.

The citizens' committee which instituted the new government has begun to plan effective ward organizations which will endeavor to secure an intelligent comprehension of what the government is doing and a permanent interest in its maintenance.

It is undoubtedly a better system of city government than the Galveston plan or Des Moines plan, or any of the other modifications of the government-by-commission idea. The weakness of the commission-government plan is that it leaves the selection of experts to popular vote. It is like setting out to establish a great college, electing a board of trustees and then having these trustees take the different professorships, instead of their electing a suitable faculty. Better men can be secured to give a small portion of their time.

There are in the United States, according to the last report of the census bureau, 195 cities that have a population of 30,000 or over, with an aggregate wealth as vast as their mismanagement is notorious. Sixty-nine of these larger cities and enough towns to make the total number about 250 have turned from the politics-ridden old method to the commission form in their quest for relief. They have bettered themselves, but they are not yet satisfied. Dayton's pioneering presages something better.

TALKING ABOUT THE NEWS

An Interesting Edition.

(Riesel Rustler.)

The annual industrial edition of the Waco Morning News, issued last Saturday, contained 104 pages. It is quite interesting, and it certainly reflects credit on the men who got it up.

One of Best in the State.

Abilene Reporter.)

The Waco Morning News has issued a splendid "Texas Cotton Palace and Brazos Navigation Number" of over 100 pages. The paper is filled with timely articles showing the advantages of Waco, telling of the Texas Cotton Palace and what Brazos river navigation would mean to Texas. Just to be brief about it the paper is one of the best annual industrial editions from every standpoint ever published in Texas and that is saying a lot for Texas journalism stands at the head of the list.

Creditable Home Product.

(Marshall Messenger.)

The Waco Morning News came out Sunday in an edition of 104 pages, each front page of every section being prettily bordered in cotton bales of the natural color. It is an exposition of the resources of Waco and the Brazos valley country, and is well done. It is the better done because, as we are privately advised, it is all made in Waco. The regular force of the News did the writing and the picturing and the securing of the tremendous business that appears in the edition, making it all the more creditable, as a home product. Waco, with such a newspaper, is beginning to appear on the map as something besides a black spot in the center of Texas. It is getting to be some city, just as all cities do which have strong and independent newspapers that tell the virtues of their various communities and sections. The excuse for the edition is the opening of the Cotton Palace there Saturday.

Speaks Well for Waco.

(Giddings News.)

The Waco Morning News came out last Sunday with its annual industrial edition known as the "Texas Cotton Palace and Brazos Navigation Number," with 104 pages of jam-up news and advertising. This edition speaks well for Waco and shows the support of a wide-awake town which enable the News to come out with such an edition.

A Fast Growing Daily.

(Rogers News.)

The 104-page edition of the Waco Morning News of Sunday, October 31, was a splendid advertisement for Waco and the Cotton Palace. The News is a live one and is one of Texas' fastest growing dailies.

Reflects Credit on City.

(Hearne Democrat.)

One of the most excellent special editions, both in typography, neatness, and general merit, which has come to our exchange table is the Cotton Palace and Brazos Navigation Number of the Waco Morning News. For a city of approximately 40,000 population to turn out a special edition of 100 pages, and make the showing of pretty parks, skyscrapers, public buildings, handsome homes and liberal advertising support, reflects credit on the hustling spirit of the city of Waco and upon the management of the News.

Farmers Show the City

(Farm and Ranch.)

As an example of the progress being made in co-operation between city people and farmers, it will not be amiss to mention an instance where farmers, M. Faulkner and John Ghorum, led in showing visitors the city near them.

The Texas Nurserymen held their annual meeting at Waco. At the close of the session it was announced that the nurserymen would be the guests of the Young Men's Business League for a drive over the city to see the parks, schools, colleges, attractive homes and to a barbecue luncheon in a park near the city.

Automobiles were driven up for the visitors and the man in charge of the excursion and the leader of the drive were farmers with their automobiles, who lived not in the city, but on farms, but who, nevertheless, were proud of the good roads, paved streets, parks, etc., of the city.

Good roads and automobiles are very largely responsible for this kind of co-operation, and if the sentiment continues to grow in Texas and the Southwest as it has recently, selfishness and lack of co-operation between the country and town will be a thing of the past.

So many advantages have come from good roads and farmers using automobiles that the only wonder is that every road is not good and every farmer a booster.

BEST FOR LIVER, BOWELS, STOMACH, HEADACHE COLDS

THEY LIVEN THE LIVER AND BOWELS AND STRAIGHTEN YOU RIGHT UP.

DON'T BE BILIOUS, CONSTIPATED, SICK, WITH BREATH BAD AND STOMACH SOUR.

Tonight sure! Take Cascarets and enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced. Wake up with your head clear, stomach sweet, breath right and feeling fine. Get rid of sick headache, biliousness, constipation, furred tongue, sour stomach, bad colds. Clear your skin, brighten your eyes, quicken your step and feel like doing a full day's work. Cascarets are better than salts, pills or calomel because they don't shock the liver or gripe the bowels or cause inconvenience all the next day.

Mothers should give cross, sick, bilious, feverish children a whole Cascaret any time, as they can not injure the thirty feet of tender bowels.

Poe's Baggage Joke Recalled by Death

Special to the Morning News.

New York, Nov. 6.—Though John Prentiss Poe Jr., famous ex-Princeton football star, soldier, adventurer and ex-private in the United States marine corps, was killed in France on Sept. 25, last, when his regiment, the Black Watch, was practically annihilated during the British advance in the allies' forward movement, he met the kind of death his venturesome spirit had often pictured in fancy as a befitting end.

Keenly disappointed at the lack of action he found in the Filipino insurrection, and knowing that the United States marine corps offered greater chances for excitement and adventure, he was enlisted in that branch in 1903 by authority of the then secretary of the navy, John D. Long, for the threatened war with Columbia over the Panama canal strip. That war never materialized; and since Poe could not think of "soldiering" unless there was "something doing," he was discharged from the marine corps and later enlisted in the Kentucky state militia during the Governor Goebel shooting trouble. Even duty on the "dark and bloody ground" during those troublesome times didn't bring him the excitement he craved, and he one time bitterly confided to marine corps friends, "I believe that if I ever get to hell I'll find the fires banked."

Still in pursuit of the elusive "strife," he became a captain in the Honduran army in 1907, when that country was at war with Nicaragua, and during the brief struggle got several thrills at the siege of Anapal and the battle of Buenavista. It was after the conclusion of that war that Poe, with five other Americans, who were serving in the Honduran army, became involved in some sort of trouble with the government authorities, and, for a time, their lives were in jeopardy. At the urgent request of the American consul, the U. S. S. Princeton was dispatched to the Honduran coast to aid in bringing the adventurous Americans back to "God's country," and the Princeton's cutter, on reaching shore at an agreed point, found the Americans alive and well and anxious to get back to the states.

"But my baggage," said Poe to the Princeton's captain, who had come ashore in the cutter, "what of my baggage? Please to remember that I am an officer and gentleman in the service of the Honduran government and I have much luggage."

"We'll attend to that all right," said the Princeton's commander, easily; "how much have you got?"

"Fifty-four pieces, all told," replied Poe.

The Princeton's skipper was aghast.

"Do you think my gunboat is a freighter, sir? However, I'll fetch it off for you. Kindly enumerate the pieces, and what they contain, so that I may send sufficient small boats and men to handle it."

Poe was deeply engrossed in thought for a moment as if trying to remember everything, and then said, "One pack of playing cards and an extra pair of socks."

YOU MAY NOT FEEL IT.

Eye strain often causes no pain in the eye itself. It may not even be suspected by the sufferer, but eye strain may have hideous consequences, said the optician of Levinski's Optical Department, 417 Austin avenue, Waco, Texas.

PROVIDENT DRUG CO.

ADDRESS IS ISSUED AGAINST MOB LAW

NEARLY 4000 MOB MURDERS IN THIRTY YEARS, MOSTLY IN THE SOUTH.

ONLY CURE CHANGE IN SENTIMENT

Authors of Appeal Say Are Acting Only as Good and Loyal Citizens of State.

Special to the Morning News.

Georgetown, Tex., Nov. 6.—A meeting of the presidents of church colleges in Texas was held at Waco on the evening of October 25 for the purpose of considering the question of mob lawlessness and lynching in the south. The following gentlemen participated in the conference either by their presence or by letter and the address here given is authorized by them: C. M. Bishop, president Southwestern university, Georgetown, president; S. P. Brooks, president Baylor university, Waco, secreary; J. C. Hardy, president Baylor College for Women, Belton; S. L. Hornbeak, president Trinity university, Waxahachie; T. S. Cylce, president Austin college, Sherman; H. A. Boaz, president Texas Woman's college, Fort Worth; J. D. Sandifer, president Simmons college, Abilene; W. W. Bondurant, president Daniel Baker college, Brownwood.

An Address to the People of Texas.

During the last thirty years there have been nearly four thousand mob murders committed in the United States. Of these more than three thousand have occurred in the south. In the course of these years a very large number of people amounting altogether to thousands have actually participated in the unlawful killing of persons charged with crime by shooting, hanging, burning or by some brutal combination of these modes of committing murder. Many other thousands have stood by and gazed upon these cruel deeds approvingly and with a sense of satisfaction of the spirit of vengeance and race hatred. Most of the rest of us have regarded this series of lawless crimes simply as the shocking incidents growing out of unfortunate conditions which we could not control and have dismissed them from our minds as we laid aside the newspaper which contained their gruesome story. Officers of the law have connived at these proceedings and even our best citizens have passed them by with only a few words of sorrow or denunciation. Neither refinement of sentiment, nor religious principle, nor majesty of law has availed to prevent the frequent recurrence of these crimes. Under these circumstances the sacredness of human life and liberty, even in the case of men charged with crime, has tended to be forgotten. The fundamental principles of our American social life have been ignored or scornfully abused. Respect for law and order has been dulled, conscience has been stupefied, race hatred has been increased, anarchy has been allowed to run riot almost without rebuke. The whole south has suffered in the judgment of the civilized world, and our social and moral life is threatened with permanent degredation.

We may as well face the fact, sorrowfully, but bravely, that most of the cases of lynching in this country occur in the south. The peculiar conditions obtaining in the south explain but do not justify the crime or palliate the sin and shame of it. Though some of the most brutal instances have happened in the north, the tragic significance of the vast majority which belong to the south makes it peculiarly a southern problem with which we have to deal. It is one which we, and we alone, can solve. Surely we have the grace and vigor to do it. Surely no loyal son of the south will doubt that it is our imperative duty to deal with it at once and at any cost. The complicity in it which we all must share while it continues, the consequences of it which we must bear in the scorn of the world, in the lowered standards of refined and Christian living, and in the spiritual deterioration with which it threatens the future generations of the south, compel the attention of every lover of his section and demand the most vigorous attempt to put an end at once to such brutal outbreaks of passion and lawlessness.

The cure for this deep-seated moral disease is possible only through a complete revolution of sentiment among all classes of our people. They must be brought to see that we are all disgraced by this descent of multitudes to the level of savage cruelty and lawlessness under the excitement caused by the deeds of the guilty brutes who are put to death by lynching. They must be made to feel the dreadful shame of the fact that a considerable proportion of innocent persons have thus been put to death, and that many have been cruelly killed for comparatively insignificant crimes. They must be convinced that the violence of the mob does not as some have thought, tend to decrease the number of those base deeds which have been cited as the justification of the mob. They must be restored to that self-control and love for law and order and that refinement and strength of character which alone make the highest civilization possible.

The chief agencies which can be used in carrying out this important task are the newspaper press, the pulpit and the school. This appeal is issued especially to all who are connected with these great institutions of civilization and also to all of our people who love their country and wish to serve their fellow men. Let us in honor of our beloved southland and with sincere appreciation of our duty to the generations that shall follow us do our utmost best henceforward both in public and private to put an end forever to these dreadful outbursts of vengeance and passion in which our laws have been defied, our civilization abused and the good name of our section brought into disgrace during this long term of years.

We who are sending out this appeal are acting only as good and loyal citizens of the state and the south; but we acknowledge the consciousness of some special obligations growing out of our relation to the community as instructors and guides to a portion of the youth of the country. We earnestly solicit the active co-operation of all authoritative church bodies and of all ministers and religious workers and of our fellow teachers in the common schools as well as in colleges and universities. We are happily already sure of the sympathy and support of the press, but we also appeal to all those who are connected with this great civilizing institution to give the aid of their powerful influence to a campaign for the immediate and universal suppression of mob lawlessness in the south. We also beg our honored fellow citizens, the officers of the law throughout the southland, bravely to stand for the enforcement of law and the maintenance of good order and the protection of human life as against the fury of the mob whose temporary insanity threatens to destroy the very foundations of the state. And we call upon our countrymen, men and women everywhere, to join with us in this earnest protest against violence and savage cruelty and lawlessness.

SENTENCED TO DEATH BY VILLA AMERICANS FINALLY RELEASED

FOUR MEN REPORTED KILLED BY CALLES' GUNS TELL THRILLING STORY OF THEIR NARROW ESCAPE WHILE IN THE REBEL CHIEFTAIN'S HANDS.

GENERAL NAIVE SAVES THEM

On Arrival at Naco, Two Physicians Collapse, but Dr. Thigpen Narrates Rough Treatment Meted Out While Ministering to Mexican Wounded in Battle Field.

By The Associated Press.

Naco, Ariz., Nov. 6.—Four Americans released at Villa Verde yesterday by General Villa after three times having been condemned to death, arrived on Amercian soil here today and narrated their experiences as voluntary Red Cross workers among Villa's wounded on the battle field of Agua Prieta. The party consisted of Dr. R. H. Thigpen, Dr. Charles H. Miller and two chauffeurs, A. L. Wilson and J. D. Pylant. The two physicians took to their beds upon their arrival as a result of their experiences and an all-night tramp through the mountains.

General Villa flew into a rage, Dr. Thigpen said, when he learned the Americans could not guarantee the passage of his wounded over American territory to Juarez.

"Treat the Americans as they treat us," he is quoted as having said to his aide. "Do as you please. Turn the artillery on Douglas and put these men in front of the infantry." Intercession by General Rafael Naive, coupled with fear of retaliation upon families of Villa and his subordinates in the United States was responsible for the safety of the Americans, Dr. Thigpen said.

When a subordinate reported to Villa that Carranza troops had been permitted to cross American territory to aid General Calles in defending Agua Prieta, Villa again sought vengeance upon the Americans. In a rage he heaped excoriations upon their heads and finally ordered them killed. Believing in the efficacy of prayer, the four Americans knelt among the wounded on the battlefield while the riflemen waited.

"The Mexicans about us were impressed," said Dr. Thigpen, "and the intercession once more of General Naive, who suggested the execution not be carried out until the families of Villa and his officers could be recalled from the United States.

"If you say a word to me I'll shoot you myself," said Villa.

The four Americans were marched to Villa Verde, where for the third time they were condemned to be shot. General Naive, who followed them again interceded, this time with General Rodriguez, who had arrived from Naco. Shortly afterward they were released to make their way as best they could.

Catarrh and Stomach Trouble Suffered Much Took Peruna Results Wonderful

Mrs. John Underwood, ..o. 82 Cypress Ave., Columbus, Ohio, writes: "Having had catarrh and stomach trouble and having suffered very much, I, after being doctored a long while, as a last resort, took Peruna. The result was wonderful. I would highly recommend it as a good remedy. I still use Peruna and would not be without it. I always have it in the house."

Hill Brothers Are Arousing Interest Among Cakemakers

Hill Bros. & Co., inventive, original and progressive, in addition to being one of the leading firms in the state, have planned and now are staging a "cake-baking contest" to advertise A-B gas ranges. The cakes, when judged and prizes awarded, will be auctioned to the highest bidder and the proceeds turned over to the Methodist Orphanage.

The idea is attracting much attention from Waco housewives who pride themselves upon their cake baking excellence. Besides the distinction four handsome prizes will be awarded. The prizes are on display at the Hill Bros. & Co. booth at the Cotton Palace. The contest closes Friday, November 19.

C. W. B. M. Meets.

The Christian Woman's Board of Missions held their regular monthly meeting Friday at 3 o'clock in the home of Mrs. Annie O'Brian, 2019 North Sixth street. Mrs. F. M. Thwing presided. Considering the many duties and conflicting engagements of the week the attendance was good.

The meeting opened with prayer, the secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting, which stop approved. Letters were read from our absent president, Mrs. Ida M. Hays, and Mrs. Terry King, state secretary of C. W. B. M. Both letters contained greetings and suggestions for proper observance of C. W. B. M. day, the first Sunday in December. The secretary was instructed to extend an invitation to Mrs. King, requesting that she come and deliver an address at the 11 o'clock service on the above named date. The president asked for suggestions as to future work. A "Life Line" was suggested and a discussion followed, with no definite actiontaken.

Several spoke of the urgent need of spiritual development. Finances were referred to as a secondary consideration. No missionary organization can attain its highest plane where spirituality is sacrificed to commercialism.

The president urged the observance of daily prayer hour at 9 a. m. Mrs. M. Wasson distributed pledge cards from the prayer league.

Mesdames Thwing and Hays reported having visited the county farm and distributed books and flowers.

Three new names were added to the roll.

Song, "Something for Jesus."
Sentence prayers.
Roll call and responses.
Scripture reading, Romans, 12th chapter. Mrs. Thwing read the chapter from our study, "Forty Years of Service."
"The Impulse to Organization."
Round table discussion, "Efficiency," led by Mrs. R. S. Vaughn.
"How Shall We Increase Our Membership?"
"How Secure Larger Offering both regular and Special?"
"How can we induce women to cultivate the habit of prayer?"

A beautiful little story was read by Mrs. Compton showing how one woman worked up interest in the 'tidings" subscriptions.

Mrs. W. S. Blackshear talked of her experience as a C. W. B. M. worker of the Central Christian church in New York City for the past year. It is with pleasure that we welcome Mrs. Blackshear into our auxiliary for the third time, she having lived in Waco at two different times before.

Adjournment was had to meet with Mrs. W. E. Seifer in December. Mrs. M. L. Winans will lead the meeting.

A delightful social hour with the hostess followed, during which a delicious salad course was served.

Passage Refused Irishmen.

By The Associated Press.

Liverpool, Nov. 6.—Nine hundred Irishmen who intended to sail for New York today on the Cunard line steamship Saxonia were prevented by the steamship company from taking passage. The company declined to permit them to sail after there had been several stormy encounters with street crowds, which took the view that able-bodied men should not be permitted to evade liability to military service in this manner.

RECORD CROWD PAYS TRIBUTE AT FORMAL OPENING OF THE COTTON PALACE EXPOSITION

benefits should be an advertisement and pleasure to the whole state.

"It has been said that he who causes two blades of grass to grow where one grew before is a builder, but he who plants two smiles where only one existed is a benefactor. The history of humankind shows that diversion is essential to health. The Cotton Palace offers you that diversion. The old saying is true, 'Laugh and grow fat.'

"We welcome you here tonight. The occasion itself is so great that the governor of our great state feels its importance and leaves his great responsibilities and comes to join in the opening of this grand exposition.

"To you, Mr. President, and to each of the loyal directors who have stood so nobly by you, as mayor of Waco I want to express a feeling of gratitude. I wish to emphasize also the broad and public spirit of the press of Waco, which has been so valuable in planting your attraction. To the ladies whose hearts and hands and words have given you such valuable aid, given you such courage and have been the potent powers in weaving together these beautiful things, we wish to emphasize the gratitude of the citizenship of Waco to each and all of you.

"I cannot pass without calling one name which has been seldom mentioned in the newspapers whose untiring energy and ability have brought together this harmonious whole. He has been the General Grant, has had little to say, but has led you to victory. In further passing, I desire to say that all along life's pathway there are men and women whose souls and minds and lives are full of great works; they are the great silent powers that help move and whose names are seldom mentioned. I have reference especially to the valuable work of Seth Mayfield, secretary and manager.

"Hurrah for every patriotic, loyal citizen. Let us all join in a triumphant shout, 'Hurrah for the Texas Cotton Palace.' Let joy be unconfined, let raptures of delight fill every soul.

"I stand before you with a homespun cotton suit and from it I would like to sing what the dear women of the South sang during the cruel Civil war when they said,

"'My homespun dress is plain, I know;
My hat quite common, too;
But it only shows what Southern girls
For Southern rights will do.'

"The Cotton Palace in all its grandeur only shows what Waco women for Texas pride and glory will do.

"Why do we rejoice?

"It is said that in the European countries, in London, Paris, Berlin and all these war-stricken cities, that the women are draped in mourning everywhere. Their hearts bleed with sorrow because of the death of millions. Contrasted with our situation, a nation at peace with all the world, with prosperity everywhere, God's very sunshine and the softly falling shadows of the moon seem to be the very laugh and smiles of God Himself upon you. Your hearts are filled with joyous laughter, your eyes gleam with gladness and we turn our cheeks to the velvety breeze from the fan of God's kindly hand.

"Nature has been giving up her secrets for thousands of years, parting with them to the diligent, faithful searcher for knowledge.

"Thousands of insects visit the flowers, but the bee alone gathers and stores the honey. The bee and the beaver build today as they did 1,000 years ago. We are here to tell you that nature has heard our beseechings and has told us of many beauties and we show them to you. We are here to tell you that we, like the bees, have gathered the honey from God's blooming trees of knowledge and we have stored that honey and we ask you now to sip and drink the rich drops, as God shows His light upon the things which this Palace reveals. Unlike the bee and the beaver, the old things have passed; we build under the glorious light of the grandest days that human beings ever saw.

"We welcome you, we greet you, we ask you to fill your souls with the wine of gladness from the vessel, the Cotton Palace.

"Now, Mr. Governor, we thank you for your presence. We are thankful that we have such a governor to preside over the destinies of our state, to represent and lead a citizenship of millions whose faces are turned Godward, whose hearts and souls are fixed upon the betterment of humankind. We introduce you to a people whose souls and lives are filled with the odors of the geraniums, of the roses, of the violets, of the carnation and with the resin of imagination. Upon the strings of hope they are playing a triumphant march to peace, prosperity and happiness.

"To the people of Waco I take great pleasure in introducing Gov. James E. Ferguson."

Mother Yates in Waco for Services Salvation Army

Mrs. E. S. Yates, known as "Mother Yates" and state superintendent of penal reform and prison work for the W. C. T. U., arrived in Waco yesterday. "Mother Yates" was accompanied by her daughter, Miss Emma Yates.

At a meeting last night at Salvation Army headquarters, "Mother Yates" made a short address. She also will conduct the services at Salvation Army hall tonight. She is one of the best prison reform workers in Texas. The meeting last night was well attended. An even larger crowd is expected at the services this evening.

LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE IF SICK CROSS FEVERISH

HURRY, MOTHER! REMOVE POISONS FROM LITTLE STOMACH, LIVER AND BOWELS.

GIVE "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS" AT ONCE IF BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrohea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative"; they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genunie, ask to see that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

COURT PUNCTURES CITY'S "HUCKSTER" LAW BY DECISION

Judge Erwin Clark of the Seventy-fourth district court, handed down a decision Saturday putting the city's "huckster ordinance" out of commission, by declaring it unconstitutional. The opinion incidentally declines the city's petition to dissolve the injunction secured by W. T. Chester restraining the city officials from enforcing the terms of the ordinance.

The case was that of W. T. Chester and others against the city. Judge Clark's opinion follows the recent holdings of the supreme court, but is contrary to an equally recent decision of the court of criminal appeals. The two high courts have disagreed upon the questions involved. The local case involved the right of peddlers to operate within the fire limits of the city, and particularly the occupancy of the public square.

According to Judge Clark's ruling he sustained the contention of the objecting petitioners that the ordinance was unconstitutional in that it grants special privileges to growers, but denies the same privileges to traders and those of other persuits. The contention was based upon sections of both the federal and state constitution, guaranteeing equal rights to all. Judge Clark, after citing a long list of opinions, says in part:

"An arbitrary selection can never be justified by calling it classification. In all cases it must appear not only that a classification has been made, but also that it is one based upon some reasonable ground—some difference which bears a just and proper relation to the attempted classification. Neither the legislature nor a municipality, in the exercise of its delegated legislative powers, may enact legislation contravening the provisions of the organic law of our state which entitles all citizens to all the rights and privileges of every other citizen. Cities and towns may control streets, but, in the creation of ordinances they may not discriminate in the control of such streets between citizens of the municipality of those of the state. To prohibit one citizen or class of citizens from engaging in a business under like or similar circumstances with all others situate similarly is, as a general proposition, violative of the provisions of the constitution of the state."

The court's decision means in brief that the hucksters may occupy the streets known as the public square and sell their products. That is, they may so long as the city permits other classes of people, traders and others, to occupy such streets. The opinion holds that the ordinance in its present form discriminates against the hucksters. The injunction prohibiting interference with the hucksters is continued in force.

City Attorney John Maxwell said last night that he was undecided as to the city's future action. He said he would confer with the other city authorities before announcing his determination to abide by Judge Clark's ruling or appeal to the supreme court. He intimated, however, that the ruling of yesterday probably ended the controversy and explained that the city recently had passed two ordinances, one a huckster's and the other a traffic ordinance tending to control the situation in a manner acceptable to the court's ruling.

HOME

ENSHRINED IN EVERY HUMAN HEART is the constant thought of HOME—a thought inborn in every one of us. Our present civilization has been builded by the influence a HOME has toward developing the finer traits of humanity. Watch the crowds at eventide hurrying toward street cars, jitneys, or winding their way through crowds, in autos, buggies and on motorcycles. They are going HOME. After the music and laughter of the theater, a dance, a ball, the people go HOME. In every Nation under the sun—after a tired business day sinks into the arms of restful night—the world goes HOME. It is the stage of our sorrows and our joys; the haven of rest after the grind of a day. This brings us to the all-important question—WHAT KIND OF A HOME? You can't deny that a cozy, comfortable HOME, one that contains the deep, easy chairs, the beautiful floor coverings and FURNITURE you admire, will please you better than the HOME that is scantily furnished. A HOME doesn't mean simply four walls and a window. You will say "Well and true, but I can't afford it." Here's where my DIVIDED PAYMENT PLANS comes in. You buy whatever you want for your HOME and pay weekly or monthly as your salary permits—and, better still, my stock is the largest and most complete in Waco and my PRICES ALWAYS THE LOWEST.

SAVAGE-MALLORY WEDDING.

Prosperous Young Mt. Calm Farmer Marries Pittsburg Girl.

Special to the Morning News.

Pittsburg, Nov. 6.—Last Tuesday evening Miss Helen Mallory of this city became the bride of Edward Savage of Mount Calm, Texas. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. M. Francis of the First Baptist church, in the presence of the immediate family and nearest friends of the bride, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Mallory. Palms and ferns lent their green foliage about the hall, dining room and the recesses about the pine-covered archway.

At the arrival of the guests, punch was served by Florence Hargrove and Kathryn Mallory.

"The Sunshine of Your Smile," sung by Mrs. W. C. Hargrove, to Miss Eunice Bryson's accompaniment, was the prenuptial song. The ribbon bearers, Juanita Taylor and Luey B. Hess Jr., entered from the hallway when Mendellsohn's Wedding March was heard. Under a latticed, pine-covered arch, entwined with smilax, the bride and groom took their vows.

The bride wore a midnight-blue chiffon broadcloth with accessories to match. Her bouquet was a cluster of white carnations.

The groom is a prosperous and highly esteemed young farmer of the Central Texas section, near Mount Calm, and he and his bride will, after a ten days' stay in San Antonio and Austin, proceed to their home near Mt. Calm.

Lillies were noted about the bride's cake, which divulged its secrets to Guy Henderson, Mrs. Hargrove and Miss Jessie Mallory.

A number of beautiful gifts were received from friends and relatives.

The dining room was effectively decorated in pink and white, and here brick cream, angel food cake and mints were served the guests.

JUDGES ANNOUNCED FOR MORNING NEWS CONTEST

Red Hot Finish Now Being Made—Contest Will Close at 7 p. m. Next Thursday—All Votes Must Be in News Office by That Time—Final Results Will Be Published Next Friday.

A red-hot finish is being made by the contestants in the Morning News contest. Just four more days and the big race will pass into history. Just who the winners will be no one can venture to say.

The grand prize Overland is the gift that is causing the most interest. There are several who are after it, and the one who wins this highest honor is going to step some. First position in this contest is going to be fought for, and the honor of landing in first place in the entire contest will be about as great an asset as the value of the prize itself.

A large number of the contestants have gained more than 100,000 votes each today, and the race is about as interesting as any one would care to have it. Speculation is still rife, as to which district will win the grand prize. In fact, the result appears to be more in doubt now than at any other period of the entire contest.

Every ounce of energy is now being exerted by the candidates, and none of them will stop work until the clock strikes 7 next Thursday evening. Thousands and thousands of votes will be gathered during the next four days, and it will be the final work that will tell the tale.

Thousands of people are watching and awaiting the result; each one has a favorite whom he or she expects to see win out. There will be some contestants who will be disappointed, and others will be made very happy. The News would be pleased if it could award a gift to each contestant, but such is impossible. There will be some losers and some winners, and The News sincerely hopes that those who lose will be good losers.

This paper has given each contestant the privilege of selecting a judge to represent him or her in the final counting of the ballots on next Thursday evening, and several of the contestants have selected their judges.

Following are names of those who have been selected as judges: B. H. Adams, Waco; Sheriff S. S. Fleming, Waco; Judge T. L. McCullough, Waco; Dr. J. D. Lovelace, Speegleville; W. V. Crawford of Sanger Bros., Waco; Sam L. Allen, 1917 South Ninth street, Waco; C. M. Vivrett, Provident National bank, Waco; Joe Forrey, Axtell; Dr. J. F. Bailey, Amicable Building, Waco; L. W. Webster, West, and R. V. McClain, Waco; C. P. Martin, Waco; A. J. Eberhardt, Waco; Dr. F. V. Gave, Waco.

Some of the contestants have as yet failed to send in the name of a representative, and each one is requested to do so at once.

The contest is going to close at 7 p. m. next Thursday. Each contestant can work as late as 7 o'clock, but must be inside The News office by that time, after which time each one will have plenty of time to cast their final ballots. The contest headquarters will be locked at 7 p. m. and no one can enter after that hour. Each contestant should turn in all of their reserve votes early in the day. All unused blank subscription books must be returned.

Today is the last publication of the votes. Nothing will be published or given out on the last day. There will be no way for the candidates to tell what is being done. Every one is now in the dark. There is no air of mystery surrounding the contest, but there is much nervousness and excitement.

The only suggestion that the contest editor has to make is that every one work hard; don't lose a minute from now until 7 o'clock Thursday. Talk for long-time subscriptions, have as many of your old subscriptions extended another year, and keep in mind that the second payments count fast and sure.

Tiny Lad Is Good Performer as Cupid in Palace Pageant

While yesterday's beautiful pageant at the Cotton Palace was setting forth the long and interesting history of the development of Waco, little Dan Cupid was on the job laying the predicate for new history that is to be made in the future when the hearts that he pierced become blended in the more perfect love that he set in motion. And the large number of boys and girls and young men and women who made up the pageant there was almost unlimited opportunity for the use of his little bow and arrows.

Playing the role of Cupid was little Edgar Yinger, the three and a half year old son of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Yinger, Jr., 2108 Sanger avenue, and despite his youth he did his work well and proved a ready favorite with everybody who participated in the pageant or who came near enough to where it was in progress to get a glimpse of the participants. He was beautifully costumed for the occasion but throughout the three and a half hours of the assembling and production of the performance he waited without a murmur and when the time came for his float to move he was about the livest of the several who posed in the art division.

The Ruse.

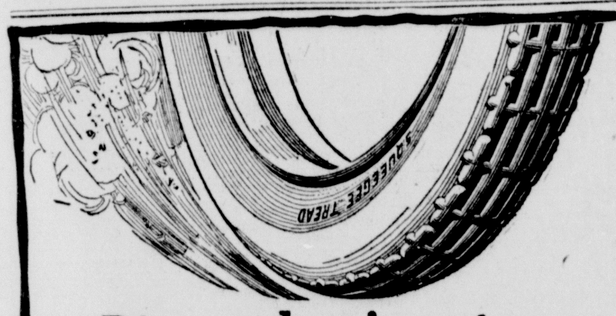

Prof. Shailer Mathews of the University of Chicago was talking about his very successful visit to Japan—one of the objects of this visit was to foster friendly relations between Japan and America.

"There have been plots to make bad blood between the two countries," said Professor Mathews, but these plots were all as transparent as the ruse of the little girl in my native Portland.

"This little girl's sister was entertaining a young man. The little girl, therefore, was not wanted in the drawing room. She knocked and knocked, but her sister wouldn't admit her. Finally she thought of a ruse and, giving a loud and thunderous knock, she shouted:

"'Tain't me now. It's mamma.'"

It is a perpetual battle between tires and roads—and victory is hard-earned.

The strength and toughness of the rubber in Diamond Squeegee Tread Tires resists the roughest road wear—yawning ruts do not take toll from Diamond Squeegees.

Tried for years—on every road that leads in or out of this city—on all makes of cars—Diamond Squeegees have proven their unfailing superiority, and more than satisfy car owners.

We have almost discontinued making smooth treads, because the small (less than 10%) increase we ask for Squeegee treads has made Diamond Squeegees so popular that 90% of the Diamond Tires sold to consumers are Squeegee Treads.

Squeegees were put on the market because they proved to be the most satisfactory non-skid tire—tests prove that in addition to this the Squeegee construction (more rubber where the wear is hardest) makes Squeegees the best Long Distance tire at the price.

Shriner's Day Tomorrow Will Exceed Expectations

"The success of Shriners' Day is going to reach far beyond expectation," said a prominent Waco Shriner yesterday, speaking of the Cotton Palace program for tomorrow.

The local committees had their final meeting in the parlor of the Masonic Temple last Friday evening and everything is in readiness for one of the biggest events of this year's Cotton Palace exposition on Monday, November 8.

Mention has been made in these columns that Moslah Temple would be here about 150 strong. They will bring their patrol in full uniform and the other nobles will appear in full dress and fezzes. They will arrive on a special train over the I. & G. N. railroad, due at the union station about 3 o'clock.

Yesterday Noble W. F. Quebe, secretary of the local Shriners committee, received a telegram from the recorder of Hella Temple reading as follows:

"Hella with band, patrol and drum corps will arrive in Waco Monday on 1:30 interurban."

This was very good news for the local committee for it means that about 150 to 200 will come from Hella Temple. It is also expected that all the other temples of the state will be represented here for this occasion. For the benefit of those that are not familiar with the Shrine Temples in Texas it may be well to make mention of the names and locations in their respective order as to size: Hella Temple at Dallas, El Mina Temple at Galveston, Ben Hur Temple at Austin, Moslah Temple at Fort Worth, El Haida Temple at El Paso and Arabia Temple at Houston, with a grand total membership of nearly 8,000 Shriners.

The local Shriners have two subjects that they have the right to boast over. One is the large frozen punch bowl designed and made by Noble D. F. Beaman, chief engineer of the Geyser Ice company. It is said that this is one of the most unique punch bowls that was ever made for any occasion. The outside of the bowl will be decorated with living shrubbery by Noble T. J. Wolfe. The other is a large Shriners' emblem belonging to Noble W. F. Quebe. It is claimed that this is the largest Shriners' emblem ever exhibited in Texas. It measures about six feet square and it will be interesting to all that it also was was "Made in Waco."

Owing to the fact that there will be such a large number of Shriners here from other places, it will be necessary that every Shriner in Waco bring at least two or three ladies in order to be able to have all the visiting Shriners in the grand march Monday night. It has been estimated that at least 100 nobles will be here without ladies and the Waco committee has taken upon itself that they will see that all will have a partner for the grand march and no doubt they will for the Waco boys always do what they undertake to do and especially will they try to make Shriners' Day at the 1915 exposition one that will be long remembered by everybody.

At 5 p. m. all the nobles will form in grand parade, beginning at the State House, down Franklin to the square, out Austin to Eighth, down Eighth to Franklin, down Franklin to the State House. The patrol drill will take place at 9 p. m. and the grand ball will begin at 9:45 in which all nobles are expected to take part. Both for the patrol and the grand march all nobles are expected to appear in full dress and fezzes and afterwards any noble may dance who will present his red, white and blue card.

The dance will be for Shriners and their ladies only and from the outlook there will be no room left for anyone else to participate and it is against Shriners' principle to admit others to participate in their festivities.

For the convenience of those that are coming for the occasion it may be well to mention here that there has been a section reserved in the coliseum for the nobles and ladies so that they can all sit together and be convenient to the dance floor and all are asked to look for this section when they come in Monday evening.

Woman's Auxiliary Meeting.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Seventh and James Street Baptist church had a very helpful missionary program last Monday, led by Mrs. C. D. Daniels. After talks by Mrs. Sparkman, Mrs. Russell and others, we had a very inspiring paper by Mrs. Holcomb. There was a very good attendance and hope for better in the future.

We wish to get every woman in our church enlisted in the work and let her know that we, through the auxiliary, are aiding the church in doing greater things for the Master.

Our State Mission collection was exceedingly good. Quite a number of our ladies will attend the state convention at the capital city.

Good talks, special music. We welcome all strangers and visiting Endeavorers. Come. We, the Endeavors, urge that all the parents come and take part in the meeting.

KING NICK ECONOMICAL.

Better Pay Sixpence for Ironing Than Buy a New Pair.

Some time ago King Nicholas of Montenegro noticed that the hat he was wearing was a little shabby for his royal head, and regretfully handed it over to his valet. The valet had the hat ironed and repaired, so that it looked almost new, and wore it with an air of great pride. One day the king saw him with it on and asked where he got it.

"Your Majesty gave it to me," replied the man.

"What!" exclaimed the king, "gave you such a nice hat? How could I have been so stupid? Give it back to me immediately. It will save my getting a new one!"

The valet humbly protested that he had paid sixpence to have the hat ironed, but the king was obdurate.

"Here is the money," said His Majesty. "I will pay your expenses in connection with the hat. Now give it back to me!"

Of course, the valet had to obey, and the monarch put on his old but renovated headgear with the delightful air of a child with a new toy.—Youth's Companion.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Shaw, 1503 South Fourth. They were accompanied to the residence of Dr. Dawson by several friends. Following the ceremony the young couple went out to the Cotton Palace to spend the first hours of their honeymoon on the Warpath "Waco with the Cotton Palace going on is a good enough place for anybody's honeymoon," declared the groom.

Big Show Increases Waco Cotton Sales

Local cotton receipts, as reported by Sem Nix, public weigher, yesterday totaled 555 bales. The prices ranged from 10 1-2 to 11 cents; middling was 10 3-4.

According to Mr. Nix's report, 476 bales were received on the same date last year, an increase for this year of 79 bales. Up to date the local market has handled 14206 pounds, as against 17,013 last season, a decrease of 2807 pounds.

Cotton growers have sold 1234 bales in Waco during the week ending last night

Traveling Salesman Is First Victim of Negro Robber Clan

A. C. Murray of Dallas, registered at the Riggins and traveling for the Gray Rubber company, was the first victim of "stick-up" men during the 1915 Cotton Palace. Besides being badly frightened after looking down the blue barrel of a husky six-shooter, he is shy an even $50 note.

According to Murray's report to the police sergeant he was returning from the Katy passenger depot about 11 o'clock last night. Near the alley on Eighth, south of the railroad tracks, two negroes and a woman stopped him —one of the negroes enforcing the order to stop with a gun pried dangerously near the victim's head. He stopped as directed and the other negro inserted a deft finger into the watch pocket of Murray's pants and extracted the bill.

The bandit gang apparently satisfied with the first haul, dispersed without making further search, leaving several bills of smaller denomination and a watch. Murray also dispersed rapidly and numerous lusty yells. He stated he was unable to attract any immediate help and continued his stampede until he arrived at the police station.

George Jackson, plainclothesman, accompanied by Sheriff W. W. Hollingsworth, of Gatesville, was taken to the scene of the robbery by Murray. No arrests have been made.

President National Fraternal Congress Rotary Speaker

John J. Lent of Columbus, Ohio, president of the National Fraternal congress and Fraternal American Insurance union, as well as an ex-member of congress, will be the principal speaker before the Rotary club at its regular meeting Monday at noon at the State House. President Allen D. Albert of the International Association of Rotary clubs, in his visit here last week, declared Mr. Lentz was probably the most interesting and eloquent public speaker in the United States, and the local Rotary officials feel that he will have a message which all members should hear.

J. W. Tabor will be toastmaster tomorrow and there will be several classifications coming up for consideration in the election of new members.

Procedure at Charter Meeting Made Clear

Inasmuch as some persons have expressed the belief that the story of the charter meeting of Friday night, as reported in the Morning News of yesterday, was confusing, the explanation is made that Mr. Woodson's motion to refer to a special committee the question of whether there should be any fundamental changes in the charter, including the question of the city manager plan, caused some opposition and the opponents of the motion sought to table it, but the motion to table was lost.

Those who opposed the motion to refer to a committee expressed the belief that the matter was of such moment as to warrant the discussion of it by the charter convention as a whole and recognizing the right of the members to discuss it in that way Mr. Woodson withdrew his motion to refer to a committee so as to permit fuller debate. The question was under general debate without any decision having been reached when adjournment was taken, though Mr. Woodson and others believe the sentiment of the convention is favorable to the city manager plan and other fundamental changes in the city's organic law.

dians, the early settlers, the Civil War, and, finally, the Waco of the present.

A score of dainty little misses ushered in Summer with the dance of the roses, each carrying a garland of pink blossoms. Out in front of them sprang a tiny maiden, who gave an entrancing dance as they darted around.

Bumblebees came buzzing along in the wake of the pink blossoms, little boys fantastically garbed taking the parts. With a coterie of little girls in white, they danced and buzzed around for a time. Then, the Spirit of Prophecy held up his hand, and at his command, the sprites of the forest scattered into the background, the queen of the fairies descended from her throne and drove away in her carriage for a newer home, her devoted attendants surrounding her to the last. And the first episode was over, for soon man was to appear and drink of the waters of Huaco Spring.

Second Episode.

Indian legend found its place in the second episode, portions of which drew thundering bursts of applause from the crowded grandstand.

An Indian tribe approached, the Huacos, represented by a long string of boys and girls in the costumes of Waco's first human inhabitants. Big Chief finds Huaco spring, and as his followers file by, each stops and drinks of its cooling water, lifting hands aloft in thankfulness to the Great Father. Then, drawing off to one side, the tribe makes its camp.

Back to the spring comes the Indian princess. As she stoops to drink, a Tehuacana brave discovers her, finds her beautiful in her sight, and starts to woo her. One of the members of the tribe spies on them, and hurries to Big Chief, father of the princess, with tidings of the meeting at the spring. In the meantime, the Tehuacana has pressed his suit with such ardor that when Big Chief arrives, he finds his daughter in the stranger's arms. The father interferes, a fight ensues, the princess stays her lover's hand as his knife is plunging toward Big Chief's heart, but she is dragged away in disgrace.

The Tehuacana leaves the spring to join his band. The princess returns—but no lover is to be found. Then she dances the "Dance of Despair." Miss Gradels Ferguson took the part of the Indian princess and her dance was grace itself. Swaying to and fro, her every motion showed the grief which she overcome her. Now and then, a pause while she peered anxiously out into the distance to see if her lover was not returning, and no sign of him, the wild dance was continued. Finally, her grief too much to bear, she falls fainting to the ground.

But lo, the Tehuacana finally returns to the trysting place, raises his prostrate sweetheart to her feet and they elope. Big Chief and a number of his braves separate the fleeing couple from the Tehuacana camp, and, determined to die together if they cannot live together, the lovers leap from the jagged crag, locked in each others' arms, the music of Joseph Evans' "My Little Wahco Maid" being played by the band as the leap is made. It was a fine bit of acting throughout.

Determined to avenge their brave's death, the Tehuacanas gather and have a war dance. One of the Huaco braves, on horseback, is attacked, wounded, and he and his squaw are captured, when she comes to his rescue. Then the Huacos creep up from all sides, chase the Tehuacanas away and pitch their permanent camp by the waters of the spring, thus ending the episode.

Third Episode.

Across the uncharted plains of East Texas came Waco's pioneers, the Rosses, the Eraths and others and their coming was vividly portrayed in the third episode. The vanguard was on horseback, each attired in frontier costume of the early '40s. Behind them, the belongings of each family were transported by oxen, while many of the women and children were on foot. A feature of this portion of the pageant was Wilkes Dunn of Benchley, Robertson, driving seven yoke of oxen to one wagon. Without use of bridle, simply by oral commands and cracks of his long whip, he directed his team at will, making them form a circle around him in front of the grandstand.

Big Chief discovers that his realm has been invaded and comes to the spring, ready to make trouble, but Ross pacifies him, the Indians and immigrants do some trading and then the Huaco braves and the white pioneers sit down together and smoke the pipe of peace. Kate Ross, the first white child born in Waco, Jan. 6, 1851, was represented by a little maid whom the Indians are so delighted with that they are hardly restrained from taking her away with them.

A meeting between Ross and Gen. Sam Houston, who rides up on horseback, is portrayed, after which the primitive mode of life of the early settlers is shown. Camp fires, differing but little from those of the Huacos camped a short distance away, are lighted, and the men hunt for wild game for subsistence.

Then the surveyors appear. George Erath and his assistants survey the town and lay off their lines and the deed is presented by Richard de Cordova. Thus comes the municipality of Waco into being, for, previous to that time, Waco had simply been a settlement.

"Peace and Savagery" was the title of a beautiful little dance which ended the episode. Twelve little maidens in white, blowing golden pipes o' Pan, tripped out to the measures of the Humoresque. They danced and swirled around until they were in a compact group and then as many little boys, as Indians, each with a tomahawk in his hand, skulked out from the shelter of the rocks and charged down upon them. The charms of the music soothed the Redskin braves and they spared the paleface maidens. Lined up in front of the grandstand, the girls danced a few graceful steps and as the music stopped, the Indian chief strode to the front, lifted up the hands of one of the maidens, and a white dove of peace (a real one, too) flew straight toward toward the box where sat Governor Ferguson and the members of his staff, who showed that they were keenly interested in the performance.

Fourth Episode.

Religion and education were early factors in the progress of the village of Waco, the first building being a combined church and school, and it was erected yesterday afternoon at the opening of the fourth episode, being but a rude block structure. The pioneers were better dressed than when they trekked across country and some of the early ministers, Snead, King and Burleson among them, made their appearance.

The first marriage in Waco, the double wedding of Miss Mary Bass to George Barnard and Miss Margaret Ross to Frank Harris, was presented, a touch of humor being given by three negro slaves, who stood in the background while the ceremony was going on and amused themselves, and the crowd as well.

There were two very interested spectators of this portion of the performance, both of whom leaned against the fence, not having been able to obtain seats in the grandstand. Mrs. S. F. Oakes, one of the two survivors who were at the wedding, and Mrs. M. H. Lane, formerly Miss Mary Ross Barnard, daughter of George Barnard and Miss Mary Ross, stood side by side and watched the children as they went through the reproduction of that historic early scene in which both were interested. Mrs. Oakes was but a little girl at the time, but that was years ago and her brown ringlets have been turned snow-white by the winters which have passed.

Waco female college in 1856 was represented and the boys of old Waco university in 1861, members of Company K and Company G, putting on a drill under the command of Captain P. A. Weatherred, who represented Captain Ryan. They enlisted for the first company to leave Waco for the front in the Civil war, and were presented by a battle flag by Miss Josie Downs before they marched away.

Their return later was shown, only a few of them coming, and most of them crippled. That also brought vivid recollections to Mrs. Oakes, for her brother, Tom Arnold, was the only Waco boy killed in battle who was brought home for burial.

The Academy of the Sacred Heart was shown in 1873, and the advent of the carpet-baggers from the north. Wagons freighted all provisions into Waco at that time and the episode ended with the "early settlers" getting and eating bright red apples out of the wagons which drove in.

Fifth Episode.

With the opening of Episode Five, there was ushered in a new tide in the early history of the Waco community the first railroad enters in 1872 and with the pioneer railway came the increase in transportation facilities—Waco is budding out as a commercial center.

A realistic steam engine, of the primitive type, steamed into the limelight. George Barnard, who was present when the first actual road came into Waco, drove the golden spike yesterday. Crowds of eager pioneers threw their hats into the air and yelled lustily when the engine loomed in through the trees and untamed lands. Darkies scattered as if some demon of the heavens had come to earth.

With the coming of the railroad, local marketing took a boom, but the freighters were still strong competitors of the lonely railroad. Wagons full of provisions, driven by hardy freighters, created a furore when they pulled up near Huaco springs and the men, women and children in realistic costumes, gathered around the wagons to get eatables from the outside world. In the background was the log cabin, oxen and the young folks making merry.

Even in those days Waco felt the kiss of Miss Prosperity. Commerce was having its inning. Nine lithesome girls, graceful and clever dancers, with wreathes of fruit leaves and garlands of oats, cotton and corn, made merry. Dressed in loose and flowing robes, they danced with the freedom and joy that prosperity from the choicest of God's land and the great open fertile prairie feeling the touch of man's plow for the first time and yielding up its treasures suggests.

Sixth Episode.

In the wake of the first steam railroad and the resulting era of prosperity, came the blossoming of the city at the head of the Brazos, a great civic awakening. Culture and enlightenment appear on the scene.

Art represented by living models, with pretty living pictures, actually framed, appeared before the grandstand. The floating studio depicted an art range from the Bohemian to the classic. Pretty girls represented a Greek goddess, a Titian model,a Cubist model and the gladsome fisher girl. A cubist artist with his easel and studio attire, continued his painting unmindful of the applauding thousands.

Contemporaneous with art came the other two sisters of Culture's trio—music and literature. Gay girls in classic dances, representing the goddesses of music and literature with scrolls and silver harps, tripped lightly into the focus of eyes. Little girls with classic white robes followed in the wake with their silken banners inscribed with the several divisions of art and culture.

Waco as a city of schools was exemplified by dignified processional of forty-six real live seniors of Baylor university in their caps and gowns with a profusion of their college pennants. The seniors made a fine showing and gave the touch of realism to this feature of the episode, which was characteristic of the entire pageant.

The Waco public library, as a complement to Wisdom's other hosts, was depicted by a large float, replete with large books, charts, atlases and more books. Mr. Carnegie was honored by a large silver bearing his name. Diligent students pondered over the books seeking knowledge.

Fifty frolicsome children, unafraid of the great sea of onlookers, playsome as young bears, jumped over each other, played tagand looked healthy—showing what Waco has done for her children in the way of parks and playgrounds. With the complexity of civilization that had taken the place of the savage play of half civilized and vigorous boys of the pioneer days came the present city youngster, thriving in the limitations of city streets through the playground opportunities afforded by an enterprising city.

The better baby movement was depicted by six beautiful little children, looking like little angels from heaven's own ideal babyland, drawing a flower canopied baby carriage by ribbons. In the fairy carriage were a little boy and girl, beautiful, healthy, happy—prize winners. Two other beauty babies brought up the tiny procession.

A large float showing the lonely traveling girl with her grip and trunk and the smiling and confidence—inspiring travelers' aid, acting as a mother to the young woman on her first journey, suggested vividly the work being done through the travelers' aid in Waco, who is supported by the City Federation of Missionary Societies. Another section of the float showed the public nurse attending the sick child ona white bed—help tendered when most needed.

A Cotton Palace frolic by ten graceful dancers concluded Episode Six.

Seventh Episode.

The Boy Scouts in their neat and trim khaki uniforms, headed by the band of thirty pieces, and the delightful Camp Fire Girls in their Indian costumes, were the features of Episode VII., which suggested the patriotism of younger America. The Scout band, with Charley Parker as leader, rendered several selections and the Scouts executed some of their drills. The Camp Fire Girls formed around a camp fire with its pot suspended from a tripod and made merry. With the background of trees and shrubs, and untamed wilderness, the crackling fire and the picturesquely costumed girls made a pretty picture. There were almost a hundred Scouts and about half as many girls.

Eighth Episode.

Waco of the present, with its municipal government, its dynamos of civic enterprises in the Chamber of Commerce and the Y. M. B. L., featured the eighth and last episode. City officials, including the commissioners and a police squad, were followed by the directorates of the two commercial organizations. Harry M. Baine, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and W. W. Naman of the Y. M. B. L. headed their respective directorates for the march. After the march the city builders massed informally and sang the famous style song, with the wording—"They say that the pageant it ain't got no style—but it's style all the while."

The navigable Brazos came in for its claim as a factor of Waco's progress through the noval agency of a huge canvas, thirty feet long, supported on a motor truck. Large ships, freighted with tons and tons had no difficulty in sailing on the canvas.

The "Navigable Brazos" scene was intended as a special tribute to Hon R. L. Henry, ex-Mayor James B. Baker and Col. W. W. Seley, who have devoted their energies to the enterprise.

Prominent in the section of Waco-builders were the directors of the Cotton Palace, headed by President Asher Sanger.

Miss Frances Compton is Miss Waco.

On a throne, rising majestically near Huaco Springs, pretty Miss Frances Compton as Miss Waco in regal robes of simple white, was crowned queen of the South by King Cotton. After this supreme triumph of Waco, the culmination of the rich history that had been so faithfully and elaborately depicted, six Boy Scouts bearing six flags came forth as a reminder of how varied Waco and Texas history has been. As a sort of summary, the six scouts carried each a different flag, representing the six different government emblems under which Texas has been—the fleur-de-lis of France, the royal banner of Spain, the flag of the Mexican republic, the Lone Star flag of the Republic of Texas, the Stars and Stripes of the American Union and for four years the Stars and Bars of the Southern Confederacy.

A mammoth ensemble, with the six hundred characters and the elaborate sections, finally massing around the central throne to sing "The Star-Spangled Banner" as Old Glory was raised aloft on a high brass flag pole, was the fitting climax to the great pageant.

Descendants of Pioneer In Ca..

To the realistic setting and costuming of the mammoth pageant was added the further realistic touch of having a number of descendants of Waco pioneers among the personnel of those who played leading parts.

The descendants and their pioneer ancestors were:

FOOD SOURING IN STOMACH CAUSES GAS, INDIGESTION

"PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN" NEUTRALIZES ACIDS IN STOMACH AND STARTS DIGESTION.

FIVE MINUTES! NO SOURNESS, GAS, HEARTBURN, ACIDITY OR DYSPEPSIA.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache, you can surely get relief in five minutes.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why it relieves sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia, or any stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach misery and indigestion in five minutes.

Public Nurse Is Well Presented at Cotton Palace

One of the most attractive special booths at the Cotton Palace and which those who are pushing that interest hope will be visited by everybody interested in the welfare of the community, is that one devoted to the public health nurse. Through the courtesy of the Palette and Brush club a number of very attractive posters have been employed in setting forth some of the aims of the public nurse, and some one will be in constant attendance to answer any inquiries about the work. A collection box into which donations may be placed is also at hand. The booth is on the second floor of the main building.

Santa Claus Will be Here Tuesday for Waco Day at the Texas Cotton Palace. Here's His Message:

SANGER BROTHERS,
Toyland,
Waco, Tex., Nov. 6, '15

"I am on my way to Sanger Toyland; will be there Tuesday for Waco Day at the Texas Cotton Palace. Save me a place in the Waco Day Parade and tell all my little friends to be on hand. I suggest that we name the big Toy Store Toyland, because it has completely outgrown its former name of Toy Town. I will have twice, yes, three times as many toys as ever before. SANTA CLAUS,
North Pole, Iceland.

Sanger's Toyland OPENS Tomorrow

Lower Floor of Sanger Buildings on 4th Street Devoted Entirely to Toys

We Will Open the Largest and Most Complete Toy Store in the History of Texas Tomorrow---Santa Claus Will Be Here Tuesday

The entire First Floor of the Sanger Wholesale Building on Fourth street is to be devoted to the display and sale of Toys beginning tomorrow morning. More space will be utilized for this purpose by Sanger Brothers this year than has ever before been utilized for a similar purpose by any retail concern in the State of Texas. Every inch of space is filled with the Newest and Latest Toys for Children. Toys that are just Playthings, Toys that are instructive and of an educational nature, Toys of all kinds. It is impossible to enumerate them. It is the largest and most complete showing of Toys for Boys and Girls ever presented in this State. Nothing is lacking; if it's a Toy, it's here. You and the Children can best appreciate the wonderful treat that we have prepared for you by visiting this Greater Toyland.

We are making our Toy display earlier this year and have urged Old Santa to come earlier this year in order that the thousands of Men, Women and Children who come to Waco for the Texas Cotton Palace may witness the magnitude of our showing and the elaborate manner in which the Sanger Store does things. Toyland opens Tomorrow and Santa Claus will arrive Tuesday and take part in the Waco Day Parade. Sanger Toyland will be one of the big features of Waco during the 1915 Texas Cotton Palace. We invite all visitors and homefolks alike to visit this big Toy Display, bring the Children here and let them enjoy the time of their lives.

Waco Man Attends Conference of Santa Fe Men at Galveston

C. H. Carrigan, commercial agent for the Santa Fe with headquarters in Waco, left yesterday morning for Galveston where he attended a meeting of officials during the afternoon. The meeting was called by J. S. Hershey, general freight agent of the Santa Fe and was attended by practically all the freight and commercial agents of the Santa Fe in the Galveston district. It was called for the purpose of discussing movement of cotton and other shipments.

Mrs. Lawrence Funeral in Houston Monday.

According to information received in Waco yesterday, the body of Mrs. Thomas H. Lawrence of Tyler, who died suddenly in Denver Thursday morning, will be buried in Houston on Monday. The body was sent from Denver Friday morning. Mr. Lawrence is assistant general freight agent of the Cotton Belt.

Out of respect for the memory of Mrs. Lawrence and as a token of sympathy to Mr. Lawrence, Waco passenger men have forwarded a large floral offering to Houston. Gus Hoover, traveling passenger agent for the Cotton Belt with headquarters at Fort Worth, but now acting as city passenger agent here during the absence of W. S. Gillespie, will act as one of the pall bearers. Mr. Hoover will leave tonight for Houston.

Negress Arrested for Breaking Jail at Taylor, Texas

Deputy Constable Phil Hobbs arrested Mary Robinson, negress, on Fifth street yesterday morning, on a fugitive's warrant charging that she broke jail at Taylor several months ago. Constable Leslie Stegall has notified the Williams county officers and it is expected the prisoner will be returned to Taylor Sunday night or Monday.

The Robinson woman is the wife of Brooks Collins, alias Walter Robinson, now in jail charged with horse stealing. It is alleged Robinson also broke jail at Taylor. He and his wife were charged with burglary.

Robinson was given a preliminary hearing before Justice J. J. Padgett yesterday morning and held to await the grand jury next march. His bond was fixed at $700 and in default he was returned to jail. Robinson was arrested Thursday by Constable Stegall and Deputy Hobbs.

Crowds Coming for Cotton Palace, Says Union Ticket Agent

"If there has been doubts as to whether the Cotton Palace is going to attract hosts of visitors, it has been dispelled. Every train arriving at the union station was loaded with Cotton Palace visitors. The passenger traffic into Waco increased enormously today and will continue to increase as the big exposition progresses."

That was the statement of C. D. Bowman, depot ticket agent yesterday. Mr. Bowman declared that trains from all directions brought in hundreds of visitors. He also declared the travelers were a most amiable army and gave evidence of the real holiday spirit. He believes practically all trains will be compelled to carry extra equipment when the Cotton Palace gets into full swing.

Trailers have been attached to all cars on the Southern Traction company lines. Passengers eager to attend the big Cotton Palace were picked up at all points between Dallas and Waco. Traffic men of both steam and electric lines believe this year's attendance will establish a record.

Abbott Urging Texas School Men to Come to Palace Nov. 19

R. L. Abbott, superintendent of county schools, is writing personal letters to every county superintendent within a radius of fifty miles of Waco urging that they attend the Cotton Palace Friday, November 19, Public Servants' Day. Those to whom he has written include superintendents of Bell, Milam, Falls, Robertson, Limestone, Navarro, Hill, Bosque, Coryell, Hamilton, Johnson, Ellis and Williams.

Superintendent Abbott stated that he is merely urging the county educators to make a special effort to attend. The letter also explains the varied attractions which the visitors may see, the able addresses which they may hear and the educational advantages and benefits generally that should induce them to attend.

The superintendent thinks that all will recognize the valuable suggestions that may be secured and will arrange to be here.

State Collector Makes Ruling on Stamp Tax

The following communication from A. L. Walker, collector of internal revenue for the state of Texas, contains a number of rulings of interest concerning instruments upon which a stamp tax is required by the act of congress of October 22, 1914:

"The attention of bankers throughout the state is called to the ruling that bills of exchange or acceptances which are used in lieu of promissory notes for the purpose of borrowing money are subject to the stamp tax, and are taxable at the rate of 2 cents for each hundred dollars or fraction part of that amount.

"The attention of clerks and courts of justices of the peace who are called on to issue abstracts of judgment, is called to the ruling that the official certificate attached to an abstract of judgment is subject to the stamp tax on certificates.

"The attention of tax collectors throughout the state is called to the ruling that powers of attorney, commonly called orders, under which one party is authorized to pay poll tax for another party, are subject to the stamp tax imposed upon powers of attorney by the act of congress of October 22, 1914. Each of said orders or powers of attorney must bear a twenty-five cent revenue stamp before the tax collector is authorized to accept it, and where more than one person sign the same order, it must be stamped separately for each person signing it.

"The attention of banks is also called to the ruling of the treasury department that certificates of deposit issued by one bank to another for borrowed money, are subpect to the stamp tax on promissory notes but certificates of deposit issued to its customers are not subject to the stamp tax."

BREAKS A COLD IN A FEW HOURS

First Dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" Relieves All Grippe Misery.

Don't stay stuffed-up!

Quit blowing and snuffing! A dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" taken every two hours until three doses are taken will end grippe misery and break up a severe cold either in the head, chest, body or limbs.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages; stops nasty discharge or nose running; relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

"Pape's Cold Compound" is the quickest, surest relief known and costs only 25 cents at drug stores. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, and causes no inconvenience. Don't accept a substitute.

Supt. Abbott Strong for County School Day

"When I close up next Friday afternoon it will be until the following Monday morning," emphatically declared R. L. Abbott, superintendent of county instruction, yesterday. "I intend to spend every minute of County School Day at the Cotton Palace—absolutely there is nothing that can cause me to change my plans aside from a dismissal interference of Providence."

Superintendent Abbott has been giving much of his time in an effort to make County School Day one of the big events of the big show. It is expected that eevry teacher in the county and a large per cent of the pupils will be at the Cotton Palace grounds on that date. The program is one of the more attractive of the entire period. It has been carefully arranged with special attention to educational matters.

Central Christian Church Anniversary Service.

Today's service at Central Christian church will mark the close of a total of ten years' work with this church by the pastor, F. N. Calvin; seven years his first pastorage and three years of service on his last call. In commemoration of same there will be a review of all these years of work and growth and change. Every member who was present when he preached his first sermon in 1894 on "Love," is urged to be present, every person who came into the church during the ten years of his service are urged to attend.

It will be a great day with the church, a day of pleasant memories, a day of special song and prayer, and reconsecration, and enlarged visions for the work of the next ten years.

The Sunday school will open at 9:30 with a special service, followed by the preaching services at 10:30 and at at 7:30 p. m.

All are cordially invited to attend.

WOMEN LIVE LONGEST.

Female Baby Should Live Forty-eight Years; Male Forty-four.

The table of expectation of life at various ages for region in the neighborhood of New York City has been made public in a report of the department of health. This shows a male baby just born should live to be 41 years. A female baby at birth has an expectation of 48 years. If they arrive at 10 years, the male should live to be 56 years and the female child 60 years. This shows that the first 10 years are dangerous, and happily past.

At 20 years the male should have the hope of reaching his 58th year, and the female her 61st year. At 30 years the male is due to be 60, and the female should attain 63 years. At 40 years the male should look forward to 23 more years of life, the female to 26 more years. If the 50 years is attained the male still should reach 67, and the female 69. More gain, because another difficult climax has past. So that at 60 the male will reach 71, and the female 72 years.

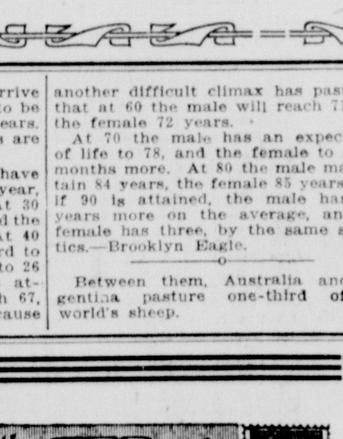

At 70 the male has an expectation of life to 78, and the female to a few months more. At 80 the male may attain 84 years, the female 85 years. And if 90 is attained, the male has two years more on the average, and the female has three, by the same statistics.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Between them, Australia and Argentina pasture one-third of the world's sheep.

NOW'S THE TIME FOR PLANNING 1916 CROP

INTELLIGENT EFFORT MUST BE EMPLOYED IN ADVANCE TO GET BEST RESULTS.

SROULD GO SLOW ON COTTON

Small Acreage Holds Out Only Prospects for Remunerative Price Declares Correspondent.

Now is the time to begin planning for next year's crops—how much cotton to plant, how much corn, how much cane, sweet potatoes and forage; how to prepare the land, what kind of seed to use, and how much labor, horsepower and machinery to employ. Unquestionably the successful man in every line of business farming included is he who looks ahead, plans and systematizes his work to suit the conditions with which he has to deal. We cannot undertake, in the narrow compass of one article, to deal with all of these questions; the cropping system itself is quite enough for us to take on, but we want to discuss that in some detail, and in the light of permanent principles and of the extraordinary conditions with which we shall have to deal during the coming year.

Beware of Too Much Cotton.

Cotton has brought a good price this fall, and there is going to be a well nigh irresistible temptation next spring to plant the whole farm, including the roads and the fence-rows, to cotton. This thing must not happen. If it does cotton will sell next fall at 6 to 8 cents a pound, as it did in the fall of 1914. The reason that we got a good price for cotton this fall is that we made a small crop—only about 11,000,000 bales, against 16,000,000 bales last year; not because normal conditions and a normal cotton market have been restored. They have not been, and they will not be until the principal disturbing cause—the war in Europe—has been removed. The acreage next year ought to be held down to that of the present year; for, while there probably will not be as much cotton carried over this year as there was last, we should anticipate as large a visible supply this time next year as we have now, as our yield, if normal, will be considerably larger than the acre yield which we have made this year.

$220,000,000 Clear.

At this point in our argument for a limited cotton acreage let us stop and see how we have come out with our small cotton crop this year. If you will sit down with your pencil and paper and do a little figuring you will find that our 11,000,000-bale crop this year is going to bring at least $80,000,000 more in aggregate gross return for lint than our 16,000,000-bale crop of last year brought. Then it has taken at least $80,000,000 less to pick and market this year's crop than last year's, and at least $90,000,000 less to produce it. In short, this 11,000,000-bale crop, because of increased prices, has left the cotton growers with at least $220,000,000 more than last year's crop, considering the lint only. The seed greatly increases the advantage in favor of this year's crop; but, owing to the fact that it is more difficult to get figures on the seed, we have not taken it into consideration. The big, powerfully impressive fact is that by leaving off a considerable percentage of our cotton acreage this year and planting to other crops we have gotten a big crop of food and feed, and, at the same time, considering both lint and seed, we have gotten probably $250,000,000 more out of the cotton. Surely this will put people to thinking.

But the present year has not furnished us our only experience along this line. For many decades our small crops of cotton have brought more money than our large crops, at the same time costing a great deal less to make and to gather. It is going to be the same way in the years to come. Where, then, is the sense, especially in a time like this of reduced cotton consumption and of badly disturbed economic conditions, of neglecting food, feed and everything else in order to plant the whole South to cotton? Are the corn, wheat, oats, forage, molasses, potatoes and meat which go with with a small cotton crop a burden to us?

We believe, in fact, that every thinking man will agree that we ought to plant a reduced cotton acreage again next year. The trouble is going to be encountered in the handling of the individual farmer. The cotton-growing South is made up of individual farmers, and when there begins to be serious talk about reducing production in a crop of any kind the individual farmer concludes forthwith that now is the time to plant the biggest crop of his life so as to come in strong on the high prices. It is not likely, therefore, that we shall have much cotton reduction next year, unless some way can be found for controlling the individual farmer. He was not much trouble to control this year, because he confidently expected low-priced cotton this fall; but, with the present good prices for cotton, it will be quite a different problem next year, if we may judge by the experience of the past.

Organized Control of Acreage.

To our way of thinking there are two feasible ways in which the acreage may be controlled. One is for the farmers of each community to organize a diversification club and have each member pledge himself to plant only so many acres of cotton to the hand. The other is for bankers and merchants to make it a condition for advances of money and goods that only so many acres of cotton shall be planted to the hand. This would be a radical departure from the practice of past years, it is very true—they have been in the habit of forcing farmers to plant big cotton crops as security for money and supplies—but if the bankers and merchants will only consider the well-established fact that a small crop of cotton is in every way more valuable to the farmer than a large one they surely will have no misgivings about making the departure.

All that would be necessary is a general understanding and agreement between them so as to insure an increased price commensurate with the reduction in acreage; and it seems to us that this could be handled without any great difficulty through the merchants' and bankers' associations. Intelligent farmers see the need of reducing the cotton acreage collectively, but it will require organized effort on their part and that of the business interests to handle the problem of the individual farmer.

Home-Living Crop System.

Then what shall we plant on the erstwhile cotton land? Well, a portion of it, if one prefers, may be planted to some other money crop—wheat and kafir or milo on the prairies of Texas and Oklahoma; peanuts, cowpeas and sweet potatoes on the sandy lands of East Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana; ribbon cane on the bottom lands of Louisiana and adjacent territory in Texas; and forage crops, that can be turned into money in the forms of beef and pork, almost anywhere. But a large proportion of it, we believe, ought to be utilized in the production of food for the family and feed for the stock. These things can be raised much cheaper than they can be bought at the enormous credit which people usually have to pay. As we see it, the cropping system ought to be planned to accomplish four great objects, to-wit:

1. To Feed the Family—It ought to include a vegetable garden, an Irish potato patch, a sweet potato patch, a small crop of wheat to make the flour and a patch of sorghum or ribbon cane to make the molasses.

2. To Feed the Livestock.—It ought to include a large crop of corn—plenty, in addition to the bread corn, to feed the stock and fatten the meat; plenty of peas, peanuts, sorghum, etc., for hay; rape, grain or something else suitable for hog pacture; and a Bermuda pasture for all the livestock.

3. To Furnish at Least Two Money Crops—Cotton and one or more of those we have mentioned, or some other crops which produce well and for which there is a good market in the section where they are to be grown. This is suggested for the average man only; there are many farmers who do better without the cotton. But, at all events, we think there ought to be more than one money crop, so as to reduce the danger of disaster from short yields or low prices.

4. To Improve the Land—In growing food and feed crops to supply all the farm needs the variety of products is sufficiently extended to enable a man to establish on his place one or more regular crop rotation systems for soil improving. Here are two of the simplest and most natural rotations for the great body of a cotton farm, and the ones which are most generally advocated in Southern agricultural literature:

Rotation No. 1.

First year, cotton.
Second year, corn, with peas between the rows.
Third year, oats, followed by peas same season.

Rotation No. 2.

First year, cotton.
Second year, corn, with peas between the rows.
Third year, peanuts.
Fourth year, oats, followed by peas the same season.

Wheat might be substituted for oats in the above or it might be added to the oats; and a number of other good combinations and rotations might easily be worked out by the studious farmer. As a matter of fact, rotations ought to be worked out for all the crops that are regularly grown on the place; even the less important ones, like Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, sorghum, etc., ought to be worked into some sort of systematic rotations. A good one would be: First year, sorghum in rows, with pease between; second year, corn and peas; third year, sweet potatoes.

Stop the Store Account.

The greatest economic problem confronting the farmers of the South today is how to arrange a cropping system that will feed the family, in addition to bringing in a money income, and thus stop the life-sapping store account. Time trading is ruining many of us completely and world without end. It is bad enough to buy feed and food for cash even; but when it comes to paying 50 to 75 per cent interest on top of the dealer's profits, as most men do who trade on time, a man simply saddles a burden on himself that ca do nothing less than oreak his back and ruin his business. Let's stop it. We have shown how, by planting a larger portion of the cotton land to food and feed crops the subsistence for the family and the livestock can be produced as clear gain absolutely. Let's lay out such a system and stick rigidly to it the coming year regardless of temptation.—L. A. Markham in Farm and Ranch.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR CHICAGO WETS PARADE

PROTEST AGAINST MAYOR'S ACTION IN CLOSING SALOONS ON SUNDAY.

Predict 200,000 Marchers Will Be in Lines—City Government Does Not Approve.

By The Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—Officers of the United Societies for Local Self Government have said that the "Home rule and personal liberty" parade to be held tomorrow through the downtown streets of Chicago, as a protest against Mayor William Hale Thompson's action in enforcing the state law closing saloons on Sunday, will be the largest demonstration of its kind ever seen in this country. They have predicted that scores of thousands would be in line, including many trade unionists and numerous women. More than 2,000 organizations of various kinds representing twenty nationalities, were announced as having accepted invitations to participate.

No organization, directly or indirectly, representing the liquor business will be allowed in the column, sponsors for the demonstration announcing that brewers, saloonkeepers, distillers and bartenders who desire to march will do so as individuals or as members of other organizations. An effort was made to provide automobiles for all the women who desired to appear in the demonstration. Plans also were made for the construction of hundreds of floats.

Mayor Thompson declined an invitation to review the procession, sending a letter in which he denounced the demonstration as showing disrespect for law and an attempt to intimidate officials sworn to enforce the statutes. A further evidence of hostility to the parade on the part of the city administration came in the refusal of the building inspector's department to permit erection of a reviewing stand on the La Salle street side of the city hall. W. R. Moorehouse, commissioner of public works in the mayor's cabinet, informed the United Societies' officials that "granting permit for a stand in front of the city hall would place the administration in the light of giving its sanction to the protest."

Invitations to review the marchers were also sent to Governor Edward F Dunne of Illinois and other state, county and city officials.

The United Societies for Local Self Government, under whose auspices the parade will be held, consists of 973 auxiliary organizations. The committee in charge of the parade consists of George Landau, Anton J. Germak, A. H. Rosentiel, C. F. Pettkoske, Leopold Neuman nand William Fischer.

Mr. Landau, who is president of the United Societies, said today:

"The parade was planned as a mighty protest against the action of Mayor Thompson in closing the Chicago saloons Sunday. We want the officials and the citizens of the city and county, state and nation to know how a majority of the population feels on this question. There will be more than 100,000 patriotic American citizens in line. If the weather is fine there will be 200,000 marchers."

The parade is to form in five divisions in different sections of the city and march down town where it will merge into one procession. The north side division will form at La Salle and Illinois streets; the northwest division will form at Milwaukee avenue and Desplaines streets; the west side at Desplaines and Randolph streets; the south side at Harrison and Canal streets, and the southwest side at Blue Island avenue and Harrison street.

The police department issued a permit for the parade but was not asked to guard the line of march. Instead this police work will be done by members of the German, Polish and Bohemian Turner societies.

Child and Animal Protection Bureau to Meet in Austin

Special to the Morning News.

Austin, Texas, Nov. 6.—The annual meeting of the officers and members of the Texas state bureau of child and animal protection will be held at 10:30 Monday morning, Nov. 8, in the senate chamber of the capitol, Austin, Texas.

It is the duty of this bureau to secure the enforcement of laws for the prevention of wrongs to children and cruelty to dumb animals; to appoint local and state agents, to assist in this work, to organize district and county societies and to promote the growth of humane education and sentiment.

There are now twenty-one active societies in the state doing commendable work. At this annual meeting questions will be considered relating to the expansion of the work, placing organizers in the field in order to establish a society in every county.

Chinese Officials Have Difficulty in Quitting Jobs

Peking, Nov. 6.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press.) — President Yuan Shi Kai has issued an order to the state department enjoining the latter to notify high officials both in the capital and the provinces that hereafter they shall not be permitted to tender their resignation "without reasonable and adequate cause."

This order, coming, as it does, at a time when a number of high officials have shown a disposition to leave the service in order to avoid any connections with the monarchial movement, has created a great deal of discussion.

Ill health has been the reason given by a number of officials for their resignation. In some cases the illness of wives, mothers and other relatives has been offered as an excuse. At times within the last month, one would get an impression through reading Chinese newspapers that there was an epidemic of ill health in official families.

Tuan Chi Jui, minister of war, was one of the first officials to leave the government service at the beginning of the present crisis. Many provincial officials took the same action and every day brings rumor of defections in the cabinet.

Before the opening of the monarchial campaign, Dr. Wu Ting Fang accepted an invitation to come to Peking and preside at the opening of an industrial exposition which the government is to inaugurate on Oct. 1. Two weeks ago a statement was printed that the venerable Dr. Wu would be unable to come "because of ill health."

Chinese newspapers which oppose the re-establishment of the monarchy are constantly printing quotations from the speeches of Yuan Shi Kai and other leaders who denounced the monarchy when they were fighting for the establishment of the republic. Attacks and counter-attacks of this sort have made the public men cautious as to their position in the present crisis, and every day brings evidences of the efforts to avoid going on record.

Hsu Shih Chang, the secretary of the state, has refrained from expressing any opinion about the suitability or unsuitability of the change from republic to monarchy. However, he served under the previous monarchy before becoming a cabinet member under the republic, and it is generally known that he said he would not care to rest under the brand of "being a minister serving two dynasties" and will resign if another emperor ascends to the throne supposed to belong to the Tsing dynasty.

(Hsu Shih Chang has already resigned his office, according to advices received in Washington Oct. 29.)

There is also dissension in the constitution drafting committee. One member has already resigned and other members are reported by the opposition press to be ready to do so if they be required to draft a constitution providing for a monarchy.

DANGEROUS CALOMEL IS SELDOM SOLD NOW

Calomel Salivates! It Makes You Sick and You Lose a Day's Work —Dodson's Liver Tone Acts Better Than Calomel and Is Harmless for Men, Women, Children—Read Guarantee!

Every druggist in the South—your druggist and everybody's druggist, has noticed a great falling-off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist. A large family-sized bottle costs only 50 cents and if you find it doesn't take the place of dangerous, salivating calomel you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a teaspoonful at night and wake up feeling fine, no sick headache, ague, sour stomach or clogged bowels. Dodson's Liver Tone doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all next day like calomel.

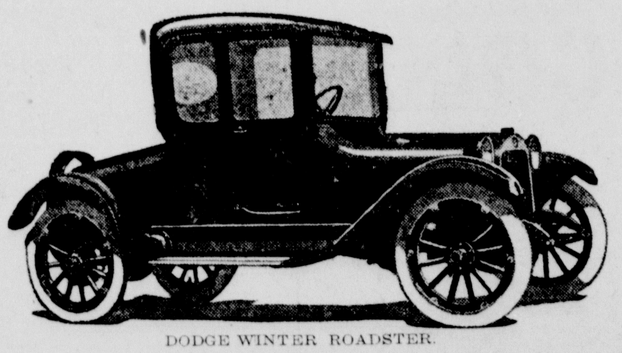

Take a dose of calomel tonight and tomorrow you will feel sick, weak and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up with your head clear, your liver active, bowels clean, breath sweet and stomach regulated. You will feel cheerful and full of vigor and ready for a hard day's work.

You can eat without risk of salivating yourself or your children.

Get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and try it on my guarantee. You'll never again put a dose of nasty, dangerous calomel into your stomach.

Carroll Field Is Being Put Into Shape for Soccer Football

For several days there has been going on at Baylor a general overhauling of the athletic field and grounds adjoining. The grounds formerly were uneven and thoroughly unfit for the purpose they were supposed to serve. The west side of the athletic field was about five feet higher than the east side, being a grade of five feet in 300 feet. This rendered it almost useless as a field for athletic activities and especially soccer football.

The west side has been arranged for the laying-off of a soccer field and the men are already preparing to begin practice. There will also be a piece of ground to the south of this field to be used as courts for basketball.

Later, it is hoped that the whole field can be utilized for the various phases of athletics at the university. Field events will be introduced and carried on continually after the new regime gets under headway. It is thought that there will be very opportunity for the new men to take part in some kind of outdoor sport for health's sake, whenever they choose.

Santa Claus Rides In Waco Day Parade 10 O'Clock Tuesday

Santa Claus will be in the Waco Day parade greeting his many little friends who live in Waco and the many others who will be visiting in Waco for the Texas Cotton Palace. Santa will arrive early Tuesday morning in plenty of time for the big Waco Day parade which starts at 10 o'clock. Santa has been coming to Waco for a number of years and making his headquarters at the Sanger store, which he has planned to do again this year. This, however, will be his first visit during Cotton Palace time.

Sanger Brothers are constructing a big float that is to be especially decorated and equipped to carry Santa Claus and his toys. The float is to be twenty by twenty-four feet. A canopy effect for Santa Claus to sit on and out from this canopy effect will extend a huge "Horn of Plenty" or cornucopia filled and pouring forth the newest and latest toys from Santa Claus' work shop.

This great float graced by the kindly old man of Christmas time will be one of the features of the Waco Day parade on Tuesday.

Ministers and Press Invited to Inspect Shadow of the Cross

A special press reception given by the management of the famous miracle painting "The Shadow of the Cross," will take place at the Cotton Palace Monday evening at 8 o'clock sharp. Two hundred personal invitations have been mailed to the local ministers, educational heads and teachers, citizens prominent in the social and civic life of Waco and the local press. Mr. Smith, the manager of "The Shadow of the Cross," states that no admission tickets will be sold to the general public during the reception and recipients of the invitation are requested to be on hand sharp at 8 o'clock, as invitation is by card only.

This remarkable painting is causing considerable speculation as to the mysterious force which causes the strange luminosity which appears only in total darkness and the attendance bids fair to rival that of two years ago.

Quality First Motto of Firestone Company

When President H. S. Firestone of the Firestone Tire and Rubber company was asked concerning the new additions to the big plant at Akron, Ohio, he replied: "Our growth, no doubt, seems remarkable, but more than any other force our rigid insistence on "Quality First" in everything connected with the manufacture of our tires is responsible for our vast volume of business.

"We make the very best tire we know how. The best brains, the finest materials, the most painstaking efforts and the utmost care are used in producing Firestones. The one idea of quality is uppermost both in the factory and in the many places that offer Firestone service.

"Naturally, the public is a factor in our increase, for motorists use Firestones and realize that quality is their foremost feature. The result is more orders and the factory grows that it may keep up with this demand—a logical outcome, and one of which we are justly proud, for our plant is the world's largest tire concern. Quantity in production is excellent but when quality goes hand in hand with quantity, there is your ideal combination. We feel very much gratified in feeling that we are in possession of that combination."

First Baptist Church.

Sunday at the First Baptist church, corner South Fifth and Webster streets, there will be preaching by the pastor, Rev. J. M. Dawson, at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. His morning subject will be "The Transformation of Texas," and at night "The House of Mirth." These will be interesting sermons and we will have fine special and congregational music.

Among the special numbers there will be at the morning service an anthem by the choir, "How Beautiful Upon the Mountains," by Woodworth, also a duet will be sung by Mrs. Rousseau and Prof. Evans, and at night the choir will render "Great Is the Lord," by Keck, while Mr. J. D. Isaacks will sing "Somebody Knows," by Ackley.

Bible school meets at 9:30 a. m., D. S. Dodson, superintendent. All members are urged to be on hand and on time to welcome the many strangers in the city who will want to worship with us.

EIGHTY-FOUR PARTY FOR COTTON PALACE GUEST

An Eighty-four party was given on Friday evening by Mrs. M. M. Graves of North Twelfth street in honor of Mrs. English of Oklahoma, a visitor to the Cotton Palace. The house was tastefully decorated with chrysanthemums and amid the enthusiasm and excitement of the game the prizes fell to Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hafer. A tempting salad course was the aftermath.

The guests included Messrs. and Mesdames Sydney Gay, E. L. Thomas, Charles Eichelberger, J. N. Lemond, J. C. Byron, W. M. Caldwell, F. L. Christman, M. S. Clifton, J. L. Valentine, with Dr. and Mrs. Alex Spencer and Frank Fillingim.

THEATRE PARTY FOR MISS OUIDA FERGUSON

Miss Helen Williams of West Columbus entertained Miss Ouida Ferguson Friday evening with a theatre party at the Rex to see Geraldine Farrar, after which came a dance and refreshments at home. The guests were Misses Adrienne and Gaylie Wilkes, Virginia Eddens, Katharine Spindle, Nancy Rose Clisbee; Messrs. William Duncan, Scott Hill, Herman Olenbush, Connally Willis, William Fall, Cyrus Searcy, Martin Hardin.

MRS. TOOMIM HOSTESS FOR BRIDE OF TODAY

Mrs. Emanuel Toomim entertained at bridge for Miss Irma Bassist, a coming bride, on Friday evening. Parlors were decorated with palms and chrysanthemums, disposed in an attractive manner. Mrs. A. S. Haber made the highest score and was awarded a box of stationery; the consolation fell to Mrs. Sydney Goldman.

Those in the game were Mesdames Auerback, Simon of Gafford, Ariz.; Mothner of Beaumont, Sydney Marks, Sackett of El Paso, Roddy, Goldman, Haber, Cohen, Sachs, Benedict, Hurley of Spokane, Wash., and Miss Mildred Rosentein.

The Friday Bridge club played last with Mrs. Sydney Burroughs and voted to disband until after the Cotton Palace.

WOMEN OF NEWSPAPER FAMILIES ARE CALLED

The following call has been issued:

"We, the committee appointed by W. V. Crawford, Cotton Palace director, to assist in entertaining visiting ladies accompanying editors on Press Day, Thursday, Nov. 11, do herewith write and earnestly request all wives, sisters and daughters of local editors or newspaper men to meet us at the Y. M. B. L. rooms on the 11th at 10:30 a. m. Come prepared to stay with them if possible all day.

And You Wake Up With Beautiful Curly Hair!

(Town Tattler.)

This is a secret that will, I know, be appreciated by my lady who dislikes the tedious and "nervous" task of twisting her locks around a heated iron, perhaps singeing the hair, burning off the ends, and blistering fingers or scalp in the operation. From any druggist procure a few ounces of pure liquid silmerine and at night pour a little onto a clean tooth brush and draw this down the full length of the hair. A simple thing to do, but remarkably effectual, as will be apparent in the morning.

The hair will have a wonderfully soft, fluffy curliness, much more natural looking, glossier and livelier in appearance than where a waving iron has been used. Silmerine doesn't make the hair sticky or greasy, and there will be no trouble doing it up in any style desired.—Olga Ormsbee.

Society Notes

Jacque Sachs has won two prizes in the cotton modelling department; first, on the "Queen of the Brazos," and third prize on cotton furniture.

The Evangelia Settlement's annual report will appear later, as it is unavoidably crowded out this week.

The Central Grammar School Parents' at home day is the fourth Friday of each month with a regular program, as usual. The parents must know and feel that they are welcome at any time, but this is designated as their special day. The first will be Friday of next week.

The Shakspere club will not meet on Monday, nor until further notice.

We call special attention to the public health booth in the Cotton Palace, readily located by the presence of a public nurse whose business it is to look after the interest of this department, to dispense literature and information generally. The Palette and Brush club has given artistic touches to its interior, making it an attractive corner, but the chief interest is in the good it hopes to accomplish in bringing its objects before the public.

Society Personals

Miss Katharine Lewis, who has spent several months in San Antonio, will return Wednesday.

Miss Kate Friend is in New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Harrison have apartments at the Riggins until settled permanently in a home of their own in Waco.

YOUNG ACTOR'S HIT.

Chas. Roy Had Worked Hard for Years and Became Famous Over Night in "The Coward."

In "The Coward," the new Ince-Triangle play at the _____ next _____, playgoers will notice in one scene a horse with his rider falling over backward while in full flight crossing a bridge that spans a deep river. The scene is almost unbelievable in its wild daring. It causes an audible gasp of astonishment from the spectators. They ask "Who is the young man who has done this thing?"

He is Charles Ray, a young actor of the Ince-Triangle studio near Los Angeles, where "The Coward" was staged. Mr. Ray does many other remarkable things in "The Coward." For instance, he gives an absolutely truthful and sincere portrayal of a craven and a weakling in the first part of the story. Then by a marvel of characterization he shows the weakling transformed into a hero by the big opportunity of doing something for the Confederate cause. There follows the wild gallop to fetch the news to the Confederate lines, the shooting of the boy unwittingly by his own father, and then some thrilling bedside scenes where the wounded youth and his parents meet. Throughout Mr. Ray conveys the sense of a real character, the soul that suffers agony in the depths and then awakens to spiritual triumph and victory. New York, Chicago and Philadelphia papers sang the praises of his work.

As has been said, Ray worked obscurely for years as a member of Ince's studio. Fame came to him overnight. It is interesting to learn that his parents did not want him to be an actor. They intended him for a profession or for business. Born in Jacksonville, Ill., he went to school in Springfield, then was sent for his health to live for three years on the Arizona desert. Afterward he attended high school and business college in Los Angeles. Musical comedy called him, and he had several long singing engagements on the coast. But the pictures "got" the young man at last, although he had intended to work only six weeks for Mr. Ince as a "flier." He has been with him ever since, and it is dollars to doughnuts that Chas. Ray will stay with him, too.

Serbia's Great Hero.

(London Daily Chronicle.)

Marko Kraljevic, who, with his piebald horse Sharatz, interests many Englishment today, for the first time, has been the Serbian hero for over five centuries. Sir Charles Eliot expresses considerable doubt whether most of his exploits are actually historical; but, like William Tell, and many others, he has the only reality that matters. Serbia's historical ballads, written in 10-syllabled metre, with occasional variations, and as uncertain in origin as Homer, fall into three main cycles. One tells the glories of the great reign of Dushan, one centres around the disastrous battle of Kossovo, and the other is concerned with the mighty deeds of Marko Kraljevic and his charger. The ballads are described as admirable in tehir simplicity, vividness and deep feeling.

His Reason.

Joseph Coyne, the American comedian, who is a greater favorite in London than at home, has turned from musical comedy to comedy pure and simple, and at a supper party at Romano's he said of this change:

"It's a change for the better Despite my success in 'The Merry Widow,' I've got no voice, and I know it.

"I was motoring last summer in Devon. At the old-fashioned inn at Combe Martin they've got a visitors' book. I stopped at Combe Martin just after Pavlowa had been there, and I saw that she had writen in the visitors' book:

"'I dance because I must.—Anna Pavlowa.'

"Well, I wrote underneath that:

"'I sing because I can't.—Joe Coyne."—Exchange.

MINISTRY OLDEST IN HISTORY.

De Freycinet, Dean of Cabinet, Is 87. Several Well Over 70.

Owing to the advanced years of some of the venerable statesmen whom Briand has enrolled in the cabinet, the average age of the new ministry is greater than that of any preceding French administration. Charles Louis de Freycinet, who was a member of parliament in 1870 and premier seven times between 1880 and 1892, is 87; Emile Combes is 80, Felix Jules Meline is 77, Leon Burgeois and Denys Cochin each 64. Like Freycinet, all have been premiers and are senators, except Cochin, who is a deputy representing a Paris district. The oldest member of the Viviani ministry was Ribot, who is 73.—Paris correspondence of New York World.

1916 Studebaker Has Plenty of Power to Cross Big Mountains

That the 1916 Studebakers possess abundant power for meeting the contingencies of long distance touring was satisfactorily demonstrated in the drive made by C. T. Johnson, from the Detroit factories, to his home at Moscow, Idaho. Mr. Johnson encountered mires, rocky and gullied roads, long crooked hills and five sharply graded mountain ranges, but the Studebaker motor at no time required outside assistance. His wife and daughter joined him en route and they carried a camping outfit, getting all the healthful enjoyment to be had from an automobile tour through the wilds, over plains and through the Western Rockies.

The little Missouri river was crossed over the railway bridge because of a washout. While crossing the Continental Divide, Johnson met motoring parties who were using horses to make the steep climb, and still others who were forced to tarry while their motors cooled off. The Studebaker gave him no trouble, and it was necessary to go into low gear for short distances on but a few occasions, in taking steep mountain grades. Nor was carburetor adjustment required for making these ascents.

U. OF T. HOMECOMING MAY BE THANKSGIVING

MOVEMENT SPONSORED BY LAW ASSOCIATION TO CHANGE TIME FROM JUNE.

Prominent Men of State Will Address Lawyers Who Were Former Students at Meeting Nov. 24.

Austin, Nov. 6.—The first step in making Thanksgiving an occasion of University of Texas homecoming instead of commencement has been taken by the University of Texas Law association, which organization comprises all lawyers formerly of the University of Texas law department. The association was organized in June, 1914, and at its meeting in June, 1915, it was decided that future meetings should take place at the University of Texas on the day preceding Thanksgiving, so that members could take advantage of the occasion to visit Austin and see the Thanksgiving football game on the day following the meeting of the association.

The late W. T. Bartholomew was president until his death, at which time he was succeeded by R. L. Batts, vice president. Sam Lackey of Cuero is vice president, and Charles S. Potts, professor of law, University of Texas, is secretary and treasurer. The meeting of the association will be called at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning preceding Thanksgiving, and the meeting will continue throughout the day with the usual adjournments. In the evening the association will attend the big football rally for the Notre Dame game, and at the end of this rally, which will consume only an hour, Judge Nelson Phillips will address the association. The general subject which the association will consider at this meeting is "Needed Changes in the Judiciary and Judiciary Procedure in Texas." Addresses will be made on various phases of this subject by Judge W. H. Kimbrough, '96; Judge Wm. H. Key, '02, of the court of civil appeals; Rhodes S. Baker, '97; Jesse Andrews, '96, and Prof. Geo. C. F. Butte.

Prof. Potts, secretary of the association, expresses confidence that the meeting will be largely attended. He has received letters from many of the older alumni, including letters from such influential members as Allan D. Sanford of Waco and C. K. Lee of Fort Worth, all enthusiastic in support of the new meeting time and feeling confident that the time is not far off when the homecoming will be Thanksgiving instead of the June commencement as at present.

Commenting upon the desirability of Thanksgiving over commencement for the homecoming of former students, Charles K. Lee of Fort Worth says:

"I believe Thanksgiving day is possibly the better time for this gathering.

"Commencement is essentially a senior occasion; they and their festivities are entitled to and receive first consideration; a great majority of ex-students returning at commencement are parents or relatives of graduates; their first interest is in the graduates, and university affairs generally and the obligation of ex-students to interest themselves therein does not hold their very strong attention at commencement time.

"Thanksgiving is becoming quite a general holiday, though not essentially a home-staying day like some others, and the undivided attention of the ex-student body in the forenoon of Thanksgiving day is more likely to be had than on any day at commencement. Mid-June is not good working weather in Texas, and the indisposition to do anything that seems like work when it can be avoided applies just as well to an ex-student in meeting assembled as to anyone else."

It is expected that the senior law class will attend the meeting of the association almost to a man and get acquainted with the older members of the profession in the state. There will be music furnished by the university band, also songs by the Glee club for the entertainment of the meeting. Convention rates have been secured on all railroads and hotel accommodations in Austin will be ample and reasonable according to Prof. Potts.

This is one of the most popular styles of all the period reproductions. It is a Charles the Second motif of the Jacobean period, and is finished in the rich nut brown so popular in the old English homes. It is appreciated by those who care for distinction and character in Furniture. See this suite in our show windows.

This is undoubtedly one of the pleasing styles for modern homes. It is a reproduction of an Adam design and is beautiful in its simplicity. A similar suite may be had in Ivory, Mahogany or Circassian Walnut. This suite is representative of the Adam period, but we have many from which a selection may be made to suit the individual taste.

Here is shown a typical Adam living room suite. It is especially designed for loose cushions, and may be seen complete in our front show window. Furniture of this type is dainty and beautiful. The reasonable prices will surprise you. Come in and see our offerings. It will be a pleasure to show you without any obligation to buy.

AIDS POOR MARRIED MAN.

Salvation Army Provides Work When They Lose Jobs.

How a married man may supply his wife and children with food and warmth during long periods of unemployment is the problem that the Salvation Army is attempting to solve.

Col. R. E. Holz, provincial commander, announced that a building to be officially known as the Social Service Center of the Salvation Army has been purchased at a cost of $20,000. The building is at 1226 Parrish street, and to put it in readiness for the work an additional $22,000 will be expended.

Briefly, the sponsors of the new enterprise plan to engage married men who are unemployed to gather various articles of clothing and furniture contributed by residents of the city. The material will be carried to the social service house and placed in salable shape. At stated intervals the goods will be sold, and the funds raised will be divided among the men employed.

That the money will be spent for the comfort of those dependent upon the workers, no cash payments will be made, and each man will be given the equivalent of his wages in food and clothing. It is planned to give employment to 400 men during the winter months. Fifty teams and several automobiles are to be used in the house-to-house canvass for cast-off materials.

The new social center will also serve as a home for single men who apply fair aid. Heretofore much of the work of the Salvation Army industrial homes has been along the line of caring for the unmarried "down and outer" who drifted from the streets hungry and anxious for a night's lodging.

The first floor of the new home will be used as a warehouse and office. The second floor will have a chapel, meeting room and storerooms. On the third floor will be the kitchen, dining room and reading rooms, and on the top floor will be the dormitories. A stable and garage will be attached to the rear wing of the new building.—Philadelphia North American.

AS CHINESE SEE US.

Our Women Leave Their Feet Free, But Bind Their Waists.

An American teacher in Peking asked his Chinese students to write a composition on their impressions of foreigners, particularly Americans. This is one student's effort, entitled, "What I Think About Americans, etc."

"Japanese customs are nearly the same as our country, but they love cleanness and also fond of swimming. The German people so love their mustache that every morning they do nothing but comb their mustache. The English soldiers play football every day, but the well educated people are fond of tennis. The Americans are a country of much interest. They are famous for their baseball and dancing. Turks, Finns and Laplanders all have dirty clothes on, and are not so wise as French, etc., that they are hired for waiters and slaves.

"The Americans are quite clean like the Japanese and eat clean food so they have little time to catch ill. Americans take their wives whenever they travel. Most of the Europeans have beards, but the Americans shave every day.

"Women of America bind their waists very tightly so that the short circumference appear. There are two very wonderful customs, that is the Chinese women binding their feet and the foreign women binding their waists. Each of these customs is very bad. I hope Chinese and foreign women abandon these customs. Also American men have strange custom to go high under the chin with hard cloth which is called collar.

"Dresses and ornaments are exceedingly nice in America. The English have no means to that, but their food eating is much more expensive than the Americans."—World Outlook.

If you feel bad and grouchy, like you were sent for and wouldn't do when you got there, take Oxidine, a general chill and malarial tonic, according to directions. It will put you on your feet again.—(Adv.)

A Message To Women

Those of Middle Age Especially.

When you have found no remedy for the horrors that oppress you during change of life, when through the long hours of the day it seems as though your back would break, when your head aches constantly, you are nervous, depressed and suffer from those dreadful bearing down pains, don't forget that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the safest and surest remedy, and has carried hundreds of women safely through this critical period.

Read what these three women say:

From Mrs. Hornung, Buffalo, N. Y.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—"I am writing to let you know how much your medicine has done for me. I failed terribly during the last winter and summer and every one remarked about my appearance. I suffered from a female trouble and always had pains in my back, no appetite and at times was very weak.

"I was visiting at a friend's house one day and she thought I needed Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it and have gained eight pounds, have a good appetite and am feeling better every day. Everybody is asking me what I am doing and I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. You may publish this letter if you wish and I hope others who have the same complaint will see it and get health from your medicine as I did."—Mrs. A. HORNUNG, 91 Stanton St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Made Me Well and Strong.

MACEDON, N.Y.—"I was all run down and very thin in flesh, nervous, no appetite, could not sleep and was weak, and felt badly all the time. The doctors said I had poor blood and what I had was turning to water. I took different medicines which did not help me, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me well and strong, and I am recommending it to my friends."—Mrs. FRED CHACE, R. No. 2, Macedon, N.Y.

The Change of Life.

BELTSVILLE, MD.—"By the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I have successfully passed through a most trying time, the Change of Life. I suffered with a weakness, and had to stay in bed three days at a time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored me to perfect health, and I am praising it for the benefit of other women who suffer as I did."—Mrs. W. S. DUVALL, Route No. 1, Beltsville, Md.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

THE BATHROOM OF TODAY

is indeed a luxury. But it is one that is not confined to the wealthy alone. Any ordinary family can afford one. And the added comfort, pleasure and health it insures is well worth the modest investment required to equip one. We should like to give you a few figures on the subject. Shall we call or will you?

Not Fair.

Ever since they came to school that morning two of the boys had been persistently naughty. At last, therefore, the teacher, now thoroughly exasperated, turned to them angrily and said that they must stay in during play time until each had written his name one thousand times.

Play time duly came and, as the rest of the class rose and hastened from the room to enjoy a spell of freedom, the two miscreants settled down to their irksome imposition.

Five minutes later the teacher returned to see how they were getting on, and found a heated argument in progress.

"Come, come!" she asked. "What's the matter now?"

Whereupon one of the boys burst into tears.

"Taint fair, mum!" he gasped. "His name's Jim 'Bust' and mine's Alexander O'Shaughnessy." — Exchange.

A Welcome Change.

(New York Times.)

"You look very smiling this morning, Binks," said Harkaway.

"I guess I ought to be. I went to a fortune teller last night and she prophesied immediate reverses," chortled Binks.

"I fail to see anything very joyous in that," said Harkaway.

"You would if you knew anything about my finances," said Binks. "I tell you right now that if they don't reverse pretty dinged quick I'll be busted."

CROWDS ADMIRE THE SANGER BROS. BOOTH

ELABORATE SCHEME MAKES EXHIBIT GREATEST OF FIRM'S LIST OF ACHIEVEMENTS.

MODEL OF INTERURBAN SHOWN

Exact Replica of Line Between Waco and Dallas With Cars in Motion. Beautiful Ball Room Scene.

Each year Sanger Brothers present a most elaborate and gorgeous display of the season's richest and most rare creations in men's, women's and children's apparel in their exhibits in the main building of the Texas Cotton Palace Exposition and the splendid settings that have appeared in the Sanger exhibit at the Texas Cotton Palace have been so magnificent as to be the cause of much favorable comment in Texas daily papers printed in other cities.

Each exhibit aside from the beautiful settings and the handsome merchandise displayed has contained each time some extraordinary special feature. Two years ago the famous painting the "Village Blacksmith," valued at $65,000, was exhibited by Sanger Brothers at the Cotton Palace, and last year the exhibit contained the $7,500 silver service that was presented to the United States battleship Texas by the Young Men's Business League of Waco and the public spirited citizens of the state of Texas.

This Year's Exhibit the Best Sanger Brothers Have Ever Made.

Following out a well established custom of doing things better and in a more elaborate style each succeeding time, Sanger Brothers have this year created the most beautiful and elaborate exhibit in the history of the concern.

The setting portrays a most brilliant ball room scene showing rich tapestry panels and different drapery achievements designed and executed by the home decorating department of the store. A glance at this splendid tapestry and drapery with its harmonious blending of colors and shades gives one the answer to why Sanger Brothers have so successfully competed with the largest and most exclusive drapery houses in the country in the furnishing of decorative schemes and draperies for so many fine homes in Texas.

In the ball room are life-like wax models dressed in the most elegant of costumes and gowns and all the modish dress accessories, including gloves, hosiery, evening slippers, pumps, and all of the finery and splendor incident to the wearing apparel of men, women and children attending a brilliant social function. There are wax models of men correctly attired in evening clothes and dress accessories. Models of women who have the appearance of having just left their carriages and entered the ball room, these latter are attired in charmingly beautiful evening wraps and furs with gorgeous costumes underneath. Others wear effective dancing frocks and appear ready for the dance. Then there are models of dainty children in pretty dancing dresses, dainty hose and slippers. Some of the models of the women are dressed in the new and most stylish hoop dresses. It is a scene as full of splendor and grandeur as one can possibly imagine. There is not a single dress or costume that is at all like any other dress or costume in the exhibit, which feature successfully portrays the exclusiveness and individuality of the Sanger store's apparel shop.

The furniture used in this grand ball room scene is genuine hand-carved Egyptian furniture valued at many hundreds of dollars. It is finished in delicately tinted cream and gold and tends to set off in an admirable manner the richness of the apparel worn by the models in the exhibit. Sanger Brothers secured this furniture for the special purpose of lending the most elaborate effect possible, thereby making the entire setting in keeping with the character of the merchandise shown.

Every feature of the exhibit is entirely new throughout, no design or plan of a similar nature has ever before appeared in this city.

Model of the Waco-Dallas Interurban Special Feature of the Exhibit.

Skirting the ball room scene in the Sanger exhibit at the Cotton Palace is a perfectly constructed working model of the Waco-Dallas interurban, the track, the ties, the ballast, the trolley wire, the pples and the extensions therefrom duplicating even to the smallest detail the splendid system of the interurban between this city and Dallas. The interurban car is in every way an exact model of the cars that leave Waco and Dallas every hour of the day. All during the Cotton Palace this car will be in continuous motion around the Sanger Brothers exhibit. The entire miniature working model was built by the chief engineer of the Southern Traction company and his assistants. It took them over three months to construct and is perfect in every detail.

At the northern end of the exhibit is an enlarged picture of the Sanger Brothers store at Dallas and at the southern end of the exhibit is the Sanger Brothers store at Waco, correctly emphasizing the fact that the interurban system connects Sanger Brothers, Dallas, and Sanger Brothers, Waco, as well as all intermediate towns with both places.

Sanger Brothers, Dallas, is the first large department store after the interurban reaches Dallas and in Waco the interurban cars make the first stop coming in at the Sanger store and the last stop going out at the Sanger store, and both stores are equipped with interurban ticket stations.

This feature of the exhibit is a splendid attraction and taken with the elaborate ball room scene the Sanger exhibit as a whole is a feature of the exposition well worth while.

Bears Are Fat; Severe Winter Sure.

(Portland Oregonian.)

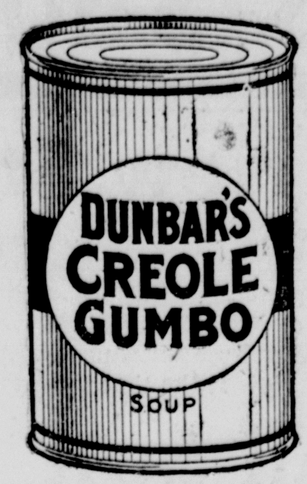

Bear meat is in season now in Hood River and butchers offer fat, juicy roasts from these berry-fed animals.

It is declared by hunters that bears were never fatter than this year, and accordingly a severe winter is being predicted. Charles Abernathy of Mosier, has brought in one of the largest animals for the year. His bear, killed in the range east of this city, weighed 240 pounds dressed.

Dunbar's Creole Gumbo Soup

The fame of New Orleans CREOLE GUMBO has spread over the nation. There is not an epicure in Europe or America who has not heard of it. Its distinctive, savory flavor has been praised in song and story.

New Orleans visitors always demand it. They invariably comment on the fact that it is not obtainable elsewhere. The explanation is simple. In addition to the various necessary ingredients, it is essential that only "CREOLE OKRA" be used. It is a particular variety which seems to thrive only in the territory adjacent to New Orleans. The okra is picked when young and tender, and prepared when fresh. This particular okra cannot be substituted, and for that reason it is impossible to make genuine "CREOLE GUMBO" except in this vicinity. It should be known that comparatively few really understand the art of making the genuine article.

For a number of years "DUNBARS" have planned to make and ship the genuine article all over the country. The main idea all along has been that it must reach your table in exactly the same condition as it is served in New Orleans. We were fortunate in securing one of the first shipments.

Demonstrations Tuesdays and Saturdays Each Week During the Cotton Palace

In order that you may know that not one whit of the savory flavor of this delicious Soup has been lost in canning, we have arranged to serve it to every family in Waco. Come here as our guest and try "THE SOUP THAT MADE NEW ORLEANS FAMOUS." You will taste the genuine article, made under the most sanitary conditions and altogether different from other canned soups. You will find it a treat for the whole family. It is just the thing to serve at dinner parties now. The demonstration will be held only on days above mentioned, and you are cordially invited to partake at booth of

EX-MAYOR BAKER TELLS HOW SITES FOR DAMS GUARANTEED

Details of Plan by Which Bond for Perfection of Title Is Given Government—Honor Roll.

Just before going to California last August I completed perfected title to lock and dam location No. 3 opposite Hearne, after working at it over a year with the assistance of the United States attorney and also a great deal of hard, intelligent work by the Hearne people.

On account of ill health some of my friends agreed to assist in securing lock and dam site No. 6, close to Highbank near Marlin, but from various causes they failed.

A few days since I wired Col. C. S. Richie, United States engineer, to prepare a bond satisfactory to the United States government for our citizens in Waco to sign to protect government till we would have more time to buy, condemn or have donated to us lock No. 8 location. My determination is to ask citizens in the future at Waco and towns close to each to the four locks, not yet secured, Nos. 2, 4, 5 and 7, to make bond in order when the government is ready to go to work they will not be detained, and then we will have all the time we desire to perfect title to each of the four locations.

From what Hon. R. L. Henry and I think, we will get appropriations for the remaining four in 1916, and within five years the whole number of eight locks and dams required by the government will be completed.

Our citizens from Waco and to the mouth of the Brazos river have been asleep for a long time, but since ex-Senator Burton has succeeded in ordering the Brazos re-surveyed and many other rivers in the south and middle west, our people from Waco to the gulf are aroused at last—and well they should be.

Mr. Editor, I wish to give you the roll of honor men who will fight on the firing line. When I went around and got Waco bondsmen but few refused to sign. Signatures: James B. Baker, W. W. Seley, R. S. Lazenby, E. Rotan, S. Archenhold, W. D. Lacy, James H. Lockwood, Sam Sanger, W. R. Clifton, W. H. McCullough, Bart Moore, W. J. Neal, McLendon Hardware Co., R. E. Lane, Artemas R. Roberts, A. R. McCollum, Tom G. Dilworth, Charles E. Moore, R. T. Dennis, W. T. Herrick, G. H. Luedde, Geo. H. Wiebusch, Stark West, W. B. Brazelton, E. R. Nash, C. L. Johnson, Lud Williams, T. J. Primm, Tom Padgitt, J. J. Powers, E. W. Marshall, B. L. Scott, W. B. Haze, N. D. Naman, J. Levinski, A. S. Haber, M. Golding, J. P. Anderson, W. W. Woodson, John F. Wright, F. L. Miller, John M. Dockery, T. B. Dockery, J. D. Oliver, R. M. Ligon, George W. Oliver, W. L. Gear, Provident Drug Co., B. G. Kendall, Edward Toby, Walter G. Lacy, E. E. Thompson, D. M. Wood, W. A. Poage and J. B. Earle.

In order that our citizens may fully understand that there is no great risk in signing these bonds in the future, I would here state about what the different localities have cost us.

Lock No. 1, near Novasota, the entire location given to us, but to perfect title it cost us about $300.

Lost No. 8, just below Waco, J. E. Horne gave us all the land on the west bank. We bought of Major Simms and another Mr. Simms their land, that cost about $600.

Lock No. 3 was a great deal of trouble, and still the whole cost will not exceed $1100. Lock No. 6 citizens made bond for and we are now working at it, and believe the cost will be small, but we can't tell until we go entirely through the matter.

It has nineteen and a half acres of land valued at $50 an acre. We have an easement that may cost us $150. We simply rent that.

I trust our citizens will continue to co-operate with us until final success perches itself upon this great project and that we will all be proud we have done so much for Texas and posterity.

Cery truly,
JAS. B. BAKER.

American War Horses.

(Dundee Advertiser.)

According to figures published by the United States department of agriculture, it is estimated that up to the beginning of September representatives of the allies had bought in America more than 425,000 horses—or rather draft animals, as many mules are included in the total. This seems a considerable number, but it does not by any means exhaust the supply, there being approximately 21,000,000 horses and 4,000,000 mules in the country. Most of the purchases have been brought from the ranches to depots near New York and other large cities, where they would be given a few days' rest, and then be shipped off to England or France, about 1,000 at a time.

New York now issues marriage licenses free.

C. C. Shumway Buys Insurance Business of P. Jack Sanger

This is to inform you that I have sold my insurance business to C. C. Shumway.

I wish to take this opportunity to thank my friends and customers for their past business and many favors extended me while in the insurance business.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) P. JACK SANGER.

As stated above I have bought the insurance business of P. Jack Sanger and will represent the same old line companies that Mr. Sanger has carried in the past. This will not interfere with my real estate business but will be operated in addition to this department.

Assuring you that any business intrusted to me will be appreciated, I am,

Very truly yours,

HONOR TO BRAVE SAILOR BOY.

(Youth's Companion.)

Courage and constancy are qualities that appeal to everyone, irrespective of nationality. Fortunately, they are not rare, even in boyhood. This war has revealed many boy heroes. One of the bravest is a lad of 17, an enlisted "boy" in the British navy. Acting on the recommendation of the board of admiralty, the king has conferred on him a decoration that men have died to win—the distinguished service medal.

R. G. H. Bamford, "boy, first class," of the battle cruiser Tiger, won this honor during the naval engagement off the Rogger Bank Sunday, January 24.

Soon after the battle opened that forenoon the glasses of the sighting apparatus of the Tiger's forward barbette, in which are mounted two 13.5-inch guns, became obscured with smoke and grime. The lieutenant in chage called for a volunteer to clean the glasses. Bamford stepped forward and the next second he was outside and polishing away at the glasses.

The gun crews, in their delight at getting sight of their antagonists again at once began to fire, and in the excitement everyone forgot about the youngster.

Anyone who has been within even a few miles of great guns while they are being fired can form a slight idea of the nerve-racking, ear-splitting concussions that burst out round the lad. But besides that the Tiger was under heavy fire from the German ships, and Bamford was the only member of its crew who was not behind thick armor.

When, toward the end of the fight, some one remembered him he was found on the barbette top, deafened and somewhat dazed, but still wiping the glasses of the sighting apparatus. To use his own language, he had "jist stuck it." But he had only done his duty, no doubt. No one will grudge him the decoration that he now wears proudly on the breast of his canvas jumper.

CHECK SAVED SOTHERN.

(New York Evening Sun.)

E. H. Sothern, who is at present appearing in Alfred Sutro's comedy, "The Two Virtues," at the Booth theatre, narrowly escaped being a poet. In his younger days Mr. Sothern, who had naturally drifted to the stage, which his father before him had so highly adorned, often wrote verse—not for amusement but for the few dollars that his efforts might bring him. And the money so earned usually came in handy.

The actor relates that at one time during the first period of his stage career he had been playing a small part with a company that had done none too well. It was a barnstorming organization purely, and the manager finally gave up the ghost at a far inland point. It was a ghost that had not walked for a long time anyway, so that no one lamented his departure.

After a struggle the players got back to New York. They had not eaten regularly, and most of them were in dire need. Sothern upon his arrival at the metropolis immediately made his way to his old boarding house, which boasted a most reasonable landlady, and there he laid down his bag.

"I haven't a penny," said the actor, "but I will have."

"That's all right," said the landlady. "I've been expecting you for a week or more. Here's a letter that came for you just the other day."

Sothern tore open the letter and to his astonishment found a check for $15. It was for a poem which he had sent to a slow-paying magazine publisher six months before.

"Now," said the overjoyed actor to his smiling landlady, "we eat."

"It's Easy To Make Your Wrinkles Vanish"

Startling Beauty Secrets by America's Famous Self-Made Beauty-Actress.

BY VALESKA SURATT

Quick changes in the condition of the skin are now made possible by the use of a few simple ingredients, used in proper proportion. To be sure that the mixtures are correct, you should mix these ingredients at home yourself. Then you can be certain of a brilliant success. For instance, there is a way to remove the most deep-set wrinkles in a very short time and produce a tremendous difference in the appearance of age.

The following formula makes the skin delightfully plump and youthful, immediately begins to build up the tissues and finally leaves the skin almost as firm and smooth as in early youth. Simply mix two tablespoonfuls of glycerine in a half pint of water and add two ounces of eptol. This is my own formula. Use liberally every day. Soon crow's feet, deep lines, big and little wrinkles, and flabbiness of flesh will disappear. The result in your appearance will be startling. This rarely fails, it is exceedingly economical and is no trouble at all. You can obtain the eptol from the drug store. Save your precious time by laying aside all the so-called wrinkle creams you have been using and try this. You will never regret it.

ROSIE T. N.—Dissolve a teaspoonful of eggol in half a cup of hot water and use as a head wash. Every particle of fatty accumulation, and every dandruff scale will vanish. This method is very economical because you can obtain enough eggol at the drug store for a modest price to give you 12 or 15 of these rare shampoos.

MISS BONHEUR—Many women do not use hair removers because the ordinary preparations for this purpose leave a spot where applied, injure the skin by practically burning off the hair. The only way is to dissolve away the hair and the only thing that will do this is simple sulfo solution. It leaves the skin soft, white and smooth. It never fails to destroy all hair, light or coarse, with great rapidity and ease without ever injuring the most delicate skin or leaving a mark. Try it and you will never use anything else.

MRS. JULIA T.—This cream is a wonderful beautifier. By using it every day on your face, arms, hands, neck and shoulders, the most decided improvement in your complexion will result in a short time. You'll find that all red spots, freckles, muddiness and blemishes will vanish, producing the most exquisite purity and tint. Mix two tablespoonfuls of glycerine in a pint of hot water and add one ounce of zintone. This makes a satiny cream and is more economical and effective than any cream you can buy elsewhere. Nothing else is necessary to make your complexion fascinatingly beautiful. The zintone can be obtained from your druggist.

RUTH C. D.—It is possible in many cases to develop the bust to beautiful, normal proportions, but no absolute assurance of this can be given. Vacuum cups and other mechanical contrivances are injurious. The best way, and a perfectly safe way, is to use a mixture of half a pint of hot water, half a cup of sugar and two ounces of ruetine. Dissolve thoroughly and take two teaspoonfuls after meals and on retiring.

EXASPERATED—You can quickly and positively stop falling of hair by using my mixture of half a pint of alcohol and half a pint of water (or a full pint of bay rum instead of the alcohol and water) and one ounce of beta-quinol. Mix these thoroughly and apply liberally to the hair. This actually compels the hair to grow luxuriantly, and often a growth of several inches a month results. The hair will stop falling, it will become silky, fluffy, and beautifully thick. No hair tonic or invigorator known can compare with it in sure results. It will solve your hair problem from the very moment you start to use it.

MISS R. O. R.—I am sorry you were disappointed in not getting the beta-quinol from your druggist. My secretary will get it for you and send it on if you simply address, "Secretary to Valeska Suratt, Thompson Bldg., Chicago," and enclose the price, which is fifty cents.

CLEMENTINE S.—You can never remove blackheads by face steaming. You can get rid of them in a few moments by rubbing them with a little powdered neroxin, sprinkled on a sponge made wet with hot water. Every blackhead will disappear as if by magic. There is no other known way to get rid of blackheads. Of course it is impossible to squeeze them all out, besides this last method spots up the skin. You can obtain the neroxin at any drug store.

MRS. M. O. G.—Most face powders are too chalky for me. That's why I had my own made after my own formula, and called "Valeska Suratt Face Powder." It is the utmost in powder loveliness, exquisite in fineness and smoothness, and delicate in scent. It is now obtainable at many drug and department stores, or if you find difficulty in obtaining it, write to my secretary as suggested above to Miss R. O. R., enclosing fifty cents, and mentioning white or flesh tint.

Ship Channel Is the Pride of Houston; Where Seventeen Railroads Meet the Sea

For some years past it has been popular to speak of Houston as the city where seventeen railroads meet the sea., and became the slogan of all loyal Houstonians. However, it is no longer a mere slogan, for with the completion of the ship channel it became a fact. Houston is now a deep water port, with an harbor capable of accommodating the largest merchant vessels that ply the ocean trade routes.

The dreams of the pioneers of Houston have come true, and although they did not live to see the consummation of their plans, their children and children's children are going to reap the benefits of their early labors. Others who came after, and had faith no less than they, that Houston was destined to be a great port, and who put their best efforts in the cause, and here to join in with the thousands of present-day Houstonians in the completion of that splendid waterway, the Houston ship channel.

This ship channel is something that every man in Houston is proud of. To a certain degree the building up of Houston as a city has been because of the faith of the people in the channel, for they believed it to be the city's chief commercial asset, and it has been the faith and works of the people of Houston, linked with government skill and money, together with funds provided by Houston, that has brought the sea to Houston's door, and has put the city in direct communication with the great seaport cities of the world.

By referring to this waterway as the Houston ship channel one is really guilty of a misnomer, for while the city of Houston, by the expenditure of both energy and wealth, made the ship channel possible, its usefulness and the benefits which it has created do not enure solely to the city of Houston, but on the contrary, will be reflected in the industrial and commercial markets of every center of population, not alone in Texas, but throughout the central western states. And why? Because the sea has been brought fifty miles nearer to a vast producing and consuming territory, and it has reduced the rail haul to all interior points a distance of fifty miles. To illustrate: Houston, as the nearest port to the interior, offers special advantages to the interior cities, and as it is the rail haul that absorbs most of the freight charges, the nearer the port to the inland cities, the less freight business men will have to pay. For this reason, other Texas cities are vitally interested in the fullest development of our ship channel traffic. To prove this assertion, one has but to review the all-rail rate, as compared to the combination via Houston, thence rail. The first class rate from New York City to Waco is $2.39 per 100 pounds, but by shipping via Houston, thence rail to Waco, that city gets the benefit of Houston water rates, and pays a combination charge of $1.44. The difference between the all-rail rate and the combination of water and rail rate via Houston is there 95 cents per 100 pounds. This amounts up wonderfully with the heavy shipper. On account of alleged quicker service, etc., the rail lines do not meet the competitive rate via the port of Houston. To illustrate further, the first class rate from New York City to Waco via Galveston, then rail, is $1.59, as compared with the Houston combination rate of $1.44, again a saving of 15 cents per 100 pounds.

To further enlarge upon the far-reaching influence of the Houston ship channel upon traffic conditions, much may be made of the movement of grain and other agricultural products grown in the central western states. Here we find the question of sufficient traffic for the maintenance of a number of steamship lines docking at the port of Houston wonderfully simplified. Texas alone, although wonderful in her resources, would not probably have enough exporting and importing to create a port of first magnitude, but a study of the resources and traffic conditions of the western part of the Mississippi valley reveals that Texas will have plenty of help in making Houston a great sea port. And taking them all in all, about fifteen states are interested in the Houston ship channel. Therefore, the Houston ship channel is not alone a Houston project, but one affecting the commerce and the industries of a vast empire. The fifteen states embraced in this territory are practically tributary to Houston, and their products will seek an outlet to the world's markets by the most direct route and at the lowest rates. Both of these demands the ship channel satisfies. Reference to government reports show exports of grain and cotton from the fifteen states involved to be 65,516,683 tons for 1913. This vast tonnage will eventually seek outlet through this port. To this tonnage may be added vast quantities of cotton seed products, packing house products, lumber, oil, rice and other commodities.

The advtanges of Houston are insurmountable and she will for all time to come continue to be the nearest port to all of the large producing western centers, and all water shipments made or received using any other gulf port will add a distance of fifty miles to its rail haul and be subject to the penalty therefor.

If history repeats itself, the ships of the world will seek cargo in the future as they have in the past at the port which is farthest inland and with the splendid advantages which Houston possesses in the seventeen rail lines which converge here, affording unsrupassed facilities for the assembling of grain and all other products of the farm and forest of the west and southwest, and for the quick and economical distribution to interior points of the products and manufacturers of the world, the growth of Houston into a sea port of the first rank is an early anticipation.

The channel completed there arose the necessity for the immediate construction of the necessary terminal facilities. These the municipality immediately prepared to construct, and here again the typical Houston spirit and enterprise came into play.

The first unit was speedily completed, and consists of fireproof wharves and warehouses with all modern facilities for the expeditious loading and unloading of ships. They are ample to meet the present requirements and represent an expenditure of over $300,000. Four large cotton warehouses are now in course of construction, to accelerate cotton shipments on the channel, and when completed will represent the expenditure of nearly $400,000. There has also been provided the sum of $3,000,000 which has been set aside for the construction of additional units at the Turning Basin as the development of the shipping may require.

The city controls all the land at the Turning Basin, and all municipal facilities, strictly speaking, will be erected at that point, will be owned by the municipality and under its control for all time. This is per an agreement entered into between the federal government and the city of Houston. The wharfage at the municipal docks is free.

Quick to appreciate the advantages of the port of Houston, shippers both local and from points in the interior began immediately to place their routing orders. A regular line of steamers is operated from New York City to Houston with sailings every ten days in each direction. The patronage of this line has met all expectations, and almost without exception capacity cargoes have been reported in each direction. Lines are also in operation between Houston and New Orleans, Tampa, Pensacola, and Havana, also a regular line of tank steamers carrying crude oil from Tampico and other points to the mixing plant of the Gulf Refining company, one of our large ship channel enterprises.

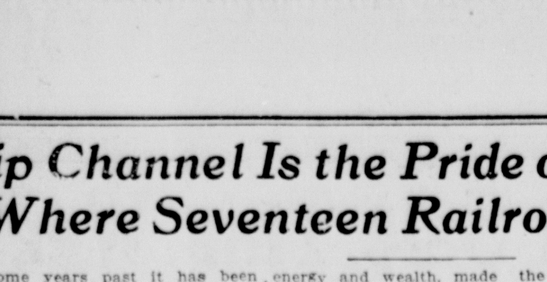

Prior to, and following the completion of the channel, many firms and corporations of nation-wide importance secured frontage, and have either already developed their holdings of cr contemplate doing so at an early date. The Armour company has in operation a large fertilizer plant, the phosphate being brought by steamer from the Florida coast. The Texas company have very valuable holdings which will soon be improved. The Farmers Petroleum company, the president of which is Mr. J. S. Cullinan, former president of the Texas company, have also acquired property on the channel for development. One of the latest and largest concerns to avail themselves of our splendid industrial facilities is the Texas Portland Cement company. Their mammoth plant now in course of construction will cost $350,000.

With the example set by the above well known firms and corporations it does not require the vision of a prophet to see an unbroken line of smokestacks on the banks of the ship channel for a distance of fifty miles. Then truly will Houston come into her own.

The ship channel is fifty miles in length and connects Houston with the sea, and its banks provide innumerable factory sites. Its entire cost was $6,500,000. For the final completion Harris county, mainly Houston, furnished $1,250,000. Two modern dredges have been constructed for permanent maintenance, Houston paying $250,000, the cost of one of the dredges. The depth of the channel is 25 feet, and the width 200 feet at the bottom. The Turning Basin is 1100 feet long and the same in width, and is within the corporate limits of Houston.

Sanger Bros'. Toyland Opens Doors Monday

The largest and most complete toy store in Texas will swing open its doors tomorrow morning under the title of "Sanger Toyland." The entire first floor of the Sanger wholesale building on Fourth street will be devoted to a great exposition of toys for boys and girls. It will be the largest space ever devoted to the display and sale of toys in this state. Toys of every kind and description fill this immense space and despite the conditions in the foreign countries to which this country looks for the supply of hundreds of toys Sanger Brothers announce that they will show even more foreign toys than ever before together with hundreds of the latest American-made toys.

Each year the Sanger Brothers store in this city has prepared a wonderful treat for the children of this section in the shape of hundreds of the rarest toys as well as all the old reliable toys, but this year they have eclipsed by far all previous records both in the number of toys displayed and in the splendid arrangement and unusually large space utilized.

Santa Claus for a number of years has been making the Sanger store his headquarters just prior to Christmas time and each year he has made a triumphant entry into the city with flags flying and the band playing and this feature of the Sanger store's Christmas plans has already attracted and enthused the people of this section with the spirit of the Grand Old Man of Christmas time.

Invokes God's Reward For Pellagra Cure

Jumbo, Va.—J. H. Satterwhite writes: "I want to thank you for what you have done for me. You have cured my wife. God bless you in your work. I hope some day to see you; if I never see you I hope to meet you in heaven. God will reward you for your grand and noble work."

There is no longer any doubt that pellagra can be cured. Don't delay until it is too late. It is your duty to consult the resourceful Baughn.

The symptoms—hands red like sunburn, skin peeling off, sore mouth, the lips, throat and tongue a flaming red, with mucus and choking; indigestion and nausea, either diarrhoea or constipation.

There is hope; get Baughn's big Free book on Pellagra and learn about the remedy for Pellagra that has at last been found. Address American Compounding Co., box 3045, Jasper, Ala., remembering money is refunded in any case where the remedy fails to cure.—Adv.

THE KING A FINE HORSEMAN.

And His Chargers Are Always Chosen for Their Good Behavior.

The accident to the king is unaccountable, not only because His Majesty is an excellent horseman, with all a sailor's capacity for sticking on, but also because the chargers for his use are chosen for their perfect manners.

The king's favorite mount, which he generally rode on field days at Aldershot before the war, is Delhi, a big black horse, which was presented to him at the time of his Indian coronation visit. When field batteries were bombarding the long valley and the horses of the staff were curvetting and prancing, Delhi was the picture of complete placidity. During the midday halt the king never neglected to reward his horse with sugar, which he took from a groom and fed from his own palm.—London correspondence of New York World.

CUTS OFF HIS CHILDREN.

Leaves One Daughter 85c, Another 70c and Only Son Gets Less Than $1.

"Poor, worthy and industrious young men, between the ages of 15 and 21 years, who reside in Montgomery county, who totally abstain from the use of alcoholic or intoxicating liquors and who are desirous of learning or acquiring mechanical arts, professions or trades," will receive assistance from the estate of Jesse Hendricks. These provisions are made in his will, which has just been probated by Register of Wills Daniel Stewart.

In stating who should profit by the trust fund which is to include the residue of his estate, valuation of which is given as $20,000 and upward, the testator sets forth that they are to be young men who, "because of reduced circumstances, find themselves unable to acquire or learn such arts, professions or trades as they may desire." The trustees, who include the Montgomery Trust company, Judge John Faber Miller and Thomas P. Scott, are to decide how the assistance is to be given, "whether by the purchase of books and tools, the payment of weekly or monthly allowances, the establishment of a school or college, or in whatever manner they deem best, all seeing to it that the principal is kept intact."

Those who will thus reap the benefit of Hendricks' savings are preferred above his own flesh and blood, his three daughters and a son. To one daughter, Elizabeth, he gives 85c; to another daughter, Emily, 75c; to a third daughter, Naomi, 70c, and to his son, Ambrose, 80c. He specifies that they are not to receive one penny more from his estate.

The reason for thus cutting them off is set forth in the following paragraph of the will:

"On May 20, 1886, my children destroyed my family relations and domestic happiness so successfully that discord has continued since that time."—Norristown, Pa., correspondence in New York American.

A Tale of Two Cities

An Allegory with a Lesson for the Men of Today by Dean Kesler of Baylor : :

One of the most interesting and inspiring of the several strong addresses delivered in this city last week on the occasion of the conference of the Twelfth District of Rotary clubs here last week and the banquet to International President Allen D. Albert of Minneapolis, was a modern parable or allegory by Dr. J. L. Kesler, dean of the college at Baylor University, whose subject was "The Tale of Two Cities." His address was a literary gem as well as a beautiful exposition of Rotary philosophy as applied to civic affairs. It follows:

"After that magnificent lay sermon last night, by our distinguished guest (President Albert), I went home and wrote this parable of a tale of two cities.

"The first was a little city in a far away land, inhabited as Zenophon would say. It was beautiful for situation, and all the tides of commerce set in that direction. Everything seemed to point to its prosperity. Men came and pitched their tents by it, and bought and sold and got gain, and made merchandise of many things. And some grew rich and some grew poor even as we have seen it in our cities. But in that city men forgot one another and thought only of their gold. They thought of getting service from one another but they did not think of giving service voluntarily to one another. No man thought of another to help him, and honor had its price in the market place. In that city competition was the law of trade, even as in ours, and soon it became the law of life, and the devil took the hindmost. Selfishness was the city's god, public spirit vanished and antagonism bore heavy upon commerce and industry. Their motto was 'Make money—honestly if you can—but make money.' Still they didn't have time to make friends or to be kind, and there were no flowers there.

"The city prospered in trade for a day and then was numbered with the dead; for they loved money and forgot men. The city's life is the life of its citizens and where the spirit of service is not, there already is the spirit of death.

"There was another city and it, too, was in a far country and stood hard by the marts of trade. Men came and pitched their tents by it and bought and sold and got gain and made merchandise of many goods. And some grew rich, but no man forgot to help his neighbor. For the law of that city was the law of service, and the spirit of that city was the spirit of co-operation. Its life was built about the practice of the golden rule and in it was great friendliness, and there were flowers there. It was a beautiful city, beautiful for situation, beautiful in all the qualities and appointments of its life. There were playgrounds for the children. The streets were clean. The parks held a welcome for all the people. The water, the milk, the meats were pure, and so were the men. Vice was not an asset for the city's revenue. A great wholesomeness and cleanness and care for one another made it a city of constant fascination and charm, unique, and beautiful exceedingly. Men came and went, and said 'I like the city,' 'I like the city.' And people came and dwelt in it, and built up many industries in it. For they said 'it is a good city to live in.' There men are brothers. There men have learned how to live the serviceable life—happiest because helpfulest.' And the city grew—grew exceedingly, it could not be hid—and it took its place in the sun. It was the spirit of Rotary. For where love is there is the brotherly life, and where service is, there is a friendliness that satisfies life. Brotherhood and service are sinews of commerce and the makers and builders of success.

"This is the tale of two cities, but the tale is not ended.

"An old professor, curiously learned and strange, determined to decipher the origin of these cities. In a scholarly research he rummaged through the ruins of one of these cities and the archives of the other—and found pretty certainly their lineage and descent.

"There were two glendoveers, red and violet, farthest apart of the children of light. These came to earth, but had no dealings with each other. Where their feet touched the soil a strange thing was born. They called it Alienation. From this the first city sprang and lived its alien life and died. Its men were strangers.

"At last these two glendoveers, red and violet, determined to take a long journey to see all the stars. In the great stretches of the sky a kindlier light sprang up between them and where they touched was a purple border. The purple border grew as they mingled their life and it was very beautiful. They came back to earth and where they touched the green sward purple violets sprang up, and there was a great friendliness there and service, which are the gifts of love; and of these two, the second city was born. It is the city of the brotherly love. And it lives in comrade hospitalities, and generous thoughts today, made perfect in generous deeds. Its tasks are social.

"The clock strikes twelve and brotherhood and service, the spirit of Rotary, are immortal. 'He profits most who serves best!' A new order cometh."

Examinations for Stenographer Have Been Postponed

Orders postponing indefinitely the holding of the civil service examinations for stenographers and typewriters, which had been set for December 23, have been received here from the headquarters of the Tenth United States Civil Service Division in New Orleans.

The order is as follows:

To All Local Secretaries:

The civil service commission has directed that the stenographer and typewriter examination announced to be held on November 23, 1915, be indefinitely postponed.

The announcements sent you for this examination are therefore cancelled. Remove them from your bulletin board and discontinue giving out application blanks for this examination. If you secured any publicity for this examination in the newspapers, it will be well to secure an insertion of its indefinite postponement.

You will be advised at the proper time when the examination is re-announced.

E. H. JENNINGS,
District Secretary.

Best Thought Given to Construction of Modern Automobiles

In this age of automobile manufacture, it should be realized that some of the best brains in the world are working on this most important industry, as the automobile has become a general necessity for the American family rather than merely a sporting apparatus as it seemed to be when first it appeared on our streets. With the general use of automobiles throughout the country has come the necessity for building them better, making them more substantial, more simple, more inexpensive in operation and more practical for general family use.

Among the various accomplishments of the automobile world, in excellence of construction, the Detroit Electric car, manufactured by the Anderson Electric Car company, stands out prominently. It has been found by actual comparison that in construction, the Detroit Electric car is designed and manufactured as perfectly as it is possible to build a mechanical article.

In the production of this car, manufactured completely by the Anderson Electric Car company of Detroit, modern machinery of the most approved and automatic type is employed to make even the smallest parts of the car, thereby insuring accuracy, interchangeability of parts—and large saving in labor costs.

In many places, where in the past, iron castings have been used, drop forgings now replace them. These forgings are made by ponderous machines weighing many tons and driven by power plants ranging up to the hundreds of horsepower.

The chassis frames of this car are made of pressed steel and are drilled for their various side members by placing a complete frame in an immense machine which when operated, brings a dozen or more tools into action which accurately bores the necessary holes.

This modern method of manufacturing insures absolute accuracy and saves much time and money in the production of the finished article. In the old days it was thought that handwork was the only method which could produce a finished article of the highest grade.

This method of manufacture has been entirely relegated to the rear ranks in the automobile industry. It is the new method of modern manufacturing which has enabled the American people to enjoy today, automobiles of the highest grade which can be produced, and at prices lower than it was ever dreamed of ten years ago.

The realization of the Anderson Electric Car company that only through installing these modern methods of manufacturing could they produce electric cars of the highest quality at a comparatively low price has enabled them to market an electric car of the very finest quality in material and construction, at prices from $400 to $500 lower than would be possible if the manufacture of these cars were attempted in the old way.

THEATRES

AUDITORIUM.

"Birth of a Nation" Beginning Tomorrow.

After more extensive and sensational publicity than has fallen to the lot of any other theatrical enterprise, D. W. Griffith's "The Birth of a Nation" will open a three days' engagement next Thursday evening at the Auditorium. The first class metropolitan production is guaranteed to be the one shown here, carrying two baggage cars of equipment, a symphonic orchestra of musical experts, and a complete traveling organization of fifty people.

Many circumstances have conspired to make "The Birth of a Nation" the most widely discussed play in the world. Suggested by Thomas Dixon's southern novels, it embraces a far wider scope than "The Clansman" play. Mr. Griffith's new art covers 150 years of history and pictorializes the greatest events of the war between the states as well as those of reconstruction. Lincoln, Lee and Grant; the early glories of the Confederacy; the devastation of Gen. Sherman's march to the sea; the awful siege of Petersburg; the signing of peace at Appomattox; the assassination of the president in Ford's theatre, and the succeeding orgy of hate and oppression of the south—these personages and incidents pass rapidly before the enthralled spectator and lead up to the terrible climaxes of Part II, which is devoted to what has been styled "the second struggle between the north and the south," a struggle caused by the attempt to impose carpetbagger rule upon the conquered states. The wild adventures and achievements of the Ku Klux Klan dominate the final scenes, which yield a happy ending of a double romance of southern and northern sweethearts.

Mr. Griffith's treatment of the magnificent theme is so much greater and grander than the original play that there can be no comparison. For example, he presents 18,000 actors and 3,000 horses instead of the tiny "armies" of the theatric boards. He shows 5,000 scenes in place of four or five; far-flung battle lines of many, many miles, and Ku Klux "rides" right out in the open, which surpass in thrills any Vanderbilt cup race. Yet the individual acting is as fine and artistic as in a "short cast" drama, the work of Henry Walthall as the Clansman and of Mae Marsh as Flora, in particular, rising to heights of genius. Other marvels of the work are the 200,000 faithfully accurate historical details; the musical score synchronized to the several thousand distinct and individual scenes; the wonderful reproduction of crowded interiors like the theatre performance where Lincoln was shot, and the South Carolina legislature session of 1870; the taking of battle scenes at night by a secret new process; the use of 25,000 yards of cloth for Ku Klux costumes, and 12,000 yards for women's dresses; the master's Rembrandt-like management of light and shade; the depiction of the glorious beauty of out-of-door Nature; his marvelous quiet yet effective playing the entire gamut of romance from lightest comedy to deepest tragedy; finally and supremely, the union of all the stage arts (except conversational speech' into a new art-form of drama-spectacle-with-music.

"The Birth of a Nation" has been acclaimed as the first pictorial drama to be presented in a regular theatrical way and at the usual first class scale of "two-dollar top" prices. No advance will be made on these prices on tour. The fact that one and a half million people have already witnessed it, and that it has already run to capacity attendance for half a year in the simultaneous productions of New York, Chicago and Boston, prove that the biggest claims in its behalf are justified by the popular verdict. Despite opposition at various times, it should be added, "The Birth of a Nation" has been passed by censor boards everywhere; upheld, when attacked, by decisions of courts of record; endorsed by a greater number of prominent men in all walks of life, including priests and ministers, than any other entertainment ever offered to the public. In brief, it has rallied to its support all friends of free art and rebuked those whose bigotry would suppress the re-enactment of the Reconstruction story.

One comes from this film saying: "I have done the South a cruel injustice; they are all dead, these cruelly-tried people, but I feel now that I know them as they were; not as they ought to have been, but as they were; as I should probably have been in their place. I have seen them in their homes, in their pride and their glory, and I have seen what they went back to. I understand them better."—Rupert Hughes, the Novelist.

The Greatest Art Conquest in the History of Civilization

Al. G. Field's Greater Minstrels Tuesday Night, November 16.

Not less than a dozen big spectacles are included this year in the Al. G. Field Greater Minstrels, which will be seen at the Auditorium Tuesday night, November 16, for the veteran producer of minstrelsy fairly has outdone himself.

The show opens with a view of the New Orleans levee in the old days when the river boat was the leading factor of commerce in the Mississippi valley. Before a remarkable stage setting showing the landing place of the steamers, negroes, passengers, officers and others are shown in the activity which precedes the beginning of the voyage. This scene is swiftly followed by a reproduction of the famous race between the Natchez and the Robert E. Lee, an historical event, celebrated in song and story.

The first part is laid in the grand saloon of the Robert E. Lee, and is more than usually colorful and spectacular. This is followed by four thrilling patriotic tableaux, "Washington Crossing the Delaware," "The Spirit of '76," "Peace," and "Our Country." Each of these pictures events and circumstances which bring to the minds of Americans thoughts deep and significant just at this world crisis.

Another spectacular feature, and one unique in a minstrel performance, "is "The Black Art Dance," a shadow fantasy abounding in pantomimic humor. It carries with it some of the most amusing of eccentric dancing. There is also a ballroom scene, burlesqueing the dances of the present day uproariously, and set to represent an elegant hotel dancing salon, with great French windows covered with countless yards of lace.

The afterpiece, "Auntie Skinner's Chicken Dinner Party," is in three acts. Two of these show ghostly night scenes in which chicken thieves are raiding hen-roosts. The other scene shows a grand assembly of diplomats of all nations gathered to settle the Mexican situation. It ends in a regular bull fight, with Reddy Toosevelt arguing for peace and Jennings O'Brian going in the ring against the bull. Besides these there are two special acts, the musical act of Murphy and Quinn and the monologue of Bert Swor.

ORPHEUM.

"Help Wanted."

Starting Monday, Nov. 8, one of the late successes of the day will be presented by Miss Besse Dainty and her excellent company of players. This play, by Jack Lait, scored a big hit at the Cort theatre in Chicago, and likewise in New York. It was seen at the Auditorium theatre in Waco last winter and was well received.

"Help Wanted" is a common expression in the big business world. It is safe to say that nine of every ten theatregoers have at some time or other either answered a "Help Wanted" ad, or have engaged help through these ads. For this reason it seems unnecessary to remind you of its trials and, in some cases, tragedies. Many poor, well meaning girls have sacrificed all in order to "make good" with her scoundrel of an employer. It makes every true American's blood boil to even think of it. It was such a case as this in real life that suggested the play to Jack Lait, the author.

The story is that of pretty little Gertrude Meyer, who leaves business college to work as a stenographer in the private office of Jerrold Scott, an unprincipled millionaire, with a weakness for women. He is best described in the author's own words, "Life with him is just one stenographer after another."

Notwithstanding that Gertrude is pleasing her employer as stenographer, she discovered the lurking dangers of a business career in the night office work she is compelled to do. Official investigations in large cities like New York and Chicago have shown that these conditions have existed for years, and in the case of Gertrude Meyer, the actual truth was being portrayed. Ideals which color the drama give it a glow of romance which is thrilling. Though the story is happily ended, and the honor of little Gertrude is saved from disgrace, the fact is established that human vultures can prey upon their trusting victims and still remain out of prison and retain their social standing by hiding behind the "respectable" portals of a business office. While "Help Wanted" is rich in good, clean, wholesome comedy, one never loses sight of the terrible truth which prompted the author to write it.

Miss Dainty will be seen as Gertrude Meyer, the little stenographer, a part in which she will be seen to excellent advantage. Each member of the company will be seen to best advantage and a beautiful production has been painted to give the play the proper atmosphere.

"Help Wanted" ran six months at the Cort theatre in Chicago and six months at the Maxine Elliott theatre in New York. Waco is fortunate to get this class of play at the low prices. The box office is open daily where reservations can be made for any night or any performance.

"Help Wanted" will be the offering for the first half of the week, and for the last half of the week one of the plays of last season will be presented, entitled "The Lighthouse by the Sea."

Two plays a week will be used for the Cotton Palace time only and as

The Griffith-Ince-Sennett combination, engineered by the widely advertised Triangle Film corporation, to be known as Triangle pictures, will open with unusual pomp and ceremony at the Hippodrome theatre in this city tomorrow. Many innovations are promised on the new picture program, the quality of which is assured because of the directors, D. W. Griffith, famed for "The Birth of a Nation;" Thomas H. Ince, producer of "The Battle of Gettysburg," and Mack Sennett, creator of the famous Keystone comedies.

Triangle pictures have created a sensation in New York, Chicago and Philadelphia at admission prices up to $2. The first week's program being the one which will be presented here four days has been drawing capacity houses to Hulsey theatres in Dallas and Houston at admission prices up to 75c.

"My Valet."

The fun of this Sennett comedy starts at the first flash of the film, grows deeper and thicker until at the wind-up it couldn't be stirred with a stick. So popular are all the players in this Triangle rapid-fire comedy, showing at the Hippodrome, billed with "The Coward," that every one deserves to be starred. Raymond Hitchcock, the mop-haired funmaker; Mable Normand, the little athlete comedienne, and Mack Sennett, actor and producer, carry off the honors, however.

Hitchcock plays the part of an affianced bachelor who has not seen the lady in the case since they were children. He starts west to fulfill his obligations, attended by his valet, Sennett. One of the best scenes in the play is the very first one, where the valet compounds a bracer for his master and the swinging of the train and the strong wind aids him in giving both of them a shower bath with the mixture.

Later on in the journey Hitchcock meets a beautiful girl in danger of her life from a runaway horse. He effects a thrilling rescue and promptly loses his heart. Here is a situation! The ingenious hero solves it by compelling his valet, a stupid, befuddled fellow, to take his clothes and title, while he, himself, poses as the valet and seeks the girl. Thus he disposes of his obligations to his fiancee and starts on his way, free and rejoicing. Imagine his consternation on learning that the beautiful damsel whom he so thrillingly rescued and his discarded fiancee are one and the same.

The valet, Sennett, has no intentions of resigning his place as master and affianced bachelor, and troubles begin. Pep is added to the situation by the appearance of another determined suitor, the French count. The pretty little cause of it all is teased about between the three and suffers a ducking tied to a rock in the surf that would put most girls literally out of commission. But in the end might triumphs, and all is well.

This is a feature of the new Triangle program playing at the Hippodrome Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Mantell Talks of His New Art.

Robert B. Mantell, the eminent dramatic star and the foremost of American actors, has recently signed an exclusive contract with William Fox to appear in a great series of modern screen dramas. Mr. Mantell is supported by Miss Genevieve Hamper and the first of the William Fox series in which he is to be seen is "The Blindness of Devotion," a striking and powerful drama which deals with the sins of modern society. Mr. Mantell is delighted with his new field of endeavor and in a recent interview expressed himself as being dazed by the lavishness of the scale upon which the William Fox photoplays are produced.

"Nothing appears to be too expensive for Mr. Fox to attempt," he said. "Why, do you know that even a tenth of the sum expended upon 'The Blindness of Devotion,' which, by the way, I regard as one of the strongest dramas in which I have appeared, would have made a theatrical manager turn pale. But in motion pictures I find that realism is the thing. If a Turkish rug, for instance, is to be used, it must be the real thing. The same applies to every 'property' brought into play. One massive set used in Mr. Fox's production of 'The Blindness of Devotion' cost $10,000, for instance. A stairway of solid mahogany was built and everything utilized in the particular scene was the very best of its kind obtainable. It is an actual revelation to me to see the magnificent manner in which such producers as Mr. Fox stage their photoplays."

Mr. Mantell will play at the Hippodrome Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

"The Bridge" or "The Bigger Man."

John Stoddard, construction chief of a gigantic iron bridge, owing to trouble with men over insufficient wages, goes to confer with his employer, Courtlandt Van Nest. He meets Van Nest's daughter, Janet, who, with her Aunt Sarah, is a typical product of the circle which believes in class aristocracy. Janet is engaged to Kennet Stuyvesant, an idle, rich young fellow, a captain in the militia.

Janet and her aunt visit the militia encampment about a mile from where the bridge is being built and Stoddard shows her over the bridge. Janet feels that she has met a real man—one who does things—and she is attracted to him despite her aunt's words forbidding her to associate with him. Stoddard shows her through the section of the village where the workers live and their utter destitution. Janet writes a letter for Sevic, a rough working man, to his wife in the old country and sends her transportation.

The directors of the construction company having refused to make any concessions to the workers the men, incited by Lavinsky, a nagitator, go on strike. Van Nest first calls in strike breakers then the militia. As the militia make ready to fire, Lavinsky prepares to hurl dynamite at them. Stoddard takes the dynamite away from him after a hand to hand fight. Stoddard and Janet then go to Van Nest and say they will do anything to have justice done to the men. Van Nest takes them up and stipulates that they give each other up. Reluctantly they consent.

Janet goes to help the poor of the village. On her way she meets Kenneth, who is angry at her interest in the working classes. Janet gives him back his ring and he goes to upbraid her aunt for driving the girl out.

Missing Janet, Van Nest goes to Stoddard and demands the return of his daughter. Stoddard asserts that he has kept his promise and has not seen her. He takes the opportunity, however, to point out to Van Nest the great American procession of workers and the fact that the difference in their positions is only due to their fathers' paths diverging earlier in the procession. Van Nest is plainly impressed.

Meanwhile Edith Stoddard is busy fixing up things for Sevic's wife and family, who have arrived from the old country. Van Nest meets Edith. She shows him the children and how true happiness is obtained through labor. Van Nest becomes reconciled to the idea of Janet marrying Stoddard. Queen tomorrow and Tuesday.

Clara Kimball Young in "The Heart of the Blue Ridge."

Plutina, a country girl, lives in the moonshine district. She is in love with and is beloved by Zeke, a young farmer and is happy in the possession of a pet bear. Dan Hodges who secretly operates an illicit still, is in love with Plutina, but she repulses him. In revenge he kills Plutina's bear.

Zeke gives information about the illicit still to the government, but Dan and his followers escape into the mountains. When Zeke learns of the death of the bear he swears to punish Dan. The still is destroyed and Dan vows vengeance on Zeke. He reappears and tells Plutina that he will have her or he will burn her house down and kill her grandfather and sister. Plutina is now genuinely alarmed.

Zeke is appointed overseer of a lumber area and he and Plutina have every prospect of being happily married. Dan Hodges starts another still and swears to get Zeke. Plutina directs the officers to Dan's still and Zeke goes away. But Dan and his men again escape.

Dan captures Plutina and tries to take her to the mountains with him. Zeke learns of Plutina's plight and hastens to rescue her. He arrives in time to confront Dan as he is striking Plutina. There is a fight between the two men on the edge of a cliff. Hodges plunges on to the rocks below and Zeke rescues Plutina from an awful death. Queen Wednesday and Thursday.

The Munros Clan

An Interesting History of a Scottish Tribe Which Has Some Descendants in Waco.

One of the most interesting histories of those always interesting Scottish clans is that of the Munros, and because of the fact that several of the descendants of that clan reside in Waco now, the following general information and data concerning the Munros is published:

War cry, "Castle Foulis Ablaze," referring to beacon or signal light.

Badge, Common Club Moss.

The first chiefs of this clan in the fourteenth centnry were called de Munro. Their possessions were on the north side of the Firth of Cromarty, and the title of their chief is and was Munro of Foulis. George Munro got a charter from the Earl of Sutherland in the reign of Alexander II. in 1214.

Robert Munro got a charter from Robert I. for lands in Strathspey and Cupermakcultis, which the Munros held, being followers of the Earls of Ross. The first assured chief by charter evidence was Robert de Munro of the fourteenth century.

About this time John Munro, the tutor of Foulis, in traveling home from Edinburgh with his servants, reposed a night in a meadow, where the owner in the dark cut off their horses' tails. In revenge, he and his men slew many of the people and carried off their cattle. In passing through McIntosh's land a Road Collop (toll) was demanded. On being refused, a fight ensued which left John Munro for dead. He was succored by the Frasers, not until Munro had whipped the McIntoshes fearfully with a deluge of arrows.

Robert Munro of Foulis, who was slain in battle, was succeeded by his brother, Hector, who married twice; first, to a daughter of Lord Fraser of Lovat, who bore him two sons and a daughter. His second wife died without children. Hector Munro was succeeded by his son, Sir Robert Munro. He died and was succeeded by Hector Munro II., he, in succession, by his only son, Sir Hector, and the latter's title devolved upon his cousin, Robert, who became the third baronet. Sir Robert had seven sons, was succeeded by his eldest, Sir John, who, dying, left Sir Robert as his successor, who was appointed high sheriff of Ross under the great seal in 1725, dying four years later. The sixth baronet, Sir Robert, a gallant officer, fell at Falkirk at the head of the Thirty-seventh regiment, fighting against James VIII. His son, Sir Harry, won a high reputation as a scholar before his death in 1781.

Among the distinguished members of this clan, we must refer to those who shed such lustre on the School of Anatomy at Edinburgh. There were Alexander Munro, first, second and third, successively, all distinguished men. Donald Munro, son of Alexander, was an eminent medical writer in London. Sir Hector Munro, K. C. B., distinguished himself in India and died in 1805.

Another distinguished soldier of the clan was Major General Sir Thomas Munro. In 1804 he obtained the rank of major colonel after about twenty-eight years of uninterrupted fighting in India. In 1820 he was governor of Madras, created a baronet in 1825. He died of cholera in 1827 in his 66th year. His son, Sir Thomas Munro, baronet, succeeded him, but died in 1901. Sir Campbell Munro, his brother, was his successor.

There are other branches of this illustrious house, but only the succession has been noted. A. B.

Colonel starts to break and train Blue Grass. Another colt is born. Finances become tighter.

In the meanwhile Warren meets Virginia, the Colonel's daughter, a love affair resulting. The Colonel, forced to sacrifice the second colt, sends his son, Morgan, who forced to accept a much smaller sum than expected, stakes the money on a "sure tip" and loses. In his anger the Colonel casts him off, ordering him out of the house.

Kelley, in an effort to buy My Lady, meets Virginia, and determines to get her, as he determines to get the mare.

Just before the race in which Blue Grass is entered, the Colonel badly in need of money, sells the mare to Kelley, upon the latter's promise to sell her back, on the event of Blue Grass' winning the race. The Colonel uses the money received for a side bet on his horse and Kelley frames the race against him.

Morgan, now Kelley's cashier, meets Warren, who on learning his identity, brings about a meeting between Morgan and Virginia, and caught red-handed by the Colonel, is forbidden to see Virginia again. On learning Kelley's intentions, Morgan quits Kelley.

In the race Blue Grass is left flat-footed by the bribed starter, but starts after the rest and wins.

Warren learning of Kelley's plot to steal My Lady, evens up old scores, bringing about a reconcilliation and all ends as it should.

A circus, a canal and a canal boat form the settings for Marguerite Clark's beauty and talent in the Famous Players Film company's latest contribution to the Paramount program, "Still Waters," which is the attraction at the Rex tomorrow.

"Still Waters," which is a rare combination of pastoral romance, rural comedy and thrilling drama, was written especially for Miss Clark by Edith Barnard Delano, the well-known novelist. In it the diminutive star has one of the greatest opportunities of her screen career for the display of her remarkable versatility.

Having established a reputation as a superb comedienne and an unsurpassable coquette, Miss Clark merits unreserved recognition as an emotional actress by her splendid work in the role of Nesta, the little girl who is to all intents and purposes a prisoner on a canal boat, where she is kept by her grandfather in the hope of preventing her from running away to become a circus performer. That was the unhappy fate of Nesta's mother, and the old man lives in mortal terror lest the little girl should answer the same call.

The grandfather's fears are realized, but not until Nesta has met and fallen in love with a young doctor, who lives near the canal. Her unfounded belief in the duplicity of the doctor and the sternness of her grandfather finally drives Nesta to run away and join the circus, where she soon finds herself the prey of the brutal ring-master. The part which the doctor plays in saving Nesta from the ring-master and the discovery of the identity of the invalid Pierrette, whom Nesta supplants in the circus, bring the story to a thrilling and dramatic close.

An entire circus was leased for the presentation of those portions of the story which have to do with the circus, and the players spent three weeks at Easton, Pa., for the purpose of obtaining the proper atmosphere for that part of the action which transpires along the canal and on the old barge. The scenic beauty of the Delaware river and the Lehigh Valley canal, which parallels it at Easton, lend rare charm to the tale.

Harry La Pearl, one of the most famous clowns in the country, was specially engaged to appear in the circus scenes of this production in support of Miss Clark. Others in the cast are Robert Broderick, Robert Vaughn and Arthur Evers.

Sir Edward Carson, it is said, once referred in parliament to "the gentlemen I see behind me."

"The Two Orphans."

This celebrated Fox picture is scheduled for a return engagement in Waco Wednesday at the Rex. Wednesday is always Fox day there and patrons look forward with much interest to these return bookings on the Wm. Fox productions.

"The House of a Thousand Scandals."

Mary Pickford in "Madam Butterfly."

This will be a week of joy and gladness for the thousands of admirers of both Marguerite Clark and Mary Pickford. Both will be seen in brand new roles for the first time in Waco and both vie for stellar honors in the pictures. "Little Mary" will be seen in "Madam Butterfly" Friday and Saturday. It is said to be a most excellent vehicle for the young lady star in which she and her company show to great advantage.

Famous Songwriter Is Texas Boy; Has Written Texas Song

I've got to go back,
I've got to go back,
I've got to go back,
To dear old Texas;
To the ranch I left behind,
And the girl who's on my mind;
I couldn't remain,
I'm taking a train;
The Southern Pacific bound for Texas—
And ev'ry letter that I get from Texas
Is covered with a lot of X's;
I've got to go back,
I've got to go back,
To the girl I left behind.

There has been an unusual amount of interest evinced by lovers of popular music over the advent of a new song. It has a simple title, and one dear to the hearts of all natives and residents of this state. It is called "Texas."

The publishers of the song (the largest in the world) have announced that they intend putting forth their every effort in the popularizing of this song—which means, that in the next six months, it will be sung and played all over the world, as was the case of "I Want to Go Back to Michigan," "Everybody's Doing It," "Alexander's Ragtime Band," etc.

It was written by the same man, Irving Berlin, that genius, whom all concede to be the greatest song writter who has ever lived.

It is with a source of pride that we look upon Irving Berlin as a friend, and even a resident of the state of Texas.

Acquiring great wealth from his numerous song successes, he purchased a few years ago, several ranches in the western part of the state, where he spends considerable time each year riding about his proprties. He has a soft spot in his heart for the Lone Star State, and looks back, every time he comes to Waco, to the days when he was a bell boy in one of our great hotels.

Whenever he comes to Waco, which is several times a year, he has a palatial suite of rooms placed at his disposal, which he never uses, as always simple in his tastes, he prefers taking a simple room, and bath overlooking one of our busy thoroughfares.

Though in his twenties, Mr. Berlin—or ratehr Irving, as he is known to his host of friends, is known as the world's greatest song writer, and is considered one of the most popular men along Broadway. He is not troubled by that bug-bear of the lionized, the "swell head," to the contrary, he is immoderately modest.

Mr. Berlin is also the writer of the season's successes, "Araby," and "When I Leave the World Behind."

In "Araby" Mr. Berlin has evolved a wholesome blending of lyric and melody that is irresistable—a song that is different., with a new rythm, while in the music there is a noticeably distinct novelty. It is an oriental rag-ballad and carries one over the seas to that quaint and incense-laden "Araby."

"When I Leave the World Behind" is, according to Mr. Berlin, his masterpiece. The idea was suggested by the will of a pauper who died in prison. Though possessed of no earthly goods, this man left the

"Sunshine to the flowers,
The springtime to the trees,
Etc."

Mr. Berlin has embellished the idea, and the thought, beautifully expressed, and wedded to a wonderful melody, is now being sung and played by millions of music lovers all over the world.

These two numbers, together with "Texas" and "We'll Have a Jubilee in My Old Kentucky Home" are being sung every afternoon and evening at the Hippolrome.

Along the line of march of the pageants, these songs are being played by the bands, while in the grounds of the exposition, Alessandro and his band are rendering these selections.

The collection of artists—Cavallo's band—under the leadership of Signor Pietro Cavallo, has his program made up of both classical and popular numbers, and the aforementioned songs play a prominent part in the programs. His vocalists delight in singing these songs.

"Texas," written especially for the celebration, has been declared the official song of the Cotton Palace exposition

In passing it is well to note that "Texas" will play an important part in the popularizing of the idea of bringing the national democratic convention to Dallas in 1916.

Texas will be in the throats, on the lips, and in the hearts of everyone. Thank you, Irving.

Sarcastic.

Sarcasm is sarcasm," said Gen. T. Coleman Dupont apropos of a story about gunpowder.

"It reminds me of the sarcastic advertisement in the New York theatrical paper that read:

GROCERY STORES CLOSED.

But Millionaire Saloons Are Still Open on Sundays.

Milwaukee grocers are facing the problem of how to feed the big fown on Sunday. Here is the problem:

The last legislature passed a law forbidding, under criminal statutes, groceries, delicatessen establishments or meat markets to remain open for business on Sunday.

The law applies to "cities of the first class," of which Milwaukee is the only one in the state. Other state laws forbid open Sunday saloons, or any business not a matter of necessity. The grocers say that the law is unfair in applying only to Milwaukee. The saloons are open without interference by the police. So the grocers are planning to fight the law, and if it is enforced against them to demand the closing of the saloons under the all-state law.

Here is another odd phase of the law, as interpreted by the Milwaukee district attorney:

He declares that if a grocer or other dealer, affected by this law, closes his place on his regular Sabbath, he complies with the law. The Jewish dealers, therefore, are closing Friday at sundown and reopening at sundown Saturday, and remaining open Sundays. They have already started this practice, though the new Sunday closing law did not apply until Nov. 1.—Milwaukee correspondence in Philadelphia Ledger.

NAVAL ORDERS SENT BY WIRELESS 'PHONE

SECRETARY DANIELS AT WASHINGTON TALKS TO ADMIRAL USHER AT BROOKLYN.

Experiment Proves Complete Success and Promises Still Greater Developments.

Special to the Morning News.

New York, Nov. 6.—At 3:30 p. m. yesterday Secretary of the Navy Joseph Daniels demonstrated to the naval forces of the nation the great value of the reecnt wireless telephone accomplishment of the American Telegraph and Telephone company and the Western Electric company when he used the new device to issue the first navy order ever given by wireless telephone to Admiral Nathaniel R. Usher in command of the Brooklyn navy yard. Secretary Daniels, sitting at his desk in the navy department building at Washington, spoke into a regular Bell telephone instrument and his words were carried by wire to Arlington, Va., a distance of 6½ miles, thence by wireless to the Western Electric laboratories in New York City, an air line distance of approximately 225 miles and thence by wire to the Brooklyn navy yard, a distance of four miles, where Admiral Usher received the order of his chief.

The secretary's order was as follows:

"Report as soon as possible after arrival of the New York, how soon the repairs can be completed."

Admiral Usher received the first message by wireless, replied by wire and immediately Secretary Daniels sent a second message.

"How long will it be before you can get the California off the ways, so that we can build another ship? We will want another ship in about a year."

In reply to this question of the secretary of the navy, Rear Admiral Usher said:

"I will hurry forward the work on the California."

Admiral Usher said that he could hear every word spoken by the navy secretary perfectly and that the talk was very successful.

Following Secretary Daniel's talk, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt also spoke to Admiral Usher.

Mrs. Daniels, wife of the secretary, who is the first woman ever to speak over the wireless telephone, then talked with Rear Admiral Usher. Admiral Usher heard her very distinctly and Mrs. Daniels was much pleased with her experience. Following Mrs. Daniels, Young Frank Daniels, aged 14 talked with Admiral Usher. Young Mr. Daniels is, therefore, the first boy to speak over the new wireless telephone. Secretary of State Lansing came in before the close of the demonstration and exchanged a few words with Engineer E. H. Colpitts, of the Western Electric company, who was in Admiral Usher's office at the Brooklyn navy yard. As he hung up the receiver, Secretary Lansing said: "This is wonderful." After the formal demonstration was over, Secretary Daniels said:

"A miracle, we were wont to think that miracles ended 1900 years ago, yet here today is this last and crowning miracle. Just think, soon I shall be able to sit at my desk and give orders direct to commanders of ships on the ocean. This is indeed a miracle age."

The success of the demonstration was particularly gratifying to Captain W. H. G. Bullard, chief of the United States navy radio service, because of the importance he has attached to those experiments and the interest he has taken in working out the many difficult problems involved. He explained that the demonstration had been arranged to show the secretary of the navy how wonderfully successful had been the development of wireless telephony by the American Telegraph and Telephone company and the Western Electric company. He explained that the navy had loaned the use of its towers to assist in the development of this wonderful work. The secretary's wireless message was also heard by the wireless operator at the navy yard in Charleston, S. C., who was listening in, by the operator at the Great Lakes naval station at Chicago and also at the Boston, Philadelphia and Fire Island navy yard station.

Among those present at Washington who witnessed the demonstration were: Admiral Victor R. Blue, chief of the bureau of navigation; Admiral Griffin, chief of the bureau of steam engineering; Surgeon General W. C. Braisted; Rear Admiral David W. Taylor, chief of the bureau of inspection and repairs; Mrs. Daniels, her mother, Mrs. Worth Bagley; Mrs. Daniels' sister, Miss Ethel Bagley; Frank Daniels, son of the secretary of the navy; Captain and Mrs. W. H. G. Bullard, superintendent of United States navy radio service.

Admiral H. T. Mayo, commander of the Atlantic battleship squadron, whose flagship, the Arkansas, is now at the navy yard and Lieutenant Norris were the other naval officials present.

Objected to Paying Twice.

"Look here, waiter. Eighty cents is an outrageous price for a portion of asparagus."

"Yes, sir, but you see, sir, we're putting on a very expensive cabaret show, and"—

"I know all about the cabaret show. I paid for that with the soup."—Kansas City Times.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS

A DEPARTMENT DEVOTED TO THE FOSTERING OF MUSICAL INTERESTS OF WACO AND CENTRAL TEXAS.

Something About Choral Singing.

Blessed is the community in which exists a chorus capable of singing the great choral works of the great masters of music. The cheap and vulgar vaudeville shows and stupid plays would soon lose their attraction in such a place. Not every one possesses the skill or technical training necessary to play upon an instrument, but every normal human being possesses some sort of voice and finds poy at some time in his life or under certain circumstances in voicing his moods or his thoughts in song.

Song is the readiest and simplest medium for expressing the emotions, and no community is so small that it does not boast of some sort of singing society. Some of the finest choral societies in the world exist in little towns or districts, and one of the best examples of excellent choral work is the splendid large choirs which are so numerous among the Welsh miners. Their wonderful results in this direction are not confined to their native country, but here in the United States Welsh communities boast of some of the finest choruses in the country. Their love for the art is inborn, and their voices are rich in quality and perfect in pitch; this is due to the training the Welsh people obtain in their national school of music called the Eisteddford. It were well if every country did for its people what a Welsh community does.

The male choir owes its origin to the German Maennerchor, which was probably brought about by the German's love for sociability as much as his love for music. Music for the male choir is usually written in four parts, first and second tenor and first and second bass. The music for a male choir can hardly be said to be distinctive in character, but the effect of such a choir is usually very pleasing; the depth of tone, the peculiar timbre of the male voice expressed in four different registers, when blended in harmony, gives great warmth of color and stirs the emotions. And yet such a choir becomes wearisome, for it lacks the contrast afforded by the addition of female voices. The college glee club is another form of male choir. But these do not aim at artistic results, as a rule, although some of the directors of the glee clubs in the larger colleges are raising the standard of the music used, and no longer depend on the catchiness of the melody or the cleverness of the text to produce the effects.

Still another form of the male chorus is the boys' choir, so extensively used in Episcopal churches as a substitute for women's voices.

The effects produced by these boys' voices are limitless, since the boys' voices may reach a remarkably high pitch, in notes that are clear and penetrating. Brilliant and emotional efforts are produced by these choirs.

The female chorus, like the male chorus, is usually divided into four parts, and like the male chorus, it, too, lacks contrast and becomes even more wearisome, since women's voices are by nature thinner than men's voices and seem to lack foundation. Some beautiful effects are produced by women's voices, airy, graceful, sweet and tender tones, but they sound best as a part of a mixed chorus. The ideal chorus is the mixed chorus which consists of soprano, alto, tenor and bass, and in which each of these parts may be made to consist of a first and second, thus giving eight contrasting sets of voices, capable of volume, color and harmony, and when well balanced they form the finest instrument the music master has to deal with.

Right here a word about balance may not come amiss. Many choir directors seem satisfied if in a chorus of twenty to fifty voices they have two or three singers on each of the parts of alto, tenor and bass, leaving the predominance to the sopranos. Consequently these parts are overpowered or worse still, scream in order to be heard, and the effect is extremely bad.

This is one of the defects in the average church choir and is a serious handicap in producing the best effects in the larger choral works.

Home Influence.

(By Helen Ware.)

Clara Schumann, one of the greatest woman artists of all time, was asked one day what she thought the loftiest mission of music. Without a moment's hesitation she replied:

"First and last, the mission of music is to aid us to create in the home a pure and ennobling atmosphere."

The significance of these wisely spoken words cannot be overestimated.

It is unfortunate that the present age does not view the Mission of the Muse from that standpoint. It sees the solving of the musical program in professionalism.

This attitude is entirely wrong. Not only is the incentive if chosen, but surely such false ideals can never aid the pupil in deriving from his music that joy and elevating influence which is the reward of all those to whom musical art is an indispensable asset of their culture—not for the sake of culture, but for that of lofty self-expression.

The beautiful sentiment of Clara Schumann's message must be strongly impressed on American mothers and their children. The attitude of the average parent towards a musical education will have to be changed ere this great country of ours will fall heir to the full graces of the Muse.

It is an almost universal fallacy with mothers that after the child outgrows the cradle-song age they should sever all musical communication with it.

The sad results of this attitude prove detrimental to mother as well as the child. The mother loses an idea spiritual intercourse and tie of closer companionship with the child, while the child is robbed of the elevating influences of those pure and lofty musical expressions which cannot be replaced by any other of the Seven Arts.

Our present economic system holds the American man in close bondage with his business or profession, and almost without exception the supervision of the child's musical education is left to the mother. Hence the words of Clara Schumann should make their appeal to them.

The musical education of the child is a grave necessity to every home. No matter in what humble capacity the child will eventually reach forth, his allotted share towards making the fireside circle a sanctuary which is to wield an influence over him long, long after he has left the parental roof, it will be evident that every hour he has spent studying music will bear fruit which will be shared with his dear ones.

Musical art has a certain refining influence over the child which leaves indelible marks on his character and ideals. The parents who live under the ostrich-like self-illusion that, so long as they compel the child to attend the conservatory and pay the teachers' fees, their duty has been performed to their best ability—these parents are actually curtailing the child's broad vision in regard to his attitude towards musical studies and the true mission of musical art.

These lessons cannot be regarded in the same light as the compulsory studies of geometry, astronomy, algebra, physics, etc. Music should tower above them all in the estimation of the child. Not in the matter of material importance, but because of the great joy and other beneficial influences that will ensue both for himself and those dear to him throughout life.

Be it the song, the violin, piano or any other member of the musical instrumen. family, little it matters so long as it serves its mission as a medium for expression of the best within the human soul. The humble musical message, like the loftiest, is bound to reach the hearts of men and women, who will be uplifted thereby.

Before writing the "Finis" of this message, it would be well to quote Elbert Hubbard's remark on the power of musical culture:

"No matter how great a city is in size, without good music it is nothing more than a provincial town."

That which proves true of the city may also be applied to the home, for verily,

"A home without music is but a stack of bricks and mortar."

As the Twig Is Bent.

"'Tis education forms the common mind,
Just as the twig is bent, the tree's inclined."

What are you doing each day to teach your children the true meaning of music and its great influence in the life of the human race?

Are you reading any available books upon the subject of music?

Do you gather the family and friends together in the home and sing on Sunday afternoons?

Do you spend one evening each week singing in some choral society?

Do you ever try to induce anyone to join a society of this kind?

Do you know the general interest of the public in music can be more quickly developed through singing societies in the communities than any other way?

If you know these things, what are you doing to assist in bringing about a better musical condition in your community?

People who love beautiful things always try to create them. Many plans and much thought are necessary in this age of the wild rampage of commercialism to enable parents to educate their children in music. But all parents can create the love of music and the natural expression in song in their own family circle and encourage the community choral organization.—Musical Monitor.

Ford Purchases Stock In Saxon Motor Company

A deal of big significance in motor manufacturing circles has become known in the announcement by Hugh Chalmers and Harry W. Ford that Mr. Ford has purchased all of Mr. Chalmers' holdings in the Saxon Motor company. By so doing Ford becomes the largest individual stockholder and the dominant figure in the successful Saxon company, which he has served as president and general manager from its organization.

The big stockholders (involving a cash transaction of $500,000) establishes the Saxon company as an independent institution, which in the space of eighteen months, since it began shipping cars, has risen to the position of seventh among all Detroit motor companies and tenth among the motor companies of the entire world in number of cars built and sold annually.

The Saxon Motor company was incorporated Nov. 1, 1913, by Hugh Chalmers and eight members of his Chalmers Motor company organization, it being Mr. Chalmers' idea that this company would prove a successful business venture and that the Saxon holdings of his younger associates would prove valuable and profitable to them. The original organizers, besides Mr. Chalmers and Mr. Ford, were Lee Counselman, Percy Owen, George W. Dunham, H. H. Pinney, C. A. Pfeffer, C. A. Woodruff, C. C. Hinckley. Messrs. Finney, Pfeffer, Woodruff and Hinckley sold their interests some time ago. Mr. Owen is vice president of the Saxon company, and Mr. Counselman and Mr. Dunham are directors, but not actively engaged in the management of the business.

Mr. Ford's advancement at the Chalmers company was rapid. From advertising manager he soon was made secretary and a director, and later assistant general manager. In this latter position he gained wide experience in all departments of the business, in addition to the previous experience which he had had in the selling and advertising departments.

Road Record Made by Flying Maxwell

Wiping the slate clean of all former records in rapid transit by motor car or by train, between Detroit and Indianapolis, Ray McNamara in a stock Maxwell touring car has just registered a performance at which, it is freely predicted, dust eaters of the two cities will shoot for some time in vain.

McNamara's outgoing trip from Detroit was made in 8 hours 58 minutes, the return trip in 10 hours 49 minutes. Running time for the round trip—622 miles—was 19 hours 47 minutes. Between start and finish but 20 hours 1 minute elapsed.

The Maxwell was checked out of Detroit by W. D. Edenburp, American Automobile Association representative, at 3:11 a. m. It was checked in at the Soldiers' monument in Indianapolis—311 miles away—at 12:09 p. m. by Jack Baci, automobile editor of the Indianapolis News. Baci checked the car out of Indianapolis at 12:23 p. m.; Edenburn checked it in at the finish at 11:12 p. m. The trip started and ended at the Maxwell offices on Woodward avenue.

The first half of the trip was made chiefly in daylight, and McNamara took a shot at the schedule of the fast Big Four train which takes a short cut of 298.6 miles between the cities and makes the run in 10 hours 25 minutes. The Maxwell lowered this by 1 hour 27 minutes. At Indianapolis the driver snatched a hurried luncheon and filled the gasoline tank—his only stop in the whole trip. Daylight lasted halfway through the return trip. Then darkness fell and, later, there was fog.

The car in which the run was made is one of the first 1916 models turned out at the big Detroit plant and had already been run more than 17,000 miles, including one trip across the continent. Recently it has been one of several cars which have been running under observation of the Maxwell engineering department, to determine the effects of indefinite road abuse. Much of this running has been over the Detroit-Indianapolis course—a typical country road with plenty of hills, rough going, sand and mud.

It Would Make Some Difference in His Standing in the Pen

"Nigger, ef you'se gwine to de pen, don't you go dar fer no common chicken stealin'. Make it gamblin' or fighting, somethin' worthy de honor," counselled a visiting negro to another behind the bars of the city jail waiting to answer for a charge of chicken theft.

James Wynn, negro, was captured near Eighth and Franklin early yesterday morning by Officer Sisco. He was attempting to sell some chickens, and they looked suspiciously like some that had been missing from a certain hennery in the city.

Dodge Bros'. Agent Is Good Advertiser

According to information received by Dodge Bros., the motor car salesmen of the antipodes are not much behind their American brothers in advertising stunts. S. A. Cheney of Adelaide, was recently appointed Dodge Bros.' dealer. To arouse curiosity in the car he fitted up an old cycle car with a sign reading: "No! This is not a Dodge Brothers." He drove this around the city every day and in addition used a series of newspaper advertisements: "Dodge Brothers' Car Has Been Shipped." "Every Day Brings Dodge Brothers' Car Nearer Australian Shores." "Welcome Dodge Brothers' Car When It Reaches Adelaide," etc., were some of the phrases used. As a result all Adelaide is talking of Dodge Brothers' car.

Central Christian Church.

The Central Christian church will hold special services next Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

The occasion is the observance of the tenth anniversary of F. N. Calvin's pastorate.

This observance will be unique in that while Dr. Calvin has been pastor of this church ten years they have not been consecutive years, but include a period of twenty-four years.

His talk on Sunday will deal largely in reminiscences. He will tell something of Waco, and religious conditions in Waco twenty-four years ago.

Special music is being planned and an invitation is extended to all the old friends of the church, especially those who were here during the first seven years' pastorate of Mr. Calvin.

All those who were members of the Central church during those first seven years are urged to be present, and especially those who were here when Mr. Calvin preached his first sermon twenty-four years ago.

TODAY'S BEAUTY SUGGESTIONS

Face powder simply covers up an unattractive complexion and leaves no lasting benefits. Those who have tried a simple spurmax face lotion find it much better, as it removes skin discolorations, such as freckles and tan, and makes the skin smooth, white and velvety. This lotion is made by dissolving four ounces of spurmax in one-half pint hot water, then adding two teaspoonfuls glycerin. This complexion beautifier does not rub off or show like powder, and gives a more refined appearance. It removes both shininess and sallowness, rapidly giving the skin a permanent healthy, youthful appearance.

An especially fine shampoo for this weather can be had at trifling expense by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cup of hot water Pour slowly on scalp and massage briskly. This creates a soothing, cooling lather that dissolves and removes all dandruff, excess oil and dirt. Rinsing leaves the scalp spotlessly clean, soft and pliant, while the hair takes on a glossy richness of natural color, also a fluffiness which makes it seem very much heavier than it is. After a canthrox shampoo arranging the hair is a pleasure.

METHODS OF TEACHINS CHILDREN DEMONSTRATED

ALL TEACHERS AND PUPILS OF COUNTY URGED TO ATTEND MODEL CLASSES.

Miss M. W. Halliburton, Primary Supervisor of the Waco Public Schools, in Charge.

A rare treat awaits the school teachers and pupils of McLennan county who will attend the Cotton Palace on County School Day, Nov. 13.

A demonstration of school work will be given by Miss M. W. Haliburton and some of the other teachers of the Waco schools. The demonstration will be given between the hours of 11 a. m. and 1 p. m. This will be one of the most interesting features of the day. County Superintendent R. L. Abbott is deeply interested in this demonstration and is anxious for everybody to take advantage of it. The demonstration will be confined to the "beginners" grades, that is, to the classes composed of children who began their first school year on the 20th of last September.

There are about 645 of these young pupils. On account of the large number, the brief period they have as yet spent in school and the short time allowed for the demonstration at the Cotton Palace, the work must of necessity be limited in scope and as regards the number of subjects treated. Only that phase of the foundation work in numbers, writing, phonics, music, drawing and freehand cutting which can be correlated with the work in reading will be demonstrated.

This reading by the children will not be from books, which they are just beginning to handle. It will consist entirely of script reading, that is, the reading sentences written by the teachers on blackboards and on slips of cardboard.

In every instance, the pupil will read the sentences silently for the purpose of first grasping the thought. This will be followed by action on his part to show that he knows just what the sentence means, and then he will, in most cases, read the sentence orally, or as he regards it, he will "speak" it.

All the work done will be to demonstrate the fact that to these children, reading is "thinking" and then "speaking." It will be clearly seen that in this work the teachers have constantly made appeal to the "play spirit" of childhood in their effort to secure that concentration of thought and vital interest on the part of the children, the lack of which makes reading weariness to the flesh.

The trend of the teachers' efforts along this line will be indicated by the lesson groups, each of which is treated as a game under the following heads:

1. "Who We Are." This exercise will show how perfectly familiar to each pupil is the written form of his full name. As in all the following lesson groups, the sentences are in script on blackboards and on cardboard slips.

2. "Obeying Mr. Chalk." In this exercise the pupils are shown for only an instant a script sentence on cardboard. The moment the sentence is hidden, a pupil performs the act indicated by the sentence that he saw for an instant. Without speaking, he shows that he understands the sentence. Such exercises give pupils the much desired "glance power" in rapid reading of entire sentences.

3. "Playing Ball" and "Telling What We Can Do." This exercise will show the children's familiarity with the color names and number names and, also, demonstrates how wonderfully silent "flash reading," followed by action before speech, develops good expression, even when the sentences are monotonously similar in form.

4. "Learning What the Letters Say." This is drill work under the guise of a name. Printed words are pronounced as wholes, and then the sound of the initial letter of each word is given by the class. This is followed by the children making the script form of each letter of the alphabet and giving to each letter is sound, not its name. The names of the letters, however, are to be taught, before the first half-year closes.

5. "What We Do at School." Following the reading of each sentence, the pupils show with crayons, scissors and paper some of the simple work they delight to do in drawing and freehand cutting.

6. "From Toy Shop to Christmas Tree." This exercise shows the children's familiarity with the names of the objects which occur in the first two primers to be read by them.

7. "A Guessing Game" and "A Peep Show." These exercises show the interest and ease with which the children master the idioms, "She has," "He has," "She saw" and "He saw," and proves that "motor activity" is far better than "dry as dust drills" in teaching reading.

8. "The Playmates." These exercises introduce the names of the characters presented in the first two primers that the children are to read. Such exercises are in reality the first steps in dramatization, that much-used and much-abused phase of modern school room work. The exercises are intended to demonstrate the utter simplicity which should characterize school dramatization, and to show the aid that such work becomes in securing good expression preparatory to "book reading."

9. "The Circus Parade." This exercise shows the ease and interest with which children master the names of the animals seen in the circus parade—objects which are talked about in the school room after they have been seen—and then reproduced by the children in drawing and freehand cutting.

10. Singing "Phonic iJngles" and the "Alphabet Song." These exercises demonstrate how the approach to "word analysis," or phonic drill, is made through singing and reciting the rhymes called "phonic jingles." Since only the first step in such work has been taken by these little "beginners," the last part of this exercise in phonics as well as the singing of the "A, B, C's" will be done by children who are more advanced; that is, by some who entered school last February.

Buy It Made-in-Texas.

Never in the history of Texas commercialism has there been launched a propaganda that is accomplishing more for the entire citizenship of the Lone Star State than the recently organized Buy-It-Made-in-Texas movement. Already the results obtained in this gigantic campaign of education are most apparent.

The ideal of the movement is pointedly expressed in its slogan, "Texas products for consumption; Texas labor for production."

Texas is an empire in itself. The people of Texas could make it even one of the greatest, and it lies easily within their power to do so, if they only would use the effort.

Texas soils and Texas climate can produce almost all necessaries of life and raw materials for manufactured products.

The world is now marveling at the wonderful resources of Germany and her ability to exist within herself. Fortunately, we of Texas have not been put to such a test—and may we never be compelled to—but wouldn't it be well for us to help ourselves and not be so dependent upon others?

Texas manufacturers should be encouraged and fostered. We can manufacture and do manufacture goods as well as any, and our labor is in many ways superior to the labor of sweatshop, foreign factory labor of the North.

We all agree that we need more factories. But to get more we must strive to make those we have more profitable.

The Buy-It-Made-in-Texas movement not only endeavors to help the worthy manufacturers who are here and encourages more to come, but strives to impress the first duty of Texas citizenship to be a Texan first, last and all the time.

Let us take a concrete example of what the Buy-it-Made-in-Texas movement means. Nearly every one of the million families of Texas uses this article. Millions of dollars are annually sent out of the state for this commodity. Every dollar Texas spends for shortening made in other states goes out, never to return.

No criticism could be offered if by purchasing non-Texas shortenings, Texans were getting a better quality or a better price, as compared with a Texas shortening. But they are not. There are a number of shortenings made in Texas that offer the consumer equal value, if not better, price and quality considered, to any shortening made elsewhere.

Crusto, for example, the best known of all the Texas shortenings, is a product of the highest possible quality, and absolutely guaranteed. The world knows no better; Nature and up-to-the-minute science can do no more. It is the ideal, modern cooking fat. This supreme quality, marketed at a fair price, offers not only honest but generous value; and even the most exacting and critical consumer should be satisfied.

Think it over. What reason can a Texas housewife give for using a non-Texas shortening. She can get no better quality, no better value. If Crusto perchance doesn't suit her, why, there are other Texas shortenings which may; but in any case, she should not use shortening made in other states until she has tried the product of all the Texas manufacturers. She should give Texas-made products the preference.

Patronize the industries of your state, as every dollar of capital added to Texas' wealth benefits all Texas people directly or indirectly. The true Texan will "buy Texas-made products, if to be had of as good quality and at as fair price as others." And that is all any Texas manufacturer asks.

Senatbr Morgan Was Right.

Senator Morgan of Alabama worked faithfully and long for an isthmian canal, but wanted it through Nicaragua, and many now believe that he was right, since the canal is closed. It will require several months to remove the ten million yards of earth savings and slidings, and that means some more millions of expense. How many more millions will be needed to make the canal safe and secure would be unsafe to gamble on. That canal should have been a sea-level waterway instead of the lock-and-dam system. It would be far better should an enemy attack the canal. When the works are disabled the canal is useless. It is also less expensive to maintain the sea-level system.—Sherman Democrat.

Putrefying the Air.

Mrs. August Belmont—the once famous Eleanor Robson—said of Germany's adoption of asphyxiating gases which the soldiers discharge from soda syphons:

"It reminds me of Mrs. Malaprop, who asked her husband whether soda was spelt as two words or with a siphone between—the same Mrs. Malaprop, who, another time, said:

"'Open the window and putrefy the air.'"

Advertising Versus Praying.

The small daughter of a Little Rock family had been praying each evening at bedtime for a baby sister.

The other morning her mother, reading the paper, exclaimed: "I see Mrs. Smith has a little daughter."

"How do you know that?" asked the child.

"I read it in the paper," answered the mother.

"Read it to me," said the daughter.

The mother read: "Born, on March —, to Mr. and Mrs —— Smith, a daughter."

The child thought a moment, then said: "I know what I'm going to do. I'm going to quit praying and begin advertising."—National Monthly.

Melted Away.

John Grier Hibben, the brilliant head of Princeton, said at the Lake Mohonk arbitration conference:

"The day is not yet come when violence and oppression will melt away before right like the plumber's bill.

"Like, I repeat, the plumber's bill. For a plumber, you know, once presented to a millionaire a bill of $100 for mending a pipe.

"But the millionaire handed the plumber a dollar note and said severely:

"'Receipt that bill of yours in full.'

"'But—but—' said the plumber.

"'Receipt it in full,' the millionaire repeated. 'I used to be a plumber man, myself.'

COTTON

By The Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 6.—There was a sharp break in the cotton market today, with prices making new low ground for the movement under continued liquidation, Southern and local selling. January contracts sold off to 11.54c or $1.65 a bale under the best price reached on the rally of yesterday morning, and closed at 11.57c. The general list closed steady at a net decline of 9 to 20 points.

The market opened at a decline of 7 to 11 points in response to relatively easy cables and soon sold 11 to 13 points under last night's closing figures. There appeared to be quite a demand on the basis of 12 cents for May contracts with this buying again attributed partly to spinners' calling and the market steadied up 3 or 4 points from the lowest on covering, but quickly weakened again on private cables reporting that a prominent international firm had again raised its estimate of the Indian crop, which now is placed at 6,300,000 bales, including the carryover from last year.

Selling became more general and urgent on this second break and stop orders were uncovered on the decline, which carried December contracts off to 11.41c, March to 11.75c and May to 11.90c, or 21 to 23 points net lower.

Most of the overnight advices from the South indicated a firm spot situation in the interior, but emphasized the firmness of holders, rather than the extent of the demand and late in the morning there were rather less favorable advices from Memphis.

The rapid increase of interior stocks has made a considerable impression on sentiment, particularly as the tendency to scale down estimates of export requirements has been increased by the larger Indian crop figures.

New Orleans.

By The Associated Press.

New Orleans, Nov. 6.—There was a lively week-end session in the cotton market today, trading being brisk from start to finish. Prices were held at the decline, closing within a point of the lowest, at a net loss of 18 to 20 points. Selling seemed about equally divided between the two accounts and to be inspired chiefly by expectations of heavy ginning returns in Monday's report from the census bureau.

The marekt opened steady but fell 10 to 14 points in the early trading. Cables were not high enough and the weather may was considered perfect. After brief hesitation, selling orders increased and prices sagged again, the market acquiring a soft tone late in the day.

Bears called attention to the comparatively small mill takings for the week, the exceedingly small export movement and claimed that the weather was adding materially to the size of the crop. They also made much of an Indian crop estimate of 6,400,000 bales, including a carry-over of 9000,000 bales, by a well-known foreign firm.

On the decline moderate fresh long buying came in, being encouraged by reports from several portions of the belt that spot-holders were as firm as ever. Memphis reported an improved demand.

By some bulls the theory was held that powerful interests were forcing the market lower in order to establish a better buying basis.

WHEAT

By The Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—Predictions of a liberal increase of the visible supply total on Monday gave an advantage to the bears on wheat today and so also did a good deal of wild guessing about the reasons for the departure of Earl Kitchener from London. The market closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to ½c lower, with December at $1.04¼@1.04⅝ and May at $1.05⅛. Corn closed a shade off to ¼@⅜c up; oats at a sixteenth down to a like advance and provisions unchanged to 35 cents higher.

Announcement that primary receipts of wheat today amounted to one million bushels more than on the corresponding day a year ago had much to do with making the bulls uneasy. Holders were also handicapped by surmises current that Earl Kitchener might attend a peace conference in Switzerland. Reports that the French government had bought one million barrels of flour in the United States furnished strength to wheat.

Corn averaged higher as a result of bullish crop reports from Iowa, and owing to expert demand for shipments by way of the gulf.

Oats continued to keep firm within a narrow range.

Active buying of lard helped provisions upgrade as a whole.

(From the Argonaut.)

He was traveling in the south and had to put up overnight at a second-rate hotel in Western Georgia. He said to the clerk when he entered:

"Where shall I autograph?"

"Autograph?" said the clerk.

"Yes; sign my name, you know."

As he was signing his name in the register in came three roughly clothed unshorn fellows immediately recognizable as Georgia "crackers." One of them advanced to the desk.

"Will you autograph?" asked the clerk, his face aglow with the pleasure that comes from the consciousness of intellectual superiority.

"Certainly," said the "cracker," his face no less radiant than that of the clerk; "mine's rye."

DR. H. T. MUSSELMAN LECTURES AT BAYLOR

EMINENT EDUCATOR ENGAGED FOR SERIES OF WEEK-END LECTURES.

PUBLIC INVITED TO ATTEND

Course Is Free to All—Interesting News of the University During the Past Week.

Dr. H. T. Musselman, editor of the Texas School Journal, is delivering a series of lectures at Baylor on the subject of "Work and Play in Modern Education." The aim of the lectures is to tell the story of the great educational revival which is breaking out all over the land and to interpret its meaning for the education of the child in the home and public schools.

The lectures will be related as a whole but each one will deal with some phase of the work in such a manner that one can attend when it is convenient and still get good out of it.

It is primarily extension work for the purpose of giving the teachers, students and mothers a general idea of what the new revival of education is and how it will help in the training of the child. There will be lectures on special phases of the work that will be very beneficial to the mothers who care to attend, and special features every time that will be of the greatest importance to those who expect to become teachers. All the most modern methods will be described and the most competent methods of successful teaching will be brought out in full.

These lectures are open to the public and a cordial invitation is extended to the people of Waco to attend them all, if they so desire. There will be no fees, as Baylor university has arranged for the course and those who desire to come will be the guests of Dr. Musselman and the university.

Dr. Brooks said that he earnestly hoped that the people of Waco would take advantage of this opportunity and hear all of the lectures, at the expense of the university.

The hours are: Fridays, from 4 to 5:30 in the afternoons ,and Saturdays from 10 to 11 in the mornings. Dr. Musselman comes every week-end and delivers the two lectures to the general public and the students at large, and on special dates he will meet those desiring credit for the work. He stated that there would be considerable outside reading, and extensive work for those who were seeking college credit. It will not be so much as to detract from their regular work in the university or from the duties of teaching for those teaching in the schools, but will be sufficient for them to get the good of the series and do a reasonable amount of work for the course.

Seniors to Erect Permanent Monument on Campus.

The class of 1916 have completed arrangements with the faculty and trustees whereby they can erect a permanent monument of some kind on the university campus. This is the first class to undertake a thing of this kind and complete the arrangements for the work. It will be a large granite bench to be used as a lounging place or for study on the campus and for the general benefit that comes from a place where one can sit in the shade of the great trees on the grounds. The contract is being arranged with the Central Texas Granatoid company for the work and it will be finished by November 25, and be dedicated at the homecoming.

The university authorities are very much pleased with the undertaking and have commended the senior class for its actions and for the determination it has shown in the undertaking. This is a much smaller class than has gone out from Baylor in some time but the spirit of self-sacrifice is evident in the piece of work that is to be done.

Dr. Brooks Off for Series of Lectures.

Dr. S. P. Brooks leaves this afternoon for Roby, Abilene, Ballinger, Clyde and Aspermont, where he will deliver a series of lectures to teachers' institutes in these respective places. His subject will be on the general theme of education and the new methods together with the advantages that come from proper training of teachers.

Dr. Kesler to Deliver His Tolstoi Lecture.

Dr. J. L. Kesler has been invited to speak before the University Press club on Tolstoi. He will deliver the same lecture that he did to the Southwestern university student body two weeks ago, on the life and works of Count Tolstoi, the great Russian writer and philosopher. The lecture as given by Prof. Kesler is most interesting and inspiring. It will be given Tuesday night at 8 in the rooms of the club, unless further announcement is made to the contrary. The Press club invites all who are interested in this great writer to be present and hear the address.

Girls Are Preparing for Exhibition at Cotton Palace.

The young women of the class in gymnasium work are preparing for a basketball game at the Cotton Palace to be given on Baylor Day. Also a few exercises that will be most interesting. The director, Miss Annie Maxwell, has developed a bunch of new girls who are excellent players. She is very enthusiastic over the work of the new material and has spent much time making them into a machine that will make it hard for the girls who have won their letters to hold the honors at the game.

Miss Maxwell deserves much credit for the good machine she has developed from the new material. The prospects for a good team are evident for next year, and with the material now working it is thought that it will be the best team in the history of the school.

WORK WE DO STAYS DONE.

UNITY IS KEYNOTE OF G-M EXHIBIT

MAGNIFICENT EVENING COSTUMES IS FEATURE OF DISPLAY THIS YEAR.

Particularly notable among the many excellent exhibits of local firms at the Cotton Palace is the display presented by the Goldstein-Migel company, occupying one of the largest spaces of any exhibit in the main building. Not only is the display attractive on account of the splendid beauty of the merchandise that is featured, but it has the additional attraction of being in perfect good taste throughout. The central idea of the exhibit being an exterior scene in the grounds of a palatial residence, everything shown is in keeping with this scheme of decoration.

In the background is seen the mansion and lawn, and in the foreground are grouped a number of figures in evening costume—guests as it were, at some social function. Many clever touches add to the pleasing attractiveness of the exhibit—as for instance, the little table in one corner, where three tiny girlies, dressed in their party clothes, are enjoying a "treat" of ice cream all by themselves.

The chief feature is the magnificent evening costumes that are shown; these were brought to Waco by the Goldstein-Migel company especially for the Cotton Palace display, and include some of the most beautiful fashions that have been seen here this season.

Crowds Admire Gowns.

Among the more elaborate gowns may be mentioned a Pompadour velvet costume, model by Mayer; this has a very unique balloon side pocket effect, and petticoat of imported Milanese lace. Another dress deserving of particular notice is a dinner gown of black spangles on silk net, made in the new panel effect, with panel of sequins in front and back, producing a decidedly novel effect. Another beautiful creation is a white silver spangled evening dress, on silk Brussels net, adapted from one of the latest French designs. Much admiration was called forth today by an elaborate Pompadour model gown of white net, with overdrape studded in pink roses; these roses run in two and three tiers around the skirt, and the same decoration scheme is carried out in the yoke and sleeves.

A number of very exclusive hats are shown, some of which run up as high as $125. One which attracted much attention from yesterday's visitors is a Fisk model in black velvet, slashed high back sailor effect with Gainsborough flare, trimmed with a gorgeous paradise. Another exquisite model is a pink plumed evening hat with draped crown, created by a famous eastern millinery designer especially for the Goldstein-Migel display. An admirable example of simple elegance in millinery is found in an ermine military turbanette, with narrow brim of gold lace, trimmed with a single stick of ostrich.

It was stated at the Goldstein-Migel store last night that more compliments have been received upon this display than upon any the store has ever made in years previous. People who are familiar with the exhibits made by the great stores at fairs and expositions in other cities, pronounce this display of the Goldstein-Migel company to be one of the very best that has been shown anywhere this year, ranking with displays seen in cities two and three times the size of Waco.

The display was designed and executed by Fred Spencer, display manager for the Goldstein-Migel store.

Texas Bitulithic Company Corrects Advertising Error

Because of an error in listing streets the Texas Bitulithic company of Dallas, advertisement in the special edition of the Waco Morning News of last Sunday, carried misinformation as to the thoroughfares paved in Waco by the corporation. F. B. Peak, treasurer of the Waco branch of the company, discovered the error and urges a correction.

The Texas Bitulithic has been an exceedingly busy company in Waco and has numerous paved streets to its credit. These include North Fifth street, Washington street, Herring avenue, 7,400 feet; Herring avenue, Fifth to Nineteenth, 4,000 feet; North Eighth, Austin to Columbus and North Sixth, Austin to Columbus, 1,275 feet; North Fifteenth, Columbus to West, 3,300 feet; Columbus, Sixth to Twenty-third, 6,500 feet; Austin, Eighth to Twenty-first, 5,525 feet; Eighteenth, Austin to Colonial, 3,200 feet; Clay, Eighth to Twenty-first, 5,200 feet; Jefferson, Tenth to Twelfth, 800 feet; North Twelfth, Austin to Jefferson, 400 feet.

The total of bitulithic paved streets in Waco is approximately eight miles.

Dwight Lewelling Believes Ferguson Will Be Defeated

Representative Dwight L. Lewelling, of Dallas county, who was here yesterday, believes that Governor Ferguson will have opposition for re-election in next year's primaries.

"It's merely my individual opinion," he said, "that Governor Ferguson cannot escape opposition, owing to the policies for which he stands, and the fact that his administration has been anything but a success.

"What has he done, anyway, for the people, with all his pretensions of love for the plain folks?

"His third-and-fourth law is a joke; he has no land policy whatever and the hundreds of thousands of tenants which he claims elected him are still without homes, despite his remarkable 'forty acres and a mule' campaign of last year.

"He is evidently opposed to all reforms of our election law, especially that one limiting campaign expenditures, and seems to be displeased when the government prosecutes men for election frauds. He stands for the destruction of our progressive insurance legislation. It is to be presumed until he states otherwise that his pledge to veto all liquor legislation still stands.

"If he has done anything substantial for education no one has been able to discover it, and he is but plunging the state further into a woeful chaos regarding penitentiary affairs.

"It is quite evident that he does not believe in civil service reform and has accomplished nothing toward reducing the interest rates in Texas or simplifying court procedure. While the tax rate will be enormously increased, what will we get in return?

"These are a few of the reasons that lead me to believe that he will have opposition and that he will probably be defeated."

Two Unique Presentations in Cotton Palace Coliseum

Among the unlooked for events in the Coliseum last night were two unique presentations. Governor Jas. E. Ferguson received a beautiful Morris chair made entirely by the hands of a young woman of Waco, and ribbons were given in recognition of the best and next best oxen drivers in the state, the presentation being made by the mayor in the first instance and by the governor in the second.

"Some think that the greatest man is a statesman, some think he is a great speaker, or a great general, some this and some that, but in my opinion we've a man with us who is neither, and yet he's a great man. A man who can drive eight yoke of oxen, cut around like a jitney car, go backwards and forwards, and cut a figure eight is a veritable Napoleon and I take great pleasure in delivering to him this insignia denoting the state's greatest ox driver in behalf of the directors of the Texas Cotton Palace." With this statement the governor pinned on W. O. Dunn of Benchley, a long blue ribbon of the exposition.

In his boots and flannel shirt, strong and brawny, Mr Dunn made a picturesque figure. His companion, J. R. Richie of Benchley, Robertson county, was presented a red ribbon, denoting second honors, by the governor.

Texas' chief executive now has an easy chair, made absolutely in Waco, and by a woman's hand at that. In behalf of Miss Willie Mayberry, of Twenty-ninth and Washington streets, who made the chair in her workshop at home, Mayor Riggins made the presentation.

"Almost thou persuadest me to woman suffrage," said the governor. "This beautiful chair represents what the artistic hands of a woman can do—about anything she sets her hand to do, and can usually excell man in any of the undertakings she attempts." He thanked the young lady most cordially. The chair will be shipped to Austin by Asher Sanger.

Miss Mayberry spends much of her time in the workshop at her home, making beautiful things to suit her fancy. She has never had any manual training in an industrial school, but has learned wood work and leather work without assistance.

TICKETS FOR GAME AT COLLEGE STATION ON SALE TOMORROW

Interest in the A. & M.-State University football game at College Station next Friday continues to develop in Waco, where both schools have a large number of former students and hosts of followers.

It is probable the special train to be run out of Waco and intermediate points over the I. & G. N. Friday morning will be one of the most numerously patronized "football specials" ever chartered in this section. It, too, will be one of the most thoroughly equipped for the comfort and convenience of the gridiron enthusiasts.

Reserve seats for the controversy now are on sale at Freund's cigar store No. 2. They are being sold at $1, $2 and $2.50. In recognition of the interest being taken in Waco, the A. & M. officials have forwarded a diagram of the field that ticket buyers may select their seats intelligently. Two sections for the University rooters on the University side of the field and two sections for the backers of the A. & M. on the A. & M. side have been reserved for the Waco excursionists. Seats in the bleachers also may be secured. A total of 226 seats have been set aside for Waco.

Indicative of the intense interest being taken in the prospective contest, besides scores of business men and others who formerly attended school either at the University or the A. & M., Baylor will be represented by 25 students. San Saba will send a delegation of not less than 15, while Mart, Marlin, Crawford, West and McGregor will make heavy contributions to the crowd.

The train will carry a 60-foot baggage car, arranged to serve luncheon and supplied with refreshments. The train will be generously decorated with the colors of both schools commingling in amiable rivalry. B. J. Price, general passenger agent, will go along, as also will J. W. Byars, division passenger agent. These two officials will attend in order to assure schedule time. The train will return to Waco in ample time for the Queen's ball at the Coliseum during the evening.

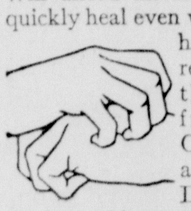

Clint Padgitt, director of the Cotton Palace, has been selected by the directorate to represent the exposition in the endeavor to secure contracts for a game during the Cotton Palace next year between Baylor and Texas and between Baylor and A. & M. More than twenty-five Baylor students and football men will accompany the rooters.

Public School Men Coming for Public Servants' Day

The superintendents of the public schools of Texas are manifesting much interest in Public Servants' Day at the Cotton Palace. Among the city superintendents who have recently announced their intention to be present on that day are W. W. Clement, Temple; A. B. Weisner, Teague; J. P. Buck, West; T. L. Vance, Hamilton.

Many prominent college presidents and professors have signified their intention to be present. B. B. Cobb, superintendent of the public schools of Waco, has courteously extended invitations to every superintendent of schools in Texas to visit the Cotton Palace on Public Servants' Day.

Dr. Dawson Issues Call for Special Committee Session

Dr. J. M. Dawson, pastor of the First Baptist church, and chairman of the sanitarium board of the Waco Baptist Association, has called a meeting of the sub-committee which will have charge of all the details of building a Baptist sanitarium in Waco. The meeting will be held in the First Baptist church tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. The committee which is composed of John F. Rowe, Dr. F. S. Groner, Dr. J. B. Tidwell, Rev. J. W. Mayfield of Mart was named by Dr. Dawson at a recent meeting of the sanitarium board. Dr. Dawson is also a member of the board.

The meeting will be for the purpose of planning the campaign for raising the funds for building the sanitarium, etc. The sub-committee which meets tomorrow will have charge of all arrangements for the work, including securing a site and letting the contract for the building after funds have been raised.

T. P. & L. Will Establish General Storeroom Here

R. C. McDill, formerly assistant purchasing agent of the Texas Power and Light company, with headquarters at Dallas, will arrive in Waco some time this week to make arrangements for the establishment of a central storehouse for the company.

Improvements have been made on the old power plant building owned by the company and this will be used as the new storehouse. The concrete floor in this structure and the modifications which have been made to the roof make it specially fitted for this purpose.

General store supplies will be concentrated here and the branch cities operated by the company will be supplied from the Waco storehouse. This will enable the company to have carload shipments made from the factories and in this way a considerable amount of freight will be saved.

This arrangement will, no doubt, prove of considerable advantage to the company. The recognition of Waco as a central distribution point is quite a tribute to the city.

Mr. McDill will move his family here from Dallas and will make Waco his future home. Upon his arrival he will assume the position of general storekeeper for the company.

SAVE YOUR HAIR AND BEAUTIFY IT WITH "DANDERINE"

SPEND 25 CENTS! DANDRUFF DISAPPEARS AND HAIR STOPS COMING OUT.

TRY THIS! HAIR GETS BEAUTIFUL, WAVY AND THICK IN FEW MOMENTS

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

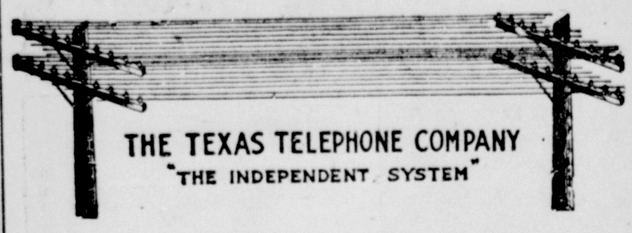

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?

Telephone Service at the Cotton Palace

Telephone service on the Cotton Palace grounds is furnished by the Texas Telephone Company. A branch exchange has been installed in the main building, and service can be had promptly from the city to any telephone on the grounds.

Simply call for "Cotton Palace," and when the Cotton Palace operator answers, ask for the display or booth you want to reach.

Free connection with any Independent telephone in the city at the telephone booth, main building. Long Distance calls handled promptly to or from the Cotton Palace grounds.

MISS ROSENBERG LEADS MERCHANTS' POPULAR CONTEST

The $4,000 voting contest conducted by local merchants produced a new leader at the close of the last week's voting, as shown by the figures compiled at the Goldstein-Migel store last night. Miss Sara Rosenberg now heads the city list with 473,560 votes, which is nearly 20,000 more than her nearest competitor, Miss Ethel Jackson.

In the out-of-town district Miss Ruth Oswald, who has been in the lead for several weeks past, still holds her advantage, now having to her credit 357,415 votes. Mrs. R. W. Crowder Jr. follows with 353,085 votes.

The race for the two magnificent Buick touring cars and the ten other handsome prizes to be given away at Christmas continues to grow in interest and enthusiasm with each day that passes. One contestant holds the lead for a day or two, and then another candidate forges to the front. Although the contest has now been in progress more than two months, the result is still as much in doubt as it was on the opening day. The total number of votes that have been cast now runs up into millions, but the votes seem to be so widely distributed among the various contestants that no one apparently has any decided advantage.

With the Cotton Palace bringing thousands of visitors from out of town, and the season of holiday shopping coming on, it is predicted that the number of votes registered during the next few weeks will be enormous. The force of clerks originally employed to handle the ballots at the Goldstein-Migel store has been more than doubled since the contest started, and is being increased from day to day as one of the greatest advertising events ever conducted in the state, and backed as it is by firms of well founded reputation, is bringing to Waco a volume of trade that has seldom, if ever, been attracted by any offering of its kind.

No Elimination Except at Primaries, Says Brooks

"The only elimination in which I propose figuring in connection with my candidacy for the United States senate will take place next July in the democratic primaries," declared Dr. S. P. Brooks, president of Baylor university, last night when asked what he knew of the reported conference of a few Texas prohibitionists in Dallas recently for the purpose of considering the 1916 campaign and as reported in this week's issue of State Topics at Houston. This is the paper edited by Jeff: McLemore, congressman-at-large from this state.

"I was not at the Dallas meeting to which this article refers, was not aware that any such conference had been held and any action that this or any subsequent elimination conference that might be held will not be binding upon me," Dr. Brooks declared. "I entered the race upon my own volition with the belief that I would win and no statement concerning my movements in the race need be given any consideration unless it appears over myisgnature."

It Might Have Been Rip Van Winkle, Who Knows

Some super-cynic has said with a sardonic grin that there will be some drowsy, benumbed individual straggle into the edge of the crowd that great day when St. Peter blows his horn of destiny and ask some angelic bystander what it all means.

What bids fair to be a precedent for such a performance happened last night on Austin avenue, when the din of the fire whistles and auto horns were at their worst in the night Cotton Palace parade. When the flash of the fire engine funnels, under full steam, gave a vivid touch to the fearful noises that already resembled Dante's description of hades, and the crowds yelled, bubbling over with the excitement and vibrant joy of opening Cotton Palace night, a drowsy, unstable individual appeared.

He looked all around uncomprehending, bewildered, dumfounded. His ear drums tingled, but his understanding was sluggish.

Finally this queer individual, a false note in the harmony of the thousands, secured the ear of a sympathetic bystander, and with a sweep of his wobbly hand, asked:

"Mister, wha's—hic—wha's all this mean?"

Extra Football Game at Cotton Palace to Be Sanguinary One

Another red-hot football game has been scheduled for the Cotton Palace. It will be played between Meridian college and normal of Meridian, Texas, and the Collegiate institute of Jacksonville, Texas, on Monday, Nov. 15, at 1:15 p. m. This game is of unusual importance because it will decide the junior college championship of Texas.

Neither of these two teams so far this season has been defeated. Each team is confident that they possess the stuff to wallop the other team all over the lot. It will be a terrific contest.

There have been weeks of discussion as to where the championship game should be pulled off. Neither team was willing to play on the grounds of the other team. The Cotton Palace proved a happy solution of the question. This city is located about halfway between the two colleges. Hundreds of loyal rooters will accompany their respective teams to the Cotton Palace.

There is no question but that this will be one of the most hotly contested games played in Texas this season.

The whole town of Meridian will close up and come to the Cotton Palace on a special train.

The admission to this game will be 50c.

Railroad Man Has Highest Praise for 1915 Cotton Palace

A. K. Ragsdale, the well known traveling passenger agent of the San Antonio and Aransas Pass railway, with headquarters at San Antonio, visited Waco yesterday to witness the opening of the Cotton Palace. Mr. Ragsdale visited the publicity headquarters of the Cotton Palace, and reported that the people residing along his road were unusually enthusiastic about the Cotton Palace. He predicts a record breaking attendance at the exposition from his territory.

He said the Cotton Palace was better advertised this year than any exposition in the South.

Night Turned Into Day to Rush Work on Texas Telephone Co. Building

Passers-by on North Ninth street during the last several nights have been surprised to see work proceeding on the new telephone building under the glare of electric light. Contractor J. S. Harrison has put on a night shift, and with the site well lighted by powerful lamps, is pouring the concrete work both night and day. The telephone company has offered a bonus to the contractor for every day gained over the contract time agreed on, and Contractor Harrison will take some of that bonus unless something unforeseen interferes seriously with his present plans. The night work will be continued while the concrete work is under way.

President J. B. Earle of the telephone company stated Saturday that the second floor would probably be on the building by the middle of next week. Considering the speed the contractors are making, he said, his company had taken steps to rush the completion of the equipment to be installed, and that unless this was delayed the company would probably be able to occupy the building sooner than had been anticipated.

Some of the new apparatus has already been received by the telephone company; other parts are being shipped as fast as completed. Reports from the manufacturers of the switch board indicate that the work is progressing favorably to date.

Dog Show Opens Tuesday Morning

Do not be surprised if you happen to see hundreds of dogs being led toward the Cotton Palace on every street next Tuesday morning. That is the day the Cotton Palace dog show opens. All exhibitors will be required to have their dogs at the Cotton Palace by 10 o'clock on that morning. The dog show is undoubtedly going to be a far greater success than ever before. Ralph McLendon, director in charge of the dog show, is very much enthused over the outlook.

Dr. G. W. Clayton of Chicago will be the judge of the show. He has arrived in Waco and is renewing old acquaintances. Dr. Clayton is well known in Waco, having presided over the dog show at the Cotton Palace last year. He is one of the best known judges of dogs in the United States.

Dr. Clayton is a prominent member of the Shriners at Chicago. He has been invited to participate in the Shriner festivities at the coliseum on Monday night.

Cupid and Cotton Palace Work Together This Year

Cupid, assisted by the management of the most unique exposition in the world—the Cotton Palace—has captured a bank president and a charming widow for the matrimonial exhibit at the big show Monday. The couple are R. H. Kelley, of the Farmers and Merchants bank, and Mrs. Rachel Ward, both of Gustine. The groom-to-be is 57 years old while Mrs. Ward, the bride-elect, confesses to 39 years.

The event, one of the most unusual of the Cotton Palace, will be the feature card of the Young Men's Business League Day, Monday. The Y. M B. L. created and executed the idea. C. P. Link was selected as chairman of the matrimonial committee and that he and his associates did well is testified to by the fact that they persuaded the chief of a substantial money house in a thriving community, to be one of the principals. Mrs. Ward is as prominent in the social affairs of Gustine as her prospective consort is in the financial life of that place. They will receive more than one hundred wedding presents from merchants of Waco.

Mr. Kelley and Mrs. Ward will arrive in Waco today. They will be met at the station by a reception committee who will take them in charge and extend numerous special courtesies. The hotel at which they will stop has not been announced.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mrs Irene Pearson of Dallas will be with Mrs. C. E. Welch for the Cotton Palace.

Mrs. R. C. Smith of Pine Bluff, Ark., is a Cotton Palace guest of her sister, Mrs. M. C. Durie.

Joe Edison and wife from Hamilton are visiting Mrs. Clara E. Allen, at 1006 South Fourth street, during the Cotton Palace.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wheeler of Flatonia, are the guests of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Murphy, Highland Place, for the Cotton Palace.

Mrs. A. B. Mayes of McKinney and Miss Abbie Allen of Frisco are the guests of their sister, Mrs. M T. Ferguson of Sanger avenue.

Mrs. S. J. Cross of Meridian, Miss., who has been visiting her son, A. H. Cross, 1425 Washington street, will leave for her home tomorrow.

Mrs. C. B. Davis and little daughter Elizabeth of Corpus Christi, arrive today to be Cotton Palace guests of Mrs. Davis' aunt, Mrs. C. E. Welch.

V. B. O'Niel, traveling passenger agent for the M., K. and T., was looking after company business in Waco yesterday. He makes headquarters in San Antonio.

Dr. S. P. Brooks of Paylor University, will leave tonight for a week's engagement in addressing teachers' institutes at Aspermont, Clyde, Roby, Ballinger and Abilene.

Sheriff W. W. Hollingsworth of Coryell county arrived Saturday to visit the Cotton Palace for a few days. It is understood he is also looking for a fugitive wanted in Gatesville.

C. H. Hull, assistant freight agent of the Santa Fe, left last night for Temple. He will spend Monday as a guest at the home of his father, K S. Hull, superintendent of the Santa Fe road.

Mr. and Mrs. H C. Lazenby and daughter, Miss Frances Lazenby, of Fort Worth, were among the Cotton Palace visitors arriving yesterday. They are guests at the home of W. N. Lazenby, 1821 Sanger avenue.

Blair Gilmer, former president of the Waco Y. M. B. L., but now a resident of San Antonio, arrived yesterday to visit the Cotton Palace for several days. Mr. Gilmer is general baggage agent for the S. A. & A. P.

Dr. John L. Davis, medical inspector of the Amicable Life Insurance company, with Mrs. Davis and Miss Dorothy, have gone to Dallas for a few days, where Dr. Davis is in attendance on the Southern Melical association meeting. He reads a paper before that body on "Health Conservation Through Life Insurance Companies."

Sam Mitchell, C. E. Hampton and J. B. Moberly, all of St. Louis, arrived Saturday and are registered at the Riggins hotel. They are here in connection with the hearing in the Mayor J. W. Riggins bankruptcy proceedings set for Monday before T. F. Bryan, referee. Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Moberly are of the Mercantile Trust company, St. Louis.

Kayser Herring came in last night from Mt. Calm to attend the Baylor-Sewanee game at the Cotton Palace tomorrow. He was manager of the football team for two seasons during his student days at Baylor and is a loyal rooter for the Green and Gold eleven. He was preceded yesterday morning by Mrs. Herring, who is visiting her parents, Judge and Mrs. J N. Gallagher.

Miss Maude Dunbaugh of Waco, who is visiting in Battle Creek, went through the famous Kellogg Toasted Corn Flake company's factory yesterday. Miss Dunbaugh was shown the various interesting processes of making toasted corn flakes and other prepared cereal foods. A light luncheon and a lecture formed an interesting and pleasant feature of the journey through the big plant, which is the mecca of more than a thousand visitors every month

CITY NEWS BRIEFS.

The New State House hotel has added another and valuable acquisition to its list of accommodations for Cotton Palace guests. That is, the management has secured the services of an extra operator to handle the telephone exchange. The board will be in charge of Miss Julia Robertson, one of the most experienced telephone operators in the city.

Clarence Youngblood, now in the county jail waiting to begin a term of two years in the penitentairy for burglary, pleaded guilty yesterday in Judge George N. Denton's court to carrying a pistol, and was given a sentence of 30 days in the county jail. The offense was alleged to have been committed last June Youngblood says he is 18 years old.

R. J. Williams, the sixth defendant to be arraigned during the week in connection with the box car burglaries at Mart, has been held to await the action of the federal grand jury by A. P. McCormick, United States commissioner. Williams was arraigned yesterday. His bond was fixed at $1000, and in default he was remanded to the custody of the marshal.

Arthur Long, connected with the Detroit Trust company of Detroit, was arraigned before Justice J. J Padgett yesterday charged with embezzling an amount in excess of $50, making the offense a felony. He was held to the grand jury under bond of $500. He had been unable to secure bond at a late hour last night. A. A. Sage, local agent for the complaining company, is the prosecuting witness.

Assistant County Attorney Woods filed complaint in Justice J. J. Padgett's court yesterday charging Henry Moore, negro, with assault to murder. The preliminary has not been set, but it probably will be held early next week. Moore is accused of attacking John Mahoney with a hammer at Rosenthal Thursday. The attack was vicious and Mahoney's condition continues serious. It is believed, however, he will recover. Moore was arrested Friday and now is in the county jail.

Waco Physicians Go to Meeting Southern Medicos at Dallas

Hundreds of physicians, members of the Southern Medical association, will meet in ninth annual convention at Dallas Monday. The convention will cotinue over Thursday. With the exception of the American Medical association, the Southern Medical is the greatest association of its kind in the United States, and has more than 5,000 members.

The convention will be followed by a number of hospital clinics. During the convention, problems which cover the field of operations in Southern states will be discussed. The organization has accomplished much good in improving and extending hygienic principles, sanitation and education generally along lines of better health conditions

Among the Waco physicians who are assigned places on the program and who will attend are:

Dr. Horace T. Aynesworth, "Treatment of Trachoma."

Dr. John L. Burgess, "Foreign Bodies in the Esophageal Air Passages."

Dr. M. W. Colgin, discussion on Dietetic Treatment of Bronchial Asthma."

Dr. W. M. Brumby opens the discussion on the general subject of "Community Health Work."

Dr. H. R. Dudgeon on Blood Transfusion."

Dr. I. E. Colgin opens the discussion on "Vaccines in the Treatment of Bronchitis."

Dr. John L. Davis, "Health Conservation Through Life Insurance Companies."

Dr. K. H. Aynesworth discusses "Surgical Complications of Gonorrhea in the Female."

TEXAS TOO MUCH FOR SEWANEE TIGERS

ACCURATE PASSING OF LITTLEFIELD GREAT FACTOR IN THE LONGHORN VICTORY.

Doug Herring and Neil Edwards, Waco Boys, Do Stellar Work for Invaders.

By The Associated Press.

Houston, Nov. 6.—The Royal purple of Sewanee was dragged in the dust today when in the seventh football game between the two schools, Texas defeated Sewanee 27 to 6. The mountain tiger went down fighting every inch of the way but his claws could not gore the tough hide of the Texas Longhorn. It was the open game that bested the Tennesseeans—the open game and the weakness of Sewanee's new backfield on offense.

Long and accurate passes of Littlefield and the brilliant receiving of Turner and Walker were the chief features of the victory. It was a great day for the new game. The Sewanee defense was adamant against the line plunges of Texas as was the Texas line against Sewanee rushing. But Sewanee found it hard to break Texas' running interference on end runs, and were swept off their feet by Texas' forward passes.

Littlefield, Kelso, Simmons and Turner, as well as the old stone wall veteran Texas line, starred throughout. Dobbins played a great defensive game for Sewanee, as did Neil Edmond, the smashing end. Line-up:

Texas—	Position—	Sewanee
Blaine	Left end	N. Edmonds
Dittmar	Center	C. Scott
Birge	Right guard	Leftwick
Berry (C)	Right tackle	Dobbins (C
P. Edmond	Right end	Means
R. Simmons	Quarterback	Herring
C. Turner	Left halfback	Rouhlac
Walker	Fullback	Clark
Littlefield	Right halfback	Sellers

Substitutions—Texas, Simmons for Turner, Turner for Blaine, Kelso for Simmons, Trabue for E. Simmons, Simpson for Berry, Johnson for Simpson, Waites for Walkers; Sewanee, Ellerbee for Sellers, McIsaacs for Means, Wortham for Roulhac, Crudgington for Wortham, Arnold for Ellerbee.

Touchdowns—Texas, Turner 3, Walker; Sewanee, Herring.

Goals from touchdown: Texas, Edmond 2, Kelso; missed, Texas, Edmond 1; Sewanee (punt out unsuccessful).

Officials: Referee, Pelham (Michigan); umpire, Crowley (Notre Dame); field judge, Elliott (Virginia); head linesman, Meek (Michigan).

Notre Dame Wins from West Point

By the Associated Press.

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 6.—Army lost today to Notre Game 7 to 0 in well-played and hard-fought game. Army showed a weak offense and none of the cadet backs could gain consistently through the Notre Dame line except Ohphant, who played his usual star game. The Army forwards were outplayed most of the time. Three times Notre Dame essayed to kick field goals but failed. Coffin outkicked Phelan in a punting duel.

The nearest Army came to scoring was in the last quarter, when Oliphant, on Notre Dame's 46-yard line, tried a goal from placement. In a strong wind the kick was an inch short, the ball striking the cross bar directly in the center. The cadets got down to Notre Dame's 30-yard mark in the first period, but poor work by Murrill, who was thrown for a loss of 20 yards in an attempt at forward passing lost them the advantage.

The visitors scored in the last few minutes of play. Securing the ball at midfield, they began an attack which took them within striking distance. A long forward pass, Cofall to Bergman, gave them the touchdown a moment later when the latter ran the remaining 35 yards to the army goal line. Cofall kicked the goal.

There was some loose handling of the ball and numerous penalties were imposed for offside play and holding. Bergman and Cofall were the stars for Notre Dame, while McLean and Oliphant played the best game for the cadets.

OKLAHOMA SURPRISED BY HENRY KENDALL

TULSA COLLEGIANS HOLD THE SOONER MACHINE TO CLOSE SCORE OF 14 TO 13.

Expecting Easy Game, Benny Owen's Proteges Were Forced to Their Utmost.

Tulsa, Okla., Nov. 6.—The University of Oklahoma football team, undefeated claimants of the 1915 championship in the Southwest kept its record clear by a single point victory over Henry Kendall College here today. The score was 14 to 13 and the university team was behind until the third quarter of what proved to be the hardest game of the season to the eleven which had defeated Texas, Missouri and Kansas.

Kendall's determination and generalship made them the most dangerous opponents the university has faced this season. Expecting to win by a good margin the Sooners showed their desperateness when Captain Geyer's long passes were repeatedly broken up and six times intercepted by Kendall men, who returned for good gains.

Kendall made the first touchdown after three minutes of play by two line plunges, twenty-yard forward pass and two wide end runs the last one sending Hause over the goal.

A 45-yard pass by Young to Miller gave Kendall their last score in the third quarter. Captain Groves kicked goal.

Johnson, Oklahoma quarterback, made the first touchdown for his team in the last 35 seconds of play in the second quarter on a forward pass from Geyer. Line plunging by Capshaw gave them the second score. Geyer kicked both goals.

Four times Kendall held the invaders for downs on their 5-yards line, each time punting out of danger.

"It was one of the greatest games I have ever seen," said Coach Bennie Owens of the Sooners. "It was one of the big surprises of my football career."

Vanderbilt Proves Easy to Virginia

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 6.—Virginia, conquerer of Yale and worthy foe of Harvard, established a claim to Southern football honors by crushing the hitherto invicible Vanderbilt team on Lambeth Field today by a score of 35 to 10.

Five touchdowns achieved through straight line plunging and end running gave Virginia victory. One touchdown and one field goal accomplished by Vanderbilt as a direct result of fumbles by their opponents saved the visitors from a shutout.

After an anxious first quarter, in which Cody drop-kicked the Commodores into a slender lead of three points, supporters of the Orange and Blue were never doubtful of the outcome. Virginia battered through the Vanderbilt defense in the second period for four touchdowns and the only question after that was the size of the score.

Only three forward passes were attempted during the whole game. Two essayed by Vanderbilt were failures, while the only one tried by Virginia brought the home team its third touchdown.

New Trotting Mark Is Set at Frisco

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, Nov. 6.—Tommy Murphy of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., one of the foremost drivers of the country piloted Major Ong and Peter Scott to straight heat victories at the Panama-Pacific exposition harness meet today, despite the fact that he is still under a doctor's care as the result of an operation performed last Thursday.

Peter Scott's capture of the 2:05 trot valued at $5000 was his sixteenth win out of seventeen starts this season for a total of $49,760.

Brown Beats Yale by Neat Field Goal

By the Associated Press.

New Haven, Nov. 6.—A neat field goal from the 22-yard line by Captain Andrews in the third quarter gave Brown its second victory over Yale in 22 years today the score being 3 to 0. It was the third successive defeat and the fourth this season for Yale.

Brown assumed the offensive for the greater part of the contest, but Yale presented a stiff defense at critical junctures. Andrews was brought into position for his field goal by steady rushing. A 15-yard penalty against Yale helped the gain and a short forward pass from Purdy to Andrews completed it.

Yale started the game with a rush, making 60 yards by line plunges on a variation of the "Minnesota shift." When near the goal line, however, the attack faltered and Yale surrendered the ball on downs on the 6-yard line. That was the only time Brown's goal was threatened. Yale's defense showed considerable improvement over previous games, especially in diagnosing the forward pass.

LOUISIANA 13, ARKANSAS 6.

By the Associated Press.

Shreveport, La., Nov. 6.—In a gruelling game today the Louisiana State University squad defeated the University of Arkansas by a score of 13 to 7. The Arkansans displayed superior ability in overhead play during the first quarter and rushed over a touchdown by four consecutive forward passes. In the second half of the contest timely substitutions by the Louisianians greatly strengthened their play and they scored twice, failing, however, to kick goal after the first touchdown. The game was witnessed by a crowd estimated at 12,000.

NAVY 13, BUCKNELL 3.

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Nov. 6.—Although Navy's eleven showed little improvement in attack or defense, they managed to defeat Bucknell today 13 to 3. The midshipmen were unable to tally in the first period, but the visitors scored a field goal a short time after thecontest started.

CHICAGO 35, HASKELL 0.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—The University of Chicago, with a team composed chiefly of substitutes, easily defeated the Haskell Indians here today 35 to 0. Although the Indians never seriously threatened the Chicago goal, they showed occasional flashes of brilliancy in handling forward passes and made excellent gains by this method of attack.

NORTHWESTERN 24, MISSOURI 6.

By The Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—Northwestern showed Missouri something about modern football today. With Driscoll a star in long runs, and contributing a field goal by a drop kick, the Purple outplayed the Tigers and won handily 24 to 6. Missouri showed several flashes of form and was especially strong in line bucking.

White, Pittman and in the last period Reppy plunged for good gains. This plunging gave the Missourians their only touchdown, which came in the second period.

ORANGE AND BLACK HOPES SHATTERED

HARVARD ENDS THE PRINCETON DREAM OF CHAMPIONSHIP DREAM BY 10 TO 6.

Two Field Goals by Tibbott Best the Tigers Could Do—Mahan Star of Game.

By The Associated Press.

Princeton, Nov. 6.—Harvard university's football team defeated the Princeton eleven here this afternoon 10 to 6. It was the fourth consecutive victory for the Crimson over the Tigers since 1912 and the defeat shattered all hopes of the Orange and Black to any claim to the eastern football championship for the present season.

Notwithstanding the apparent closeness of the score, the honors of victory belong chiefly to Harvard, for the contest considered as a whole was between the Crimson team as a combination and the individual scoring ability of Tibbott's goal-kicking toe. Not once was Princeton with its vaunted attack able to batter the Harvard eleven back across the Crimson line. Twice during the struggle the Tigers plunged and sprinted through the Harvard team for more than two-thirds the length of the gridiron, only to be held, when a touchdown appeared imminent, by the superior defense of the Cambridge players. It was then that Captain Glick called upon Tibbott to do what the Princeton team as a whole was unable to accomplish and both times the Tiger scored a cleanly-kicked field goal.

Against this one-man attack Harvard showed a better rounded-out campaign, which netted the Crimson a touchdown and a goal, together with a field goal kicked by Captain Mahan to prove that Princeton did not monopolize the drop-kicking honors of the day.

Between 25,000 and 30,000 spectators filled both sides of the Palmer memorial stadium, while the overflow swung well into the horseshoe end of the structure. Clad in bright autumn gowns, thousands of feminine spectators furnished a brilliant background to the Crimson of Harvard and the Orange and Black of Princeton. Many of the women and girls joined in the almost incessant singing and cheering throughout the game.

The play while thrilling at times did not equal in either brilliancy or intensity big football games in which Princeton and Harvard have been factors in other years. The contest as a whole was slow and sometimes dull. Princeton failed to live up to her reputation during the early contests of the fall, while Harvard, showing marked improvement over the form of two weeks ago was still far from the finished gridiron machine which Coach Percy Houghton turned out at Cambridge a year ago.

During the contest Harvard outkicked and outrushed Princeton, suffered less penalties for violations of the playing code, gained more ground with forward passes and in fact generally outplayed the Tigers. Harvard gained 460 yards to Princeton's 413 in ten kicks, made 174 yards in forty-seven rushes to Princeton's 141 yards in forty-six rushes, and lost 36 yards as the result of four penalties imposed to Princeton's 35 yards in six penalties. Harvard gained 35 yards with three completed forward passes, while the Tigers failed to gain in this manner, although achieving eight yards as the result of one successful lateral pass. Princeton gained nine first downs to Harvard's seven. The Princetons played higher than the Harvard forwards, while Harvard was quicker in getting under the Orange and Black forwards, frequently flinging them back when Princeton had the ball and when it was in Crimson possession. The Harvard interference was better timed and more cohesive than Princeton's and the offensive plays selected with better judgment.

Harvard appeared to have difficulty in absorbing its signals, said to be due to an eleventh hour shift in the code. Toward the end of the game the Princeton cheering squads lost patience and the old baseball slogan, "play ball" was heard.

Not in several years has poorer tackling been witnessed in a big eastern football game. Captain Ned Mahan was the individual star of the game, due to his dodging runs, punting and goal-kicking ability.

Cornell Defeats Michigan 34 to 7

By the Associated Press.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 6.—Barrett's great open field running and ability to crash through Michigan's line at opportune moments was an important factor in the 34 to 7 victory which the football eleven of Cornell scored over Michigan here today.

Barrett was a team in himself. Michigan could not stop him and his performance was a repetition of last year.

In the second period Barrett electrified the crowd by a snaky run of 30 yards after catching a punt.

A Cornell fumble in Cornell territory gave Michigan the ball in the third period. Cornell found Naulbetsch unstoppable and Reiman made the last yard which resulted in a touchdown.

Cochran made the goal.

Lucky Forward Pass Wins for Dartmouth

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Nov. 6.—University of Pennsylvania was defeated by Dartmouth today 7 to 3, but only after the red and blue team which had been reorganized within the week, had made a stubborn fight for winners' honors.

It was a fumble by Holbrook which put Pennsylvania in a position from which Hawley, summoned as a pinch kicker from the substitute's bench, drove the ball over the goal from the 22-yard line in the last period.

Dartmouth became desperate in the remaining few minutes of play and Quarterback Holbrook launched a forward pass. It sped 20 yards over the line of scrimmage, where Emery had evaded everyone and stood alone. He had a clear field for the 20-yard dash to the goal line. Spears kicked the goal.

Meridian College Defeats S. M. U.

Special to the Morning News.

Meridian, Nov. 6.—Meridian College defeated Southern Methodist University here today 21 to 0. S. M. U. played on the defense almost during the entire game. Meridian's goal was in danger only once when S. M. U. was held for downs on the 5-yard line. The visitors were not able to complete a pass, while Meridian completed several for good gains. Thomas, Wilson and Williamson were stars for S. M. U. The feature of the game was the broken field running of Tittle for Meridian. Lawson and Adams starred in the line also. The line plunging of Crawford and Gunn netted many long gains for Meridian.

This makes the sixth consecutive victory for Meridian, cinching the Central Texas championship of secondary schools. The next game is to be played against Alexander Collegiate Institute of Jacksonville and will be played on the Cotton Palace grounds at Waco, November 15.

GEORGIA TECH 25, ALABAMA 7.

By the Associated Press.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 6.—Georgia Tech defeated Alabama 21 to 7 here today in a football game lacking in the spectacular elements generally expected. Tech relied entirely upon straight football and scored in each of the first three periods.

Whittesly, left guard for Alabama, suffered a broken arm on the play which netted Tech its second touchdown.

BAYLOR-SEWANEE GAME WILL BE A DINGER

DOPE FRAMES UP FOR GREAT CONTEST BETWEEN TEAMS EVENLY MATCHED.

Baylor Has Never "Uncovered" Yet. May Be Ready to Spring Surprise. Stonerod Sees Houston Game.

All the dope reads for a dinger of a football game between Baylor and Sewanee at the Cotton Palace Monday afternoon. For several weeks football lovers have been looking forward to this game, but the wildest dreams of the wildest bug never figured out the angles that have arisen within the past week to square the teams.

In spite of figures to the contrary the State University team on paper and by comparative scores looks better than Baylor—at least a little better; in fact, State seems to have about the same edge over Baylor that she showed over Sewanee in yesterday's game at Houston. This would make it appear—according to paper figures—that Sewanee and Baylor will take the field as evenly matched as any two teams that have met in this greatest of all football years.

But the dope on modern football games has an uncanny habit of getting all plex up when least expected. For instance, no human—not even Baylor backers—knows just how strong a team will support the Waco University against Sewanee. They are more or less battle scarred and crippled up by injuries, but that the whole first team will take the field Monday there can be no doubt. But, as said, no one knows how strong they are, for they haven't been extended this season. The only game they were the least bit leary of was with Rice, and when they cut loose on the Houston field they looked like a big eastern eleven. No effort has been made to pile up big scores, it being the policy of the coaches to shoot an entire new team into the field as soon as a game was safe. So it is probable that even the coaches may not know the exact strength of their line, or the full force of their offense.

All the signs point to a battle of straight football. While both Baylor and Sewanee are known to have perfected a number of passes it is also known that neither team has a man who can pass either for distance or accuracy with consistency. Both have powerful lines, but the Baylor backfield has it on Sewanee in all that makes for effective offense—in experience, speed and the confidence that comes with experience.

Then again, Baylor may have an open game up her sleeve. So far she has not been driven to it, gaining her distances with ease around end and by straight football. Ask a Baylor man about the sky stuff and he'll look wise and act like he's got a mouthful of knowledge that's just dying to bust out—but he won't give you even one earful of it.

There have been vague rumors of the wonderful place kicking of Walker and G. Roach; of the long passing of Stonerod; of the great pass-snatching of big-boy Thompson and Johnny Reed. But of course this all remains to be proven.

One thing is certain—that ball game Monday will be a dinger.

Head Coach Mosley and Quarterback Stonerod journeyed over to Houston Friday night and witnessed the Sewanee game. "Stoney" has come to life, after a couple of day's in the junk heap 'count of a strained shoulder that looked like a broken collar bone, and he will start running the game. Just how much interference he runs or offensive playing he does will depend on the getaway of the team. Fouts, who also was threatened with foot trouble in mid-week, seems to have sidestepped it all-same a line of waiting tackles and he, also, will start the game at full.

With Utay, Rix and Massingale as officials the game is sure to be run off smoothly and according to the book.

Sewanee will arrive here this morning. Just what arrangements have been made for their entertainment by Waco alumni could not be ascertained yesterday because all the alumni were in Houston watching them play, but it is understood some kind of a blowout is on the slate for Monday night—win or lose.

The officers of the organization are: W. W. Seley, president, Waco; Albert W. Wilkinson, vice president, Bryan; W. T. Eldridge, second vice president, Sugarland; J. W. Munson, third vice president, Angleton; D. C. Giddings, fourth vice president, Brenham; H. Miller, fifth vice president, Bellville; ard Templeman, treasurer, Navasota.

Others present at the meeting were: Arthur A. Stiles, Austin; R. C. Shirley, Angleton; Judge M. J. Hickey, Richmond; J. S. Daugherty, Houston; H. L. McKnight, of the extension department of A. & M. College.

HOW CHINA VOTES ON GOVERNMENT CHANGE

PRESIDENT YUAN SHI KAI ASSURED THAT MONARCHIAL PLAN WILL WIN.

Only Men Worth $20,000 Eligible as Delegates to the Citizens' Conference.

Peking, Nov. 6.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—President Yuan Shi-kai's latest plan is to have the provinces decide whether China is to be a republic or a monarchy. Primaries probably will be held soon to select delegates to the citizens' conference which will act upon a new constitution and the men named by the districts of the various provinces will be utilized to decide the form of government China is to have before they come to Peking and actually ratify the completed constitution.

Government officials explain that about 1800 delegates will be selected at the primaries. These are scattered among the various provinces, according to their population. In addition the Manchus and Mohammedans will be given special representation and Peking has extra delegates. This special representation, it is explained by government officials, will amount to about 200, so the total number of men who will pass on the form of government will be about 2000.

Chinese election machinery is involved in such a tangle of mandates and decrees that foreigners are unable to understand it, and the press which is opposed to the government repeatedly declares nobody really understands it. However, the claim of President Yuan Shi-kai and his supporters is that the primaries will be held under absolutely fair conditions which will give the public a chance to select men representative of public sentiment.

After the delegates have been selected they will be given two slips. One registers approval of the republic and the other favors a monarchy. They will vote for their favorite form of government and the results will be tabulated in Peking. It was at first rumored the delegates in each province would select one of their number to come to Peking and register his vote as representing the delegation from his province, but the president and his advisers have abandoned that plan, saying they wish to keep the delegates free from Peking influence and will probably have the voting on form of government in the provincial capitals.

With Yuan's army in control of all the provincial capitals, the enemies of the monarchial plan insist there is no chance that a majority vote will be counted against the monarchy. There is also widespread criticism of the qualifications tentatively agreed upon for delegates to the citizens' conference. Only men who have $20,000 worth of personal property or $30,000 worth of real property may qualify. They must also be men who have served the governments as magistrates or in higher official positions for at least five years and must have the equivalent of a high school education.

As the republic has been in existence less than five years, the provision that delegates must have held office for a longer period assures the choice of men who were in favor under the monarchy, few progressives having held office under the Manchus. Special representation to the Manchus and Mohammedans, it is also pointed out by the supporters of the republic, will not endanger the cause of the monarchists.

But the president and his supporters urge it is necessary to to adopt the requirements agreed upon to insure the intelligence and integrity of the men entrusted with decision upon the future form of state. After the delegates have voted upon the monarchial question the constitution drafting committee, which is now at work in Peking, will proceed with its work, following out the will of the delegates. When the drafting committee shall have completed its work the provincial delegates will be summoned to Peking to sit as the citizens' conference and ratify the constitution. This conference, unless present plans be altered, probably will be summoned by the president about January 1 of next year.

Censorship of the press and telegraph has been instituted by the government, and foreign correspondents are protesting vigorously against delay in their messages. No official announcement has been made of any censorship and up to the present time the work has been carried on under cover and in such a manner that it is highly unsatisfactory to correspondents.

MEXICANS WILL NOT EXECUTE RODRIGNEZ

CARRANZA AUTHORITIES IN MATAMOROS COMPLETE INVESTIGATIONS IN CASE.

One Member of Bandit Gang Identified as Furnisher of Milk to Soldiers.

By The Associated Press.

Brownsville, Texas, Nov. 6.—Carranza authorities in Matamoros who have been investigating the charge that Martiano Rodriguez, a Texas-born Mexican, under arrest across the river, attempted to recruit volunteers ni Matamoros for the "Texas revolution" today completed their inquiry and forwarded the findings to General Carranza for orders.

They say Rodriguez's arrest is a step in carrying out the orders of Carranza to help stop border troubles.

Carranza officials assured Americans today that there is no danger even though Rodriguez be found guilty, that he will be executed. They said the same course will be pursued as in the United States in case of attempts at organizing a revolution against a friendly country. One member of the Mexican band which recently attacked the United States soldiers at Ojo de Agua, sixty-five miles west of here, has been identified as a Mexican who furnished milk to the soldiers' camp for some days before the attack.

A diary found by officers at Ojo de Agua, which contained forty-one names of supposed Mexican bandits, shows half this number to have been residents of the American side and of the vicinity of the fight, according to information received here. Three of the number were killed in the fight and two died later on the Mexican side of their wounds. Three American soldiers were killed in this fight.

Thirteen Are Dead in New York Fire

By The Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 6.—Thirteen men and girls lost their lives today in a fire that destroyed an old, four-story brick and wooden factory building in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn. A search of the ruins is expected to uncover the bodies of thirteen other victims, eight of them girls, who were reported missing tonight. Of the forty injured in hospitals, many are expected to die and a score more were less seriously burned and bruised.

The building was occupied by a candy manufacturing concern and three firms manufacturing clothing.

The flames were discovered shortly before 2 o'clock by a girl employe of the candy factory which occupied the ground floor and basement and soon were roaring up the elevator shaft around which wound the principal stairway.

There was another stairway in the rear of the building and some of the entrapped persons escaped by that but before the firemen arrived men and women were leaping from windows. The flames had swiftly mushroomed from the elevator shaft into the fourth floor and scarcely had the first streams of water entered the building when the roof collapsed. The other floors soon afte rcollapsed one by one.

Today's disaster was the worst factory fire in New York since the Triangle Waist Factory was burned out several years ago with the loss of 148 lives. The flames spread so rapidly that escape for most of the employes in the building by stairs and elevators was impossible. The only fire escape became jammed. The flames drove the frightened men and women to the windows and forced them to jump. Of the eleven bodies recovered from the ruins six were taken from the fire escape and four were found hanging out of windows charred beyond recognition. Several of these were girls burned to death in sight of a crowd of helpless spectators.

No one could be found tonight to tell how the fire started but within half an hour the roof of the building had collapsed. In another hour it was nothing but a tottering shell of brick walls enclosing smoking ruins and probably the bodies of the missing.

Coroner Wagner has started an investigation of the cause of the disaster. After a preliminary investigation by the authorities tonight, Mrs. Edward L. Diamond, owner of the building and her husband were arrested on a charge of criminal negligence and remanded to jail without bail. Mr. Diamond said he was in the building at the time of the fire but claimed ignorance as to the cause.

How These Troublesome Masses of Earth Have Been Handled, and How They Will Finally Be Conquered.

THE Isthmus of Panama according to scientists was at one time under water. That was ages and ages ago. After awhile the upper layers of strata were formed by a slow deposit of solid materials which in the course of time settled to the bottom and became more or less compact. Ultimately volcanic action raised this portion of the floor of the ocean above the level of the sea and formed the Isthmus. The bed of the ocean, these learned men declare, lifted irregularly and in confusion. Here and there the molten rock was forced up through overlying marine deposits, destroying the general level and producing that confused topographical appearance with which the visitor to Panama is familiar.

Many centuries ago the volcanic agencies ceased and the dry land was formed of rock and masses of submarine deposits of various degrees of hardness and possessing very little resistance to a sliding movement should the equilibrium of its settling be disturbed as it was in Culebra Cut, the natural summit of the watershed which separates the Pacific Slope from the Carribean Slope and culminates in Gold Hill on the east bank of the Canal and Contractors Hill on the west bank. This short section, a little over eight miles, embraces nearly one-half of the total excavations required for the entire waterway. It was there that Nature formed a barrier, for even in the days of the French slides occurred. With their tiny machinery the slides fairly overwhelmed them, but when the Americans came they attacked the hills with big steam shovels and dynamite, for about six hundred holes were fired every working day. In addition to this, hundreds of toe holes were set off, while "dobe" blasts were placed on the top of the boulders. More than twenty million pounds of dynamite was exploded in the Cut in less than four years.

The character of the material blasted was of such a nature that slides and slips were of constant occurrence, rendering the use of explosives more hazardous than in ordinary localities, and dynamite took its toll from among the workmen.

Thirty Slides.

During the Canal construction there has been no less than thirty slides of various kinds in the Cut embracing about two hundred and fifty acres. At one time a slide of this type covered an area of about forty-seven acres and extended up the bank for a distance of nineteen hundred feet from the bottom of the Canal. Various methods were tried in efforts to arrest the slides and for a time it was thought that they might be stopped by plastering the sides with concrete, but this experiment proved futile. Draining was also tried but with small results.

Glacier-Like.

As early as 1907 slides began to give serious trouble. During October of that year there was a heavy rainfall and one night without warning a huge mass of mud swept into the Canal completely spanning it and running its toe up the other side. Its progress was like that of a glacier—in fact, it was a glacier of mud. Everything in its path was covered—tracks and steam shovels disappeared like magic, and the operation of dirt trains through the Cut was stopped for a month. Lieutenant-Colonel D. D. Gaillard was in charge of the Central Division and he at once set about to have the sides of the Cut terraced to relieve the pressure with the result that much of the extraneous material was for a time prevented from sliding into the Canal. After a time as the depth of the Cut increased and as the support of the excavated material was removed the great pressure of the superincumbent banks caused the underlying layers of soft earth to squeeze out, and owing to the settling of the high banks this material began to hump up at the bottom.

Slides and breaks of this type have been very common, the largest one covering an area of seventy-five acres. This slide was on the west bank of the Canal near the town of Culebra. So rapidly did the slide move and extend its area that it was feared that some of the buildings of the town might slide into the Canal over night. However, Colonel Gaillard, who was an expert on the movement of glaciers, kept an eye on this section and nothing happened. He told the writer on one occasion that the only remedy for a slide of this character was to dig and haul away the entire mass. Over seven million, five hundred thousand cubic yards of material was removed from this particular slide inside of five years.

Breaks In The Bank.

Another class of slides, such as the Cucaracha which is still stirring up trouble for the engineers, is even more annoying. They, too must be dug out and hauled away, but an extra precaution must be used as well—that of flattening the slope of the bank where breaks are likely to occur, for this type of slide is really a break of the earth more than a slipping. These slides, like the other kind, have a tendency to hump up at the bottom.

On one occasion the writer was standing on the bottom of the Cut watching a steam shovel at work when that machine seemed to be suddenly sinking, but such was not the case for the slide had come and was pushing up the bottom of the Cut about four feet in ten minutes. There was absolutely no sensation of rising, but rather it had the appearance of the shovels disappearing. After a while the railway track showed a decided slant where a few minutes before they had been level. Much digging and hauling of material will cause the mass to reach the angle of repose and stop. Of course, this angle depends on the character of the material of which the slide is composed.

It has been estimated that fully two hundred miles of track have been destroyed by being covered up by the avalanches of mud which have swept down from the Culebra mountain from time to time.

Sea Level Canal Impossible.

The men who at one time stood for a sea level type of canal were astonished when they saw these great masses of earth and were forced to admit that an attempt to sink a cut through the Zone for a sea level canal would have been attended by such immense earth movements that it would have been impossible for many years, if ever. For a sea level canal the depth in the Cut would have had to be eighty-five feet more than it is at present, also much wider at the bottom. This would naturally increase the volume of slides. The same men had frequently asserted that the material in Culebra mountain was stable and that only moderate slopes would be necessary. The result has shown how little they knew about this gigantic barrier, for except in a few short sections the material in the mountain has proved highly unstable and slides and breaks were encountered all along the Cut during the entire construction period.

Some idea of the amount of material which has been removed from the Canal can be obtained from the fact that if this excavated material was loaded on flat cars it would form a dirt train sufficient to reach one hundred thousand miles—four times around the earth. The excavations if built into a Chinese wall seven feet high and seven feet thick would reach from New York to San Francisco.

Now that the Canal is practically completed and ships have been passing back and forth across the "bridge of water" the question of slides is still a problem and one that requires the greatest watchfulness on the part of the Canal engineers. With the accustomed "stick-at-ed-ness" of the American they all declare that in the end they will conquer the mud glaciers and that the removal of the masses is merely a matter of time and patience. They assert that all canals must be dredged from time to time as there is a natural filling in. So, the gist of the whole matter seems to be keeping the Canal open by means of dredges.

It is contended by scientists that the Isthmus is not geologically old enough for the softer rock to have become thoroughly hardened and solidified. This they claim is proven by the fact that wherever the volcanic rock has been found and where the depths of the Cut is not too great the sides of the Cut have stood up according to the plans made by the engineers. In the deeper parts, however, the earth has refused to take the engineers' angle of slope. At the present time only about two hundred feet of slide is giving trouble.

All Honor To Colonel Gaillard.

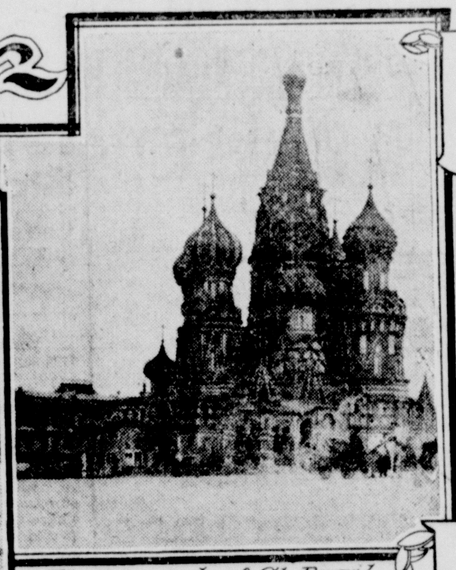

When the plans were made for the Canal it was said that the work in the Cut was merely a matter of getting out so much material, while the lock and dam building were the great engineering problems, and Lieutenant-Colonel Gaillard was congratulated by those who did not know the Isthmus on his easy job. It proved in the end to be the most disheartening, monotonous part of the whole work. The locks and dams were built almost without a hitch, while down in the Cut Colonel Gaillard never could predict just what would happen over night, and frequently when the sun rose he found the work of months blotted out by an avalanche of rock and earth which had toppled into the Canal over night. It was a task that tried men's souls, and before the great undertaking had been completed the faithful guardian of the work became a victim of the tremendous strain of the gigantic project and paid the penalty in the loss of his life.

The other engineers have received recognition and reward for their labors—promotion for a service more valiant than that won on the field of battle. Colonel Gaillard's memory should be honored by a memorial set up in the Cut where he fought and died for his country. Culebra Cut will always be the show place of the Canal for it is the first man-made canyon in the world.

The Great Russian Town At Close Range -- How It Became the Commercial Centre of That Vast Country -- In Times of Peace the Gayest City of the Empire.

ALL Russia is interesting, but Moscow is wholly Russian and combines almost every phase of life from that of the Grand Duke to the street gamin. On one side its old buildings fairly reek with Russian history, and on the other we see the commercial part of the land—a city of merchants struggling and working like the industrious insects of some giant ant hill. Russian writers tell us that Moscow only reached her flourishing condition after the reforms of 1861, when the serfs were liberated. Many of these men having a taste for commerce drifted into Moscow and ever since that time the city has grown with amazing rapidity until at present it contains over a million inhabitants.

It was not until 1147 that Moscow is mentioned in history, and at that time it was merely a cluster of wooden houses surrounded by a wooden wall. Early in the fourteenth century Moscow had a rival in the town of Tver, but the former soon outstripped her rival. During the reign of Ivan III and his wife Sophia, a Greek princess from Constantinople, Moscow began to rise in importance, for this princess sent to Italy for architects to beautify the city. The distance was great and the journey difficult, but one man, Fioravanti Aristoteli, came. He at once began to beautify the town, and his work so delighted the ruler that he induced a Venitian architect named Marco Frasini to build a palace for him. The example set by the Emperor was followed by many of the wealthy people and magnificent homes sprung up in different parts of the city. Moscow, however, was checked in her growth by fires at various times. In 1547 a terrible fire spread over the city and seventeen thousand of its inhabitants were burned to death. In 1571 there was another holocaust, and again in 1648. During the year 1712 the city was partly destroyed by fire, the conflagration being caused by the fall of a taper which a poor woman had piously placed before an ikon (religious picture used as an altar) in her store room. Again in 1737 fire destroyed a large amount of property including thirty-six churches. Fires in Moscow came to be regular things, consequently when Napoleon came to save themselves from him they set fire to the city with their own hands. The flames did not touch the Kremlin but destroyed the part of the town which needed rebuilding. Soon Moscow rose like a phoenix from her ashes and became an imposing city.

The Famous Kremlin.

So much has been written of the famous Kremlin—the coronation place of the Czars of Russia, that a resume of its history seems unnecessary here, suffice to say that within its walls are to be found the most sacred bits of Russian history, and no story of Moscow would be complete without the mention of these. It has five gates, one of which is known as the "Holy Gate," no man may enter here with covered head, and an officer is always on hand to see that this rule is obeyed. Over this gate is an ikon representing the Saviour with an ever burning lamp before it, placed there by the Czar Alexis Michaelovitch in 1626. It is said to have saved Moscow from several attacks by the Tartars. Tradition has it that some of Napoleon's soldiers tried to reach the picture thinking the frame was solid gold but each time they were frustrated in their attempt by the breaking of the ladder. The writer stood by this gate for a long time one day watching the crowd as it surged in and out of the Holy entrance and never once did a man fail to remember the lifting of his hat.

The largest bell in the world stands in the Kremlin grounds near the great palace with its hundreds of rooms. This bell will shortly be broken up and destroyed—for what reason no one can tell except that the Czar has so ordered it. The bell was cast in 1735 and weighs twelve thousand pounds. It fell from a burning beam during one of Moscow's numerous fires and a large piece was broken from its side. In 1836 Nicholas the First, the grandfather of the present Emperor, had it placed in the position it now occupies. It was cast at the expense of Queen Anne, who deemed it a meritorious act to present a bell to a church.

Nearby stands the world's largest cannon, cast in 1488 by a German named Paul di Bossio. It is known as the Czar of cannons and weighs about twenty-four hundred pounds. The cannon balls made to be used by it weigh one hundred and twenty pounds each.

All the Czars of Russia are crowned in the Cathedral of the Assumption, the great Church of the Kremlin, afterward going to the palace for the coronation dinner.

Holy Gate.

Outside the Kremlin, near the Holy Gate, is the great Church of St. Basil, the remarkable structure erected by the command of Ivan the Terrible in 1554. It contains nine small chambers decorated in the gayest colors. In one of the rooms the body of St. Basil is said to be buried. In 1611 the Church was pillaged by the Poles and again in 1812 by the French when Napoleon used it as a stable for his horses. Almost directly in front of the church one looks upon the old execution block where hundreds of persons went to their death while Ivan the Terrible watched their execution from the wall of the Kremlin. At present it is merely a show place and a resting spot for the birds which congregate about the church towers.

One of the greatest sights of Moscow is the new Cathedral, the Church of St. Savior, built in praise to God for the escape from the French in 1812. Its appearance is most imposing for it is built of white sandstone and its many cupolas are covered with solid gold, and on sunny days the glitter of these domes can be seen for miles. Inside it is even more magnificent with its marble tablets set up in memory of the men who gave their lives for Russia in 1812.

Moscow's gallery of modern art is by far the finest in Russia and was a gift to the city by two artists, the brothers Tretiakoff. The most noted of the fifteen hundred pictures housed within its walls is called "On the Way to Siberia." It shows an entire family in a railroad car with barred windows. One of the children, not knowing the seriousness of the journey, is pictured tossing crumbs to some pigeons on the ground outside. The figures are well drawn and the coloring perfect.

Commercial Moscow.

The Petrovka is the business thoroughfare of the city and compares favorably with the shopping sections of New York. A big bazaar building occupies two entire squares and in this are housed shops of all types with goods of every conceivable kind, for Moscow is a market for the Orient and its products are sent over the great Siberian railroad which has its western terminus in that city.

Many of the streets of Moscow are well paved and all sorts of municipal improvements were going on when the war began. This, of course, stopped the work for a time, but even with this drawback Moscow is one of the finest cities of Europe—modern as well as historic.

Moscow in time of peace is the gayest city of Russia, and during the winter there is a season of grand opera at the Imperial Opera House. There is also an Imperial Theatre of Russian drama and the players seen there are famous throughout Russia.

Supply Station For War.

But today all this is changed, for almost every family in the city is either in mourning or nursing some loved one back to life. The St. George room at the Kremlin has been turned into a sewing room and several hundred women are making clothing and bandages for the soldiers. Many of the schools have been turned into hospitals and women of all classes are acting as nurses. The music in the cafes has been stilled except when the National Anthem is played. Moscow is the receiving point for supplies from Siberia. Great sheds have been set up to house these supplies which are sent from time to time to the front to feed the thousands of men who are swarming over into Turkey and Austria. The city is known as the supply station of the Russian army. Hundreds of her men have gone to the front and the women of the poorer classes have taken their places as drosky drivers, street car conductors, mail carriers, etc.

Moscow is the very heart of European Russia and was for many years its capital. Today it is the great commercial city of the land, yet it has lost none of its mediaeval beauty of architecture. Here one finds a happy blending of the old and new Russia.

WORDS can not portray the beauty and splendor of the 1915 Texas Cotton Palace, nor can the vast amount of good that this great exposition will bring to Waco, to Texas and to all the South be estimated in dollars and cents. The 1915 Texas Cotton Palace without any question of a doubt reaches that fond, deep-set hope that was entertained in the minds of the ardent workers in the Young Men's Business League when it took up the work of building the Texas Cotton Palace over six years ago. And that fond and deep-set hope was that it might develop into a recognized State institution. To appreciate the importance of the Texas Cotton Palace and to fully realize the place that this institution has made for itself in the Southwest, one should travel about over the States of Oklahoma, Louisiana, Texas and the other portions of the Southwest and talk with the people. The Livestock entries, the Race Horse entries, the Agricultural displays, the manufacturing displays at the 1915 Texas Cotton Palace, show increasing interest in this great enterprise on the part of exhibitors from all parts of the South and even beyond. For weeks every inch of available space in the exhibit buildings has been contracted for and additional facilities have been brought forth to take care of those who wished to exhibit at this great exposition.

And so under the most favorable conditions—the greatest and grandest of them all—the Texas Cotton Palace of 1915 was formally opened last night by the Honorable James E. Ferguson, the chief executive of the State of Texas. Amid a scene of splendor and magnificence the word "success" was clearly written. The Texas Cotton Palace of 1915—the long anticipated and carefully planned exposition—is a reality and a crowning achievement to the glory and success of all that have gone before, for it surpasses them all. The re-arranged and improved Coliseum, the superbly artistic and original decoration of all the buildings, the hundreds of exhibits, all new and entirely different; the new Grandstand; the fastest Half Mile Race Track in the State; the Splendid Athletic Field; the excellent new Livestock Buildings; the new idea, "The Home Industry Building"; the building devoted entirely to Agriculture; the splendid new arrangement of the War Path and the high-class shows that are on it; the Famous Cavallo Band and Soloists; the Old Mill; the Roller Coaster; the sensational free acts; and so on down the list—all this linked with the best sixteen-day feature program ever prepared for any exposition in Texas—all in all, an exposition that has no equal. The hard work of the men and women behind this great institution has borne rich fruit. And all Texas will express a sincere "Thank You" in making this the banner year for attendance. The House of Sanger Brothers extends sincere congratulations to the men and women who have given so liberally and untiringly of their time and energy in making this year's Cotton Palace the great success that yesterday—opening day—revealed it to be.
